CREDITS MARLAND WITH OIL POLICY AID

Crowds Hear Him at Several Points—Aid Voiced for Hattie Caraway in Arkansas — Gov. Stark Sees Him.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., July 9. —President Roosevelt again tonight drew a line between New Deal and anti–New Deal Democrats competing in a heated primary campaign but more subtly this time. Without specifically telling off rejected Oklahoma candidates, the speech at the Fair Grounds here was intended to help "my old friend" Senator Elmer Thomas hold his Senate seat. But political observers read into it a recognition of the strength that Thomas' chief rival, Representative Gomer Smith, has gained in a fiery mass appeal campaign.

It appeared as though the whole city of 200,000 had turned out to see the President as the official motor cavalcade wound through the streets where 2000 National Guardsmen held back the crowds. At the Fair Grounds a crowd of more than 35,000 persons had been waiting for several hours to welcome the President. Senator Thomas received an ovation as he introduced the President.

Thomas and "Alfalfa Bill."

Into his prepared address the President interpolated a reference to Senator Josh Lee, who had been ignored in the text given out on the train. He also interpolated praise for Thomas, saying he had been "of enormous help" in working out the work relief program in Oklahoma. Reports on the train had it that Thomas had seen an advance copy of the speech and had not concealed his disappointment at its lukewarm references to "my old friend," the Senator from Oklahoma.

Then the President went even further in his extemporaneous remarks and added, "I note that one of the candidates on the Democratic State ticket in Oklahoma this year is known throughout the country as a Republican." This is W. H. "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, who is said to have a lead in the race for the Democratic nomination for the Governorship. Murray in 1936 introduced Alf Landon when he came here as the Republican presidential nominee.

In Oklahoma the President did not go nearly so far for Thomas as he did in Kentucky for Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley, where he ruled out Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler as too young in years and service. Polls show Barkley leading Chandler by two to one.

Referring to his recent "fireside" talk, in which he asserted the right as head of the Democratic party to favor liberal Democrats, the President declared for loyal and sincere New Dealers as opposed to doubters and candidates on "the lunatic fringe" with panaceas and cure-alls.

The latter reference was plainly intended not only for Smith, a former ardent Townsendite, but also for Murray. Murray leans to the [illegible]-acres-and-a-mule solution of social and economic problems.

It was a short speech, delivered before packed stands, in heat that was intense despite the lateness of the hour, in which the President turned to the "crackpots."

Along the " 'Lunatic Fringe.' "

"In the same way," he said, "we find others who seek office, sincerely or otherwise, on impossible pledges and platforms, people with panaceas for reforming the world overnight—people who are not practical in an age which must be both practical and progressive. Theodore Roosevelt was perhaps a bit rough when he referred to such people as the "lunatic fringe." Strictly speaking, they are not lunatics but in many cases a little push would shove them over the line."

Smith, who is known to rural voters as "old Gomer," although he is only 42, sat on the speakers' plat-

REBUILT REIMS CATHEDRAL BELLS RING OUT ONCE MORE

Silenced Since Great War, When Germans Destroyed Building; Ceremony Closes Tomorrow.

REIMS, France, July 9.—The bells of Reims Cathedral, silent since the great edifice was largely demolished by German guns during the World War, rang today for the first time in 24 years.

The bells announced the ceremonies which will culminate tomorrow in the inauguration of the rebuilt cathedral in the presence of President Albert Lebrun. About 100,000 visitors are expected in Reims tomorrow. The cathedral was rebuilt with donations from John D. Rockefeller.

The cathedral was struck by 287 German shells during the war which, in 1918, left intact only 17 buildings in the city of 100,000 population.

United States Ambassador Bullitt opened the ceremonies yesterday with a speech in which he denounced nations that attack defenseless men, women and children.

40 MISSOURI FAMILIES DRIVEN FROM HOMES BY FLOOD

Flee in Fear Rising Missouri River Will Inundate Bottom Lands Near Rockport.

By the Associated Press.

ROCKPORT, Mo., July 9.—Forty families are camping out on high ground near here tonight, driven from their southern Atchison County homes by the rising Missouri River.

The river, swollen by recent rains in Iowa, needed to rise only three inches more to overflow sandbagged dykes and inundate 60 square miles of bottomland crops. Three men patrolled each mile of the 15-mile levee.

Rockport is on high ground and is in no danger. Refugees took their livestock out of the threatened area in trucks. Relief organizations are supplying food.

Traffic was suspended south of white cloud, Kan., by the flood. Missouri State Highway, west of Phelps, was under water.

MOB IN GEORGIA BURNS NEGRO FOR KILLING OFFICER

'CAME TO DEATH BY UNKNOWN PARTIES'

Coroner's Jury Verdict — Shooting Follows Effort to Arrest Man for Drunkenness.

By the Associated Press.

CORDELE, Ga., July 9.—John Dukes, 60-year-old Negro, was burned to death by a mob in Arabi today, after he had shot and killed Town Marshal F. O. Epps, 60.

As reported to Sheriff J. H. Pitts of Crisp County, Dukes was shot twice by Marshal Eppes before the Marshal fell, mortally wounded. As a result, Dukes was in a dying condition when the mob seized him. Men poured gasoline on the wounded Negro and set his clothing afire.

Dukes' encounter with the Marshal came when the local official tried to arrest him for drunkenness, about 3 o'clock this afternoon. Witnesses said Dukes opened fire, and wounded Epps four or five times, but the Marshal returned the fire with three shots, two taking effect.

The Sheriff and his chief deputy, J. G. Bullington, went from Cordele to Arabi, 10 miles south, to investigate the shooting of the Marshal. After they had left the town, it was learned later, the wounded Negro was placed on a truck and hauled about a half-mile out of town, where the lynchers surrounded the helpless man and burned him.

Sheriff Pitts and Coroner W. E. Mixon went to Arabi after learning of the lynching, and the Coroner held an inquest, resulting in a jury's verdict that the Negro came to his death at the hands of "unknown parties."

Sheriff Pitts said "The case is closed as far as I am concerned unless something turns up to cause an arrest."

Dr. M. C. McKinney, druggist, said, "There were 400 or 500 people" in the crowd "that hauled the Negro off."

McKinney said the Negro "was unconscious—in a dying condition—when burned."

HUGHES WARMING MOTORS FOR FLIGHT TO PARIS

Delayed by Motor Trouble in Starting Air Journey Around the World.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Howard Hughes began warming the motors of his specially built transport plane tonight, apparently determined to start within a few hours for Paris on the first leg of a round-the-world flight to beat the record of the late Wiley Post. He will carry a crew of four.

The start had been scheduled for this afternoon but, as time wore on while mechanics worked on the motor tonight, the take-off was postponed from hour to hour.

As midnight approached, rain started falling on the hundreds of persons gathered to watch the start of the flight.

Post's record is 7 days, 18 hours and 49 minutes.

BARCELONA INDICATES APPROVAL OF PLAN TO OUST ALIEN FIGHTERS

By the Associated Press.

BARCELONA, July 9.

THE Spanish Government indicated today its general approval of the 26-nation nonintervention committee's plan to withdraw foreign soldiers fighting in the Spanish civil war.

Premier Juan Negrin's Government announced its reply to the proposal would be based on "the general interests of peace."

Special messengers took the program, agreed on in London Tuesday, both to Barcelona and to Burgos for consideration by the two Spanish administrations.

The Spanish Government's formal reply to London will be withheld, however, pending closer examination of some points.

HANDBOOK SHOP ON DELMAR BOMBED

A bomb, apparently placed at the rear of a handbook shop at 4506 Delmar boulevard, damaged the interior of the place and broke windows of a barber shop and restaurant adjoining, shortly before 11 o'clock last night.

No one was hurt by the explosion, which was heard over a wide area of the West End. Plate glass windows of the three establishments, windows of several stores across the street and also at the rear of an apartment on Washington boulevard, to the south, were shattered.

Police said damage in the handbook shop, known as the Palace Smoke Shop, would not exceed $500 and that damage in all three places probably would not be more than $1000.

The handbook shop is operated by Frank Cammarata and Paul J. Schneider, police said.

Sergt. Herman Rennekamp of the police bombing squad, said apparently about 10 sticks of dynamite had been placed at the rear door of the handbook shop. Traffic at the nearby busy intersection of Taylor avenue and Delmar was halted for more than an hour when policemen and firemen roped off the damaged area and attempted to control the large crowd which gathered.

E. A. McGary, proprietor of an automobile repair shop at 4510 Delmar, next door to the barber shop, said he was locking up for the night when the explosion occurred.

"The blast almost knocked me down, but, as it happened, nobody was directly in front of the place at the time," he said.

His daughter, Mrs. Ella Sams of Pasadena, said his body, clad in his blue uniform, would be sent to California for burial.

Two other Union veterans are in serious condition in a Gettysburg hospital. They are Benjamin H. Happy, 96, of Minneapolis, and Dr. Andrew McClelland, 89, of Buffalo.

Three veterans are in a Carlisle hospital. They are Jacob Rush, 88, of Orange, Cal.; Daniel White, 92, of Timmonsville, S. C.; and Jacob Winslow, 94, of Los Angeles. The hospital reported their condition is fair.

LOCOMOTIVE EXPLOSION LAID TO LOW WATER IN BOILER

Northern Pacific Railway Officer Says Engine That Blew Up Near Willis, Mont., Was Modern.

By the Associated Press.

ST. PAUL, July 9.—Low water in the boiler caused the explosion of a freight locomotive near Willis, Mont., Thursday night, which killed three trainmen and two transients, H. E. Stevens, operating vice-president of the Northern Pacific Railway, said today in a prepared statement.

Stevens' statement follows:

"Preliminary reports from local mechanical officers, who have examined the wreck, indicate beyond question that the explosion was caused by low water in the boiler, permitting the top of the crown sheet to bcome overheated.

"This was a new engine placed in service in January, 1937. It was of strictly modern design and equipped with all the latest devices for indicating accurately water level in the boiler."

INVENTOR HOWE COUNTS CLAIM AT LEAST $6,000,000

MASTER TO RULE ON PROPER FIGURE

Reports May Be Made Next Month in Protracted Litigation With Commonwealth Steel.

A minimum estimate of $6,000,000 has been made by accountants representing Andrew F. Howe, University City inventor, as the amount of his claim against the Commonwealth Steel Co., the Post-Dispatch learned yesterday.

This amount, together with two higher figures, may be submitted next month to Master in Chancery Edward P. Allen of Quincy, Ill., who will conduct hearings to determine how much the inventor should receive for his steel mold and sand mill devices. Intricate accounting reports from both sides must be analyzed and the influence of other business factors weighed before a final figure is established.

In the nine years which have elapsed since he first filed suit for an accounting, his claim, originally estimated at $1,000,000, has multiplied, partially as the result of court testimony in the long litigation. Although the suit now is entering its final stages, the most optimistic prediction of his attorney, Joseph T. Davis, indicated that final settlement may not be reached for another year.

Howe in Business Meantime.

In the meantime, Howe, now 63 and a partner in a recently established manufacturing plant at 3600 South Second street, is not discouraged. Possessed of an adequate income from his business and royalties from several inventions, he can afford to wait.

"Besides it is largely a matter of principle with me," Howe observed to a Post-Dispatch reporter, adding with a smile, "I might even say principal and interest."

Although his attorneys have taken the case on a contingent fee basis, getting 40 per cent of the judgment, Howe estimated he has expended about $12,000 on traveling expenses and the printing of briefs. An accounting firm, which also has agreed to await payment until the claim is paid, has run up a bill of about $40,000, he said. Howe estimated his personal share would be "better than half."

Whatever the courts may finally allow him, the inventor observed, would be regarded as a "bonanza" by his wife and three grown children. Nor would be abandon his work if he were to become a millionaire overnight, he said.

History of Litigation.

As has been told, the United State's Circuit Counrt of Appeals nearly six years ago affirmed a District Court decision granting Howe an accounting from the steel company for the use of his inventions. It held also that the late Clarence H. Howard, president of the concern, which was sold in 1929 to the General Steel Castings Co. of Philadelphia for $35,000,000, broke faith with his employe.

As the litigation proceeded it developed that the steel company set aside a fund of $1,700,000 before its sale to the General Steel Castings Company against the possibility of an adverse decision in the Howe inventor's suit, who had instituted his claim by attempting to block the sale until he was given an accounting. When the appellate courts, including the United States Supreme Court, affirmed the District Court's decision he obtained a lien on this sum. His attorney, Davis, calculated yesterday that interest has increased it to about $2,000,000.

Howe's latest move, described by him as a "flank attack" was to attempt to levy on the $5,733,000 estate of Mrs. Minnie Morey Howard, widow of the steel man because of the Commonwealth stock holdings in the estate. He lost in St. Louis County probate and Circuit Courts and is now appealing to the State Supreme Court.

Collateral Issue.

This maneuver was described by Davis as a collateral issue. The attorney said that the effect of the ruling did not preclude filing a claim after the amount of the judgment has been fixed although it did preclude a claim until the amount has been determined.

Should the final judgment be in excess of the $2,000,000 escrow fund, Davis said, the inventor may call on stockholders and heirs of original stockholders for the balance.

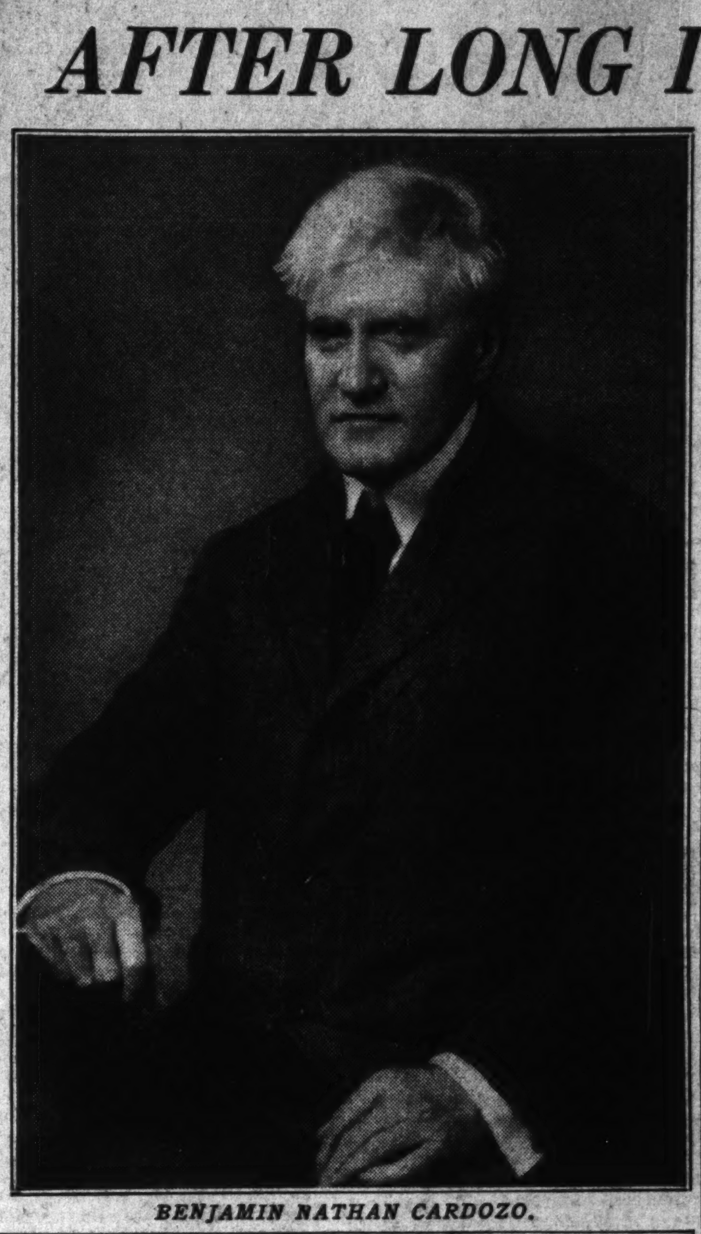
JUSTICE CARDOZO DIES FROM HEART DISEASE AFTER LONG ILLNESS



BENJAMIN NATHAN CARDOZO.

NOTED JURIST VISITING FRIEND WHEN END COMES

SECOND OF HIS RACE ON HIGH TRIBUNAL

Burial Will Take Place Monday in Shereth Israel Cemetery in Long Island —Cousins Only Surviving Relatives.

By the Associated Press.

PORT CHESTER, N. Y., July 9. —Associate Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo of the United States Supreme Court died at 6:40 p. m. today at the home of Justice Irving Lehman of the New York Court of Appeals.

At his bedside were members of the household and his secretary, Joseph Rauh, who announced the death.

Justice Cardozo had been ill with heart trouble since last winter. In the last few weeks he had spent much time in an oxygen tent. He was taken ill in December.

Justice Cardozo was 68 May 24. He had long been a friend of President Roosevelt and only today the President and Mrs. Roosevelt sent flowers to him.

He came to Justice Lehman's home from Washington in June to spend the summer, after being forced by his illness to miss all the spring sessions of the court.

His death ended more than a week's fight to overcome a relapse from the old heart ailment.

"Thank You," His Last Words.

As long as he was able to hope, Justice Cardozo wanted to return to the Supreme Court and serve his country as well and actively as ever, his physician said tonight.

"His last words, I believe, were 'Thank you,'" said Dr. Curlin C. Craven, specialist on internal disorders who treated the justice. "He was the most courteous man I have ever known. It was second nature for him to be humble and thankful for everything done for him. He expressed his satisfaction with trifling little services. He continually said, 'I'm sorry to be such a nuisance, but I hope if I can get well I can be of some value to my country.' He didn't wish to live unless he could serve his country."

Dr. Craven said Cardozo had pneumonia when he first came to Port Chester in June.

"But he died of a coronary thrombosis," the doctor explained. "Until June 25 he had been improving steadily from his heart trouble. He had suffered from attacks for more than three years, but pneumonia had left him in poor shape. He had become happy and cheerful and seemed to be doing well.

Kept Alive With Oxygen.

"Since June 25 he had been kept alive purely artifically in an oxygen tent and with intravenous injections of glucose. He sank day by day until his death. Nevertheless, Justice Cardozo showed during this time his remarkable mentality and his gracious character. He was a most unusual man with a most unusual brain.

"Immediately after stimulants he could be roused. He always smiled and indicated that he recognized the faces about him. His only request was for relief from that terrible pain in his heart. It is improbable that Justice Cardozo could have worked much longer, even had he recovered from his attack. But he did not realize this and continued to hope to return to work this fall.

"In delirium as in his conscious

Liked Albany, Where He Was Happy, Says Former Secretary—Always an Indefatigable Worker.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Justice Benjamin Nathan Cardozo, "the idol of law students," didn't want to be a Supreme Court Justice. He wanted to remain among his old cronies in Albany, N. Y., in the State Court of Appeals.

His secretary for 14 years, Joseph M. Paley, professor of law at St. John's University School of Law, Brooklyn, and practicing attorney, recalled today how Cardozo used to pace the floor of the Bar Building after his appointment, and mutter: "Why did I accept the post?"

"For personal reasons, he didn't want to move to Washington," Paley said. "He was alone in the world, and he thought he was too old to pull up roots and start again; and he was happy in Albany.

"When the rumor that he would be appointed cropped up, he became very much alarmed. But as the weeks went by he felt confident he was out of the picture.

"I recall very distinctly that on Feb. 13, 1932, when he bade me good-by before leaving for Albany he said, 'I think I can breathe a sigh of relief that the President hasn't me in mind.'"

President Hoover named him to the Supreme Court bench two days later.

"If the appointment had come immediately after Justice Holmes' retirement, he probably would have rejected it," Paley said.

"But in the four weeks that intervened, the President had received thousands of letters from over the country, saying, 'Name Cardozo as the logical successor to Holmes.'

"So Cardozo had to forget his personal life. He had to say, 'I belong to the people, and therefore must set aside my personal reasons.'"

Didn't Like New Life.

Complete reconciliation to his new life didn't come until about two years ago, said his former secretary.

"I recall the first time we came to New York from Washington," Paley continued, "Justice Cardozo muttered all the way up how unhappy he was there."

When Paley resigned six months later to devote full time to his teaching and law practice, Justice Cardozo wrote him a letter saying, "My sadness at the great change in my life is increased by your departure."

In 14 years his former secretary never heard Justice Cardozo use a real "cuss word."

"'Damn' was the worst word I ever heard him say," Paley recalled, "and he said that in such a way that it fell like music on one's ears.

"He never blustered. He didn't smoke, he didn't drink, there was nothing ornate or pompous about his home, and he ate very simply.

"He did like sweets—little cakes, and fruit compote. That was the nearest he came to having a vice.

"He was a philosopher, living among his books. He never indulged in any outdoor sport—once he tried to play golf, but that was the end of it.

"I never knew him to see a moving picture. Once in a great while he went to a symphony concert or the theater.

"His social activity was very limited," Paley continued. "From his boyhood, he had been such an indefatigable worker that he didn't have time for it.

"But although a bachelor, he was most charming company in the presence of women. They idolized his manner, and his sense of humor.

"He married me and Mrs. Paley, and at the dinner table afterward, he was the life of the party, although he was always quiet.

Read by Paragraphs.

"He was the fastest writer and the fastest reader I have ever seen. He had a photographic eye and a retentive memory.

"He didn't read by lines, but by paragraphs and pages. He could look at pages and keep turning.

"He was so familiar with the statutes that you couldn't assist him. Instead of my doing original research work, he could always say, 'You'll find that in volume so and so, on page so and so.'"

Once Clarence J. Shearn, who had resigned as justice of the Appelate Division, said admiringly to Cardozo, "You're a living encyclopedia of law," Paley recalled.

Shearn came up as a practicing lawyer to Chambers, after one of his cases had been in the Court of Appeals, and asked Cardozo about a matter not related to his case.

"You'll find it in Nw York report so-and-so," Cardozo said, and walked over, picked up the book and turned to the page.

When Cardozo was Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals, Paley said, he was always a jump ahead of his

REBELS ATTACK BY AIR, LAND, SEA NEAR VALENCIA

LOYALISTS DIG IN; MOUNTAIN FIGHTING

Franco's Forces Estimated to Have Lost 10,000 in Week — Miaja Confers Hastily on Defense.

By the Associated Press.

HENDAYE, France (at the Spanish Frontier), July 9.—Generalissimo Francisco Franco's insurgents hammered from sea, land and air today against the Government defenders of Valencia in a coastal battle south of Nules, a fortified town 28 miles north of Valencia.

Hundreds of tanks and bombing planes were hurled into the conflict while insurgent warships poured shells into the militiamen's lines at right angles to the fire of Franco's artillery on the shore.

Government dispatches said Gen. Jose Maija conferred hurriedly with provincial officials in Valencia to speed construction of the fortifications of the former provisional capital.

The insurgents were slightly more than 25 miles away after capturing Nules yesterday and pushing down three miles along the road to Sagunto and Valencia, where Government troops dug in after their retreat.

Twelve miles northwest of Nules other insurgent columns from Onda and Tales attacked Government lines southwest of Sueras. Fighting was heaviest on the slopes of the Sierra de Espadan, one of the two ranges of mountains forming natural barriers to the insurgent drive.

Fighting Among Palm Trees.

Sanguinary hand-to-hand fighting among fruit and palm trees preceded the capture of Nules, where the Government rearguard made a last stand in house-to-house fighting.

Insurgents reported charges of dynamite were set off in the center of the once prosperous health resort by the last defenders to flee. They said the narrow, winding streets were masses of ruins. Many of the land mines, they said, failed to explode.

The major fighting of the week took place on a 62-mile front from southwest of inland Teruel to the Mediterranean, with the capture of Nules and Villavieja, two miles west, marking the principal insurgent gains.

The insurgent advances were achieved at a heavy cost of lives as the week's operations were characterized by mass infantry assaults on Government positions.

It was estimated the insurgents lost 10,000 men, while the Government defenders, following strictly defensive tactics, were placed at about 2000.

Workers' Quarters Bombed.

In a morning air raid on Badalona, northern suburb of Barcelona, insurgent warplanes killed four persons, wounded five seriously and slightly injured several. Most of the bombs fell in the sea. Badalona is occupied mostly by workers' quarters. The suburb has been the target of repeated attacks for two weeks, during which more than 75 persons have been killed.

John Bernardon, Owner of Tile Company Walked Into Side of Car, Driver Says.

John Bernardon, 70 years old, owner of the Venetian Mosaic & Tile Co., 4446 Easton avenue, suffered serious head injuries yesterday when an automobile struck him when he was crossing Easton avenue near his company's offices. He is at City Hospital.

The driver, who told police he was John Kowalski, 4044 Natural Bridge avenue, said Bernardon walked into the side of his machine after he swerved to avoid hitting him. Bernardon lives at 5329 Minerva avenue.

Robert A. Black, 6211 Westminster place, was brought to Missouri Baptist Hospital last night for treatment of a fractured left arm and serious cuts suffered yesterday afternoon when his automobile, in which he was riding alone, overturned on a highway near Elsberry, Mo. Roosevelt Gives Thomas Boost in Oklahoma Speech form to hear this description of the "lunatic fringe." The Oklahoma primary is on Tuesday, and it is extremely doubtful that the President's appearance here tonight can do much to help Thomas, particularly since there was really very little in the short talk that Thomas' campaign managers could point to. The President gave Thomas credit for obtaining the Grand River Dam project through amendment of the appropriation bill of 1935 but other than that there was no direct praise for the Oklahoma Senator in the prepared speech.

The third Democratic candidate for the Senate seat, Gov. E. W. Marland, also sat on the platform and the President in his prepared talk credited him with having given "great assistance" in formulating a national policy with respect to oil resources. Marland did not approve of President Roosevelt's visit to Oklahoma, insisting that he should stay out or treat all candidates alike.

Some small credit was given to Thomas for distribution of New Deal beneficence but again only by implication. The President said: "I am told by Senator Thomas that the Works Progress program in Oklahoma is leaving permanent monuments all over the State and that in the matter of new or improved school houses alone this State, in co-operation with WPA, has made a greater record than any other state in the Union."

Picturesque Free-for-All.

In this state politics is always on the picturesque side and the present Democratic primary is no exception, the prediction being freely made that it will draw a larger vote on Tuesday than has ever before been recorded. This time, as in previous contests, racy personalties, with something of the color of the pioneering West, are engaged in a free-for-all.

Smith has drawn support from both ends of the economic scale. Speaking to the hill-billies and the share-croppers in the eastern part of the state, he has ridiculed the Administration's farm program and Secretary of Agriculture Wallace. "Why, the next thing you know," he roars out at his audiences, "you'll have to have a wet nurse for every sow that has a litter of pigs." Wealthy oil men have pinned anti-New Deal hopes on Smith, and it is reported that their contributions to his campaign fund have been generous.

The also-ran in the race for the senatorial nominations is, seemingly, Marland, who has made and lost and made again a half-dozen oil fortunes. Through all the vicissitudes of fortune, Marland has retained the fabulous estate that he built some years ago at Ponca City, complete with gold-plated pipe organs, formal gardens and a stable full of blooded hunters, recently is reported to have struck another oil field, and at sixty-four feels he is far too young to retire to the grandeur of Ponca City.

"Alfalfa Bill" Murray.

The contest for tne Democratic nomination for the governorship is just as picturesque, thanks to the presence of "Alfalfa Bill" Murray of the scraggly mustache and the frayed galluses. Murray voices a cracker-barrel philosophy in a twangy, nasal voice that is a distinct political asset. Murray, too, draws his support from extremes of rich and poor. The former like him because he is anti-New Deal and the latter believe he is one of them.

It was Murray who introduced Alf Landon when the Republican nominee came to Oklahoma City in the presidential campaign of 1936. He has been Governor once (under Oklahoma law a man cannot run for re-election as Governor until an interval of four years or more has passed) and he wants the job again. With a large personal follower his two principal opponents, Leon C. Phillips and W. S. Key, both youngish New Dealers. Key, after his appointment as State WPA Administrator by Senator Josh Lee of Oklahoma, organized relief employes and then resigned to run for the governorship.

The President has said several times in the course of his cross-country tour that politics are only incidental to this "inspection trip." Nevertheless, the back car is full of politicians who board the train at each stop. One of these today was Gov. Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri, in whom the President has developed a decided interest. Stark flew from St. Louis in a National Guard plane to board the train at McAlester, Ok., talking with the President for nearly an hour. At Oklahoma City his plane met him and he flew immediately back to Missouri.

Stark declined to comment on his conference with the President, but their talk did not concern Missouri politics, he said.

Crowd at McAlester.

At McAlester the President told a crowd of 12,000 he was glad to be with "my old friends, Senator Lee and Senator Thomas."

"As some of you know," he said, "this is a primary tour of inspection. I am only mentioning a few words of politics, but, of course, not in a partisan way. I am seeking what most of the people of this country are seeking, judging by the elections of 1932, 1934 and 1936, to maintain a liberal government in the nation's capital."

At Shawnee, Mr. Roosevelt introduced "my small boy, Elliott," who stood beside him. "Elliott and I have inferiority complexes as we are the runts of the family. I am six feet one, and Elliott is six feet two." The crowd roared with laughter.

Senator Hattie Caraway.

Earlier in the day, the President, after having intervened yesterday for Senator Bulkley in Ohio and Senator Barkley in Kentucky, paused at Booneville, Ark., to give a helping hand to Senator Hattie W. Caraway.

One of the four men running in the Democratic primary against Mrs. Caraway, Representative John L. McClellan, is reported to have a good chance to defeat the only woman now in the Senate.

Mrs. Caraway, who boarded the train at Little Rock early this morning, introduced the President, speaking briefly to a large crowd gathered about the rear of the President's private car.

Also in the train was Senator John Miller of Arkansas, serving his first term in the Senate, who does not have a record of New Deal loyalty. In contrast, Mrs. Caraway has always been "regular," her name being one of those that was always on the administration list of Senators which would support the bill to remake the Supreme Court. The Arkansas primary is Aug. 9.

"I've been talking this morning on the train with a very old friend of mine, and a friend of yours, Hattie Caraway," the President said, and drew cheers. "I say old friend, but I hate to think how long it's been—25 years," the President added, chuckling.

President Roosevelt did not mention either of Mrs. Caraway's opponents, Representative McClellan or J. Rosser Venable.

Mr. Roosevelt will visit with his son, Elliott, over Sunday, in Fort Worth, Tex. While at Fort Worth he will speak over the chain of radio stations Elliott owns and operates.

Youth Admits Firing at Man, 71, Who Was Accused of Killing His Father, June 26.

By the Associated Press.

ATOKA, Ok., July 9. — M. L. Moore, 71-year-old farmer, was shot to death today in a resumption of a 16-year-old hill country feud. Weeping, Ed Killian, 26, son of a man Moore was charged with shooting to death, surrendered to Sheriff Tom Kilmer.

The man declared he shot the farmer when the two met this morning at the cabin of Joe Fisher, a Negro sometimes employed by the Killian family. A Sheriff's deputy said the prisoner's father, Jack Killian, wounded Moore in an argument over some timber in 1922. There had been trouble between the two families since.

Last June 26, the elder Killian was shot to death on Moore's land. Moore was arrested, but later was admitted to $7500 bond.

MAN TRIES TO JUMP ON ROOSEVELT'S AUTO

Guards Beat, Jail Eccentric Who Wanted to Shine President's Shoes.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., July 9.—An attempt to jump on the automobile in which President Roosevelt was riding through Oklahoma City resulted today in a beating and arrest for Woody Hockaday, 52 years old, of Wichita, Kan., who said he merely wanted to "shine the President's shoes." Hockaday has been detained in other cities, including Washington, for eccentric actions in the past.

Tommy Qualters, the President's personal bodyguard and former Notre Dame football star, leaped from Mr. Roosevelt's car and swung his fist into Hockaday's jaw, knocking him to the ground. Qualters then stepped back on the running board as two firemen, two National Guardsmen and a policeman immediately jumped upon Hockaday, pummeled him and dragged him to a nearby fire station.

When the President heard the commotion, he turned his head and frowned. He recovered his composure quickly, however, and turned again towards the crowd, smiling and waving his hat.

Secret Service men said the scuffle occurred after Hockaday was warned, "That's not allowed."

Hockaday was booked at a police station under charge of disorderly conduct, and was held for "further investigation."

The prisoner said he came here with the express intention of shining the President's shoes to raise the first dime in a program to "restore prosperity to the wheat farmers."

His immediate goal, he said, was a dollar and a half. He said he intended to get a dime from the President and then shine the shoes of 14 other notables to obtain the remaining $1.40.

Then, with the $1.50, he said, he intended to pay a farmer "the whole business" for a bushel of wheat, make 60 loaves of bread, and sell the loaves for a dime apiece, making a profit of $4.50.

But he would not keep the $4.50 for himself, he said. That he would divide equally among the baker, the miller and the "middleman."

Hockaday said if his idea worked with a bushel, he figured it would work with 1000 bushels.

Hockaday said he once threw feathers in the office of Secretary of War Woodring (in 1936) to demonstrate his peace idea of "feathers against bullets." He said he was ejected at Detroit once for throwing feathers at Father Coughlin for "mixing politics with religion."

Hockaday Known in Nw York as "Our Fine-Feathered Friend."

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 9. — Woody Hockaday, who jumped on the President's automobile in Oklahoma City, Ok., today is well known in New York.

Clad in Indian feathers, he has been known to leap on banquet tables, give a war whoop and explain alternately his "peace plan" and "traffic marking system."

Hockaday went to Bellevue Hospital's psychopathic ward for observation in 1936 when, garbed in Indian headdress and with cheeks painted red, he threw feathers over a large noonday crowd he had lectured on Wall Street. He was released after a short detention.

He usually carried a bag of feathers and was known in ofices which he visited as "our fine feathered friend."

JAPANESE PLANES BOMBING CHINESE ABOVE KIUKIANG

Trying to Drive Out Forces Who Are Blocking Advance Toward Hankow—Defenders Counter-Attack.

By the Associated Press.

SHANGHAI, July 9.—Japanese navy officers said today their "heavily operating" air forces were attempting to blast out Chinese defenders 30 miles above Kiukiang on the Yangtze River.

Stationed at Kiukiang, 135 miles below the provisional capital of Hankow, were the United States gunboat Monocacy and the British gunboat Cockchafer, remaining to protect their nationals despite Chinese and Japanese warnings of dangerous, thickly-mined waters.

The bombing operations followed by a few hours a Japanese note to foreign powers urging "voluntary evacuation" of an 80-mile area, from Kiukiang to Hwangshihkang, marked out for a battle ground.

Japanese announced they were sending 20,000 troops for land operations in the zone.

Chinese Striking Back.

The Chinese warning last Thursday said new booms across the river were being built 30 miles above Kiukiang, but Japanese said they understood there was a channel through the obstructions and mine fields if the gunboats wished to withdraw.

Although there are booms and defenses at Kiukiang, Japanese indicated that Chinese fortifications and positions 30 miles above that point were the main obstacle to the Japanese advance from Hukow to Hankow, a distance of 150 miles.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's forces were striking back in vigorous counter-attacks.

Japanese admitted Chinese air raids on warships and troop concentrations above Anking were continuing, but asserted the raids were ineffective. They said three Chinese bombers were shot down by anti-aircraft guns.

Defenders Claim Success.

Chinese reported a victory at Huanmutang, where they said Japanese lost several hundred men and 10 armed launches, and reported counter-attacks at Matowchen, Pengtseh and Siangkow, points down river from the farthest Japanese advance.

Earlier they admitted garrisons at Linfen, Kuwo, Wensi and Yunchen, along the Shansi Railway and deep in the province which Japanese marched over last February and March, had been isolated for nearly four weeks. Rations and munitions were supplied by plane.

In a move interpreted as an effort to tighten the hold on Chinese industry in Shanghai, Japanese army and navy officers announced that "Chinese industrial establishments which are reluctant to place their plants under joint Chinese-Japanese management will be given temporary Japanese operators."

Foreign industrialists said the Japanese program was tantamount to Japanese absorption of the industries.

SEARCH FOR BOY IN COLORADO CONCENTRATED ALONG RIVER

National Park Officials Doubt Child Was Kidnaped; Expect to Find Him Drowned.

By the Associated Press.

ROCKY MOUNTAIN NATIONAL PARK, Colo., July 9.—In its seventh day, the search for missing 4-year-old Alfred Beilhartz was concentrated today along the turbulent Fall River in Rocky Mountain National Park.

Park officials held to the belief the child had drowned, despite the expressed fear of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Beilhartz of Denver, that their son had been kidnaped.

Alfred vanished Sunday after going to the bank of the Roaring River with his father from the family's holiday camp in a wooded, rocky section of the park. Officials said the boy's body may have been swept down the Roaring into the larger Fall River.

David H. Canfield, park superintendent, said a report by William J. Eells of Denver that he saw what he believed was a child high on the slopes of Mount Chapin last Sunday was being carefully checked.

Canfield said he thought it impossible a child could have reached that point in the mountains without aid.

PERMANENT INTERNATIONAL REFUGEE BOARD URGED

Speaker at Conference in France Suggests Germany Liberalize Policy Toward Jews.

By the Associated Press.

EVIAN-LES-BAINS, France, July 9.—A movement to establish a permanent international refugee committee in London with United States support gained favor today when the refugee conference took a recess.

Sir Neil Malcolm, League of Nations High Commissioner for Refugees, spoke in favor of the London plan at today's session. He expressed a hope that besides taking care of the refugee problem itself, the proposed committee would use its good offices to induce Chancellor Adolf Hitler of Germany to adopt a "more liberal" policy toward Jews.

Private Jewish agencies meanwhile were exerting pressure for additional promises of selected areas in North and South America where refugees from Germany and Austria would be allowed to settle. Their demands met with little success in the United States delegation, which held firmly to the position that existing immigration laws and practices in the United States should continue to be enforced.

Offers were made by Mexico and the Dominican Republic to give asylum to an unspecified number of refugees.

MUSSOLINI TALKS WAR ON WORLD-WIDE SCALE

Says Spain Is Scene of First Combat in Anti-Bolshevism Campaign.

By the Associated Press.

ROME, July 9.—Premier Mussolini announced today Italy's readiness to combat Bolshevism "on a European or world-wide scale" if necessary "to decide the fate of the continent."

His statement was made in a preface to a volume of Fascist Grand Council's acts of the last three years. Mussolini wrote that the acts were being published "while victory is within the grasp of (Spanish Insurgent Generalissimo) Franco's armies, notwithstanding French-Russian aid." He added:

"The event is of enormous historic importance. It is the first time—but will it be the last?—in which Blackshirts have confronted Bolshevist forces and those of immortal principles on the international field."

The reference to "immortal principles" was interpreted as applying to democracy, which he frequently has derided.

"It is the first encounter between two revolutions, between that of the last century—even bolshevism is a reactionary revolution—and ours," he said.

"We do not know whether this clash may develop on a European or a world-wide scale tomorrow. What we do know is that Fascism does not fear a battle which must decide the fate of the continent."

Foreigners who once pitied Italy now hate her, Mussolini said, but he declared, "of this hate, which is fully reciprocated, we are extremely proud."

LEAGUE OF NATIONS SOCIETIES DEPLORE PRESSURE ON CZECHS

Sudeten Delegates Walk Out of Copenhagen Parley When Resolution Is Passed.

By the Associated Press.

COPENHAGEN, July 9.—Sudeten German and Hungarian minority delegates from Czechoslovakia walked out today as the International Congress of League of Nations Societies adopted a resolution deploring "economic and military pressure on Czechoslovakia."

Delegates representing 30 countries concluded their sessions today after deciding to hold next year's congress in New York.

The Congress also declared the right of the Barcelona Government in Spain to import arms for its defense; recommended a search for means of organizing penalties against bombing of civilians, and favored boycotting Japanese goods in an effort to end the war in China.

MANY SUGGESTED AS SUCCESSOR TO JUSTICE CARDOZO

Death of New York Member Will Give Roosevelt Third Chance to Fill Seat On Supreme Court.

CLAIMS OF WEST MAY BE CONSIDERED

WASHINGTON, July 9. — The death of Justice Benjamin N. Cardozo gives President Roosevelt an opportunity to make his third appointment to the Supreme Court.

That appointment is not expected to change the New Deal's strength on the court, however, because Cardozo had favored most administration laws which came before him.

moments, Justice Cardozo's whole interest in his life seemed to be to try to recover for his work. In delirious moments he went over and over again old decisions and court cases. He rambled in legalistic terms, but there was no specific case mentioned that I recall. Outside the delirium his mind was surprisingly clear.

"He was never able to express the hopelessness of his plight. Under opiates, the severe pain of his condition was alleviated. I believed he died without hurt."

Funeral Tomorrow.

Mrs. Rauh, the secretary's wife, said private funeral services would be held Monday at 2 p. m. at the Lehman home. Rabbi Dajessurun Cardozo, assistant minister of Congregation Shereth Israel, will officiate. Burial will be in the congregation cemetery at Cypress Hills, Long Island, Mrs. Rauh says.

"Justice Cardozo grew weaker throughout the entire day," she said, "but he was conscious until the moment of his death. He knew his friends about him, but during the last few hours was able to say nothing and to make no gesture to them."

Three of Cardozo's cousins were on the way from their homes in New York to Port Chester at the time of death. They are: Henry S. Hendricks, Edgar J. Nathan Jr. and Miss Addie Cardozo.

Cardozo had served on the Supreme Court since 1932, when he was appointed by President Hoover. He was a bachelor.

He went to the court as successor to Oliver Wendell Holmes, famed as "the great dissenter."

Before that, Cardozo had been on the New York Court of Appeals since 1917.

He was the second member of the Jewish race to sit on the Supreme bench. The first was Justice Louis D. Brandeis, appointed in 1916 by President Wilson.

Cousins Nearest Relatives to Survive Cardozo.

WASHINGTON, July 9. — No relatives nearer than cousins survice Justice Cardozo. Associates said his closest friend probably was Miss Katherine Tracy, who had been housekeeper for Cardozo in New York for 40 years.

The Justice's cousins are: Miss Addie Cardozo, William B. Cardozo, Mrs. Frederick Nathan, Harold Nathan, father of Robert Nathan, the author; Mrs. Annie Nathan Meyer, Edgar J. Nathan Jr., Miss Emily S. Nathan, Mrs. Henry S. Hendricks, Michael H. Cardozo Jr., and Algernon S. Cardozo, all of New York City; and Miss Nellie Cardozo, of Minneapolis.

The Justice had three sisters, all of whom are dead.

More One-Mill Tokens Sought.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 9.—G. H. Bates, State Sales Tax Supervisor, said today his department was attempting to buy 15,000,000 one-mill tokens to relieve shortages reported in various sections of the State. The $150,000 appropriated for the metal tokens at the 1937 session is practically exhausted. There are 55,000,000 one-mill and 12,000,000 five-mill pieces in circulation.

JUSTICE CARDOZO DIDN'T WANT TO LEAVE NEW YORK

colleagues and two jumps ahead of the attorneys "because he read every record and every brief before the argument.

"He had all the records and briefs sent down to chambers a week before Court opened, and he read in the recess periods.

"The stunned attorneys thought, 'He knows more about the case than we do.'

"He could do things in one-tenth the time the average man takes, and he was a tireless worker, who would work at all hours of the night.

"Sometimes he'd get up at 2 or 3 a. m. to work; and on most days, he was up at 6. In Albany we always had breakfast at 7.

"He wrote all his opinions longhand himself.

"He had a keen, dry sense of humor. In his speaking to people, you couldn't detect it, but his personal writing showed it.

"Once when I was on vacation, in response to a letter I had written him about the game of golf, he suggested that I start a course in golf at St. John's, 'developing the law of the game, with practical illustrations.' "

Death of Sister a Blow.

The greatest blow in Justice Cardozo's life was the death of his older sister, Nellie, his devoted companion for years in the three-story brown brick house on West Seventy-fifth street, New York.

"He used to call her from Albany once a day, and he always wrote to her when he was away," Paley said.

"Life seemed pretty much an empty shell to Justice Cardozo after she died. He said, 'I'm just marking time.' "

When Cardozo retired from the Court of Appeals to accept appointment as a Supreme Court Justice, his senior associate, Judge Cuthbert W. Pound, delivered a tribute prized by the legal profession.

"Nothing has ever moved you to an unkind or hasty word," Judge Pound said. . . . "The rich storehouse of your unfailing memory has always been open to us.

"The bar knows with what earnestness of consideration, firmness of grasp, and force and grace of utterance you have made your power felt; with what evenness, courtesy and calmness you have presided over the sessions of the court.

"You were appointed (to the Supreme Court of the United States) neither for political nor geographical considerations, but in defiance of them," Judge Pound continued, "and because the whole country demanded the one man who could best carry on the great Holmes tradition of philosophic approach to modern American jurisprudence.

"Our loss is the gain of the high court to which you go."

"Belongs to Idaho as Much as New York," Said Borah.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Friends of Justice Benjamin Nathan Cardozo recalled today the occasion when his name first was proposed to President Hoover for membership on the Supreme Court.

The President was reported reluctant to appoint him, citing among other things that New York already was represented on the bench by Justices Hughes and Stone.

"Cardozo belongs to Idaho as much as to New York," Senator Borah (Rep.), Idaho, is reported to have told the President. Justice Stone said he would resign his own Justiceship if his presence stood in the way of Cardozo's appointment, the story goes.

Borah promised Hoover the Senate would confirm him unanimously if he were appointed, and it did.

Samples of Cardozo's Literary Style in Court Opinions.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Literary stylists admired the opinions of Justice Cardozo for their clarity and crisp expression. Here are some of his better-known paragraphs:

"Weasel words will not avail to defeat the triumph of intention when once the words are read in the setting of the whole transaction. . . . Rivulets in combination make up a stream of tendency that may attain engulfing power. . . . The disappointment of expectations and even the frustration of contracts may be a lawful exercise of power when expectation and contract are in conflict with the general welfare." From his opinion on the "gold bullion" case.

"At times the waves of causation will have radiated so far that their undulatory motion, if discernible at all, will be too faint or obscure, too broken by cross-currents, to be heeded by the law." In his dissent to opinion invalidating the Guffey Soft Coal Act.

"If voluntary bankruptcies are anathema for governmental units, municipalities and creditors have been caught in a vise from which it is impossible to let them out. . . . To hold that this purpose (aiding financially-distressed municipalities) must be thwarted by the courts because of a supposed affront to the dignity of a state, though the state disclaims the affront and is doing all it can to keep the law alive, is to make dignity a doubtful blessing." From his dissent to the invalidation of the Municipal Bankruptcy Act.

"Recklessness and deceit do not automatically excuse themselves by notice of repentance. . . . There will be only partial attainment of the ends of public justice unless retribution for the past is added to prevention for the future. . . . Shall the truth be shown forth or buried in the archives?" From his dissent to an opinion excusing a securities dealer from testifying before the Securities Commission.

Career of Justice Cardozo; on Bench Since 1913 and Placed on Supreme Court in 1932

Most of His Decisions Favored New Deal—A Lawyer's Lawyer—Noted for His "Singing Prose."

JUSTICE CARDOZO, who had been on the bench since 1913, became a national figure on his appointment to the United States Supreme Court, by President Hoover, Feb. 15, 1932.

Serving only a year under the Hoover administration, Justice Cardozo was confronted, early in the Roosevelt administration, with legal questions raised by assumption of broader presidential and Federal powers under the New Deal. More often than any other member of the Supreme Court, he upheld the statutes enacted in pursuance of New Deal aims.

In the court terms of 1934 to 1937, 27 Federal statutes favored by President Roosevelt were questioned in the Supreme Court. On 22 occasions Justice Cardozo sided with the administration. The other five cases found the court unanimous invalidating the N R A, the original farm moratorium, the home loan law, the refund of impounded taxes under the A A A and the dismissal by the chief executive of a Federal trade commissioner.

He dissented from six majority opinions, those against the Agricultural Adjustment Act and in the Guffey coal, railroad retirement, municipal bankruptcy, securities registration and "hot-oil" cases. In the oil case dissent he was alone.

Wrote Social Security Decision.

He wrote some majority opinions upholding New Deal enactments, notably the unemployment insurance and old age pension provisions of the Social Security Act. On the unemployment provisions, he said: "Congress may spend money in aid of the general welfare. There have been great statesmen in our history who stood for other views. We will not resurrect the contest, now settled by decision.

"The conception of the spending power advocated by Hamilton and strongly reinforced by Story has prevailed over that of Madison. Difficulties are left when the power is conceded. The line must still be drawn between one welfare and another, between particular and general. Where this shall be placed cannot be known through a formula in advance. There is a middle ground or penumbra, in which discretion is at large. The discretion is not confided to the courts, but to Congress.

"Nor is the concept of the general welfare static. Needs that were narrow or parochial a generation ago may be interwoven in our day with the well-being of the nation. What is critical or urgent changes with the times.

"Unemployment is an ill not particular, but general, which may be checked, if Congress so determines, by the resources of the nation. The hope behind this statute is to save men and women from the rigors of the poorhouse, as well as from the haunting fear that such a lot awaits them."

Two earlier utterances, made while he was a member of the New York Court of Appeals, have been quoted as showing his view of the law. These were:

"Rights and duties in systems of living law are not based upon quicksands," and "We are to beware of the insularity of mind that perceives in every inroad upon habit a catastrophic revolution."

On another occasion he said: "The great generalities of the Constitution have a content and significance that vary from age to age," while the statutes "are designed to meet the fugitive exigencies of the hour."

Cardozo on Nature of Law.

Of the origin and nature of law, he said: "Life casts the molds of conduct, which will some day become fixed as law. Law preserves the molds, which have taken form and shape from life. Few rules are so well established that they may not be called upon to justify their existence. If they do not function, they are diseased, and sometimes are cut out and extirpated; sometimes they are left with the shadow of continued life, but sterilized, truncated, impotent for harm."

In a Court of Appeals opinion in 1926, he refused to suppress evidence on a criminal charge, on the admitted ground that the evidence was obtained without a legally warranted search. He said the search was a trespass, and that the policeman who made it might be subject to discipline; but the State statutes placed no restriction on evidence, and Judge Cardozo held that their silence was a declaration of policy, indicating a purpose that "a criminal shall not go free because a constable has blundered."

"On the one side," he wrote, "is the social need that crime shall be repressed. On the other, the social need that law shall not be flouted by the insolence of office. There are dangers in any choice."

Known as Lawyer's Lawyer.

Benjamin Nathan Cardozo was born in New York City May 24, 1870, and was of mingled Jewish, Spanish and Portuguese lineage. He received his Bachelor of Arts degree at Columbia University in 1889, and his master's degree the following year, when he was 20 years old. A Columbia professor once praised his work in English composition as "the most powerful English written by any Columbia student since Alexander Hamilton."

Instead of going to law school, Cardozo read law, and in 1891 passed the New York bar examination. In practice, his analytical mind made him known as a "lawyers' lawyer," with appellate cases his special field.

An independent Democrat, he was named in 1913 on a Fusion ticket for the bench of the New York Supreme Court, a tribunal corresponding to the Circuit Court of most other states. In February, 1914, a month after his induction as Judge, he was advanced by Gov. Martin H. Glynn, a Democrat, to the State Court of Appeals, corresponding to the Supreme Court of most other states.

This action was taken by the Governor at the unanimous request of the Judges of the Court of Appeals, who had asked for the naming of additional Justices to clear the

'POLITICS,' DECLARES WOMAN PRISON HEAD

Mrs. Griesser Says Cruelty Story Was Revived Because She Backed Judge Douglas.

By the Associated Press.

JOPLIN, Mo., July 9.—Mrs. Kitty Sheppard Griesser, superintendent of the State Industrial School for Girls at Chillicothe, said in an interview here this afternoon that published charges against her that she had been cruel to inmates of the institution not only were false, but were "vicious political propaganda" and a part of a plot to embarrass Gov. Stark.

She declared that the charge is a backwash of the Billings-Douglas Supreme Court fight and that "it broke over my head after I voluntarily and openly started to campaign for Judge Douglas because he is my friend."

Mrs. Griesser stated that both the Juanita Bruton and Annabelle Dudley cases, which are the ones complained of, were fully investigated by the State Penal Board and the Attorney-General's office in April and that she was given a "clean bill of health."

It was only after she had begun campaigning for Judge Douglas, she said, and Bob Frith, a Chillicothe attorney, sent word to her that she would have to cease her efforts in Douglas' behalf that "all this trouble started."

Frith, she says, is campaign manager for Judge James V. Billings in Livingston County, and sent word to her that he would "run her out of Chillicothe and the State of Missouri" if she continued her efforts in behalf of Douglas. She said she defied Frith and that the Bruton and Dudley cases shortly thereafter were revived.

As to the published charge that Juanita Bruton had ben detained in a dungeon at the industrial home in March, Mrs. Griesser said that only last night the girl, still in the institution, made a written statement that she had not been mistreated.

Lawyer Denies Politics Prompted Charge Against Girls' School Head.

By the Associated Press.

CHILLICOTHE, Mo., July 9.—Bob Frith, Chillicothe attorney, said today Mrs. Kitty Sheppard Griesser, superintendent of the State Industrial School for Girls here, was "raising a smoke screen" in asserting the Douglas-Billings Supreme Court race had anything to do with charges of mistreating inmates of the home.

Frith, who was attorney for Annabelle Dudley, 18-year-old inmate removed from the home by Circuit Court order last April, denied he was Livingston County campaign manager for Judge James V. Billings or had threatened Mrs. Griesser if she continued to support Judge James Douglas.

"I never have had any conversation with Mrs. Griesser directly or indirectly," Frith said, "except for the five hours she was on the witness stand in the Dudley case.

"I am taking no active part in the Billings campaign, although I probably will support him. I do not even know who Billings' campaign manager here is. I presumed but did not know Mrs. Griesser would support Douglas. The Dudley case came up long before the Douglas-Billings contest."

Prison Board Inquiry Into Charge Girl Was Put in Dungeon.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 9.—The State Prison Board will investigate next week reports that Juanita Bruton, 16-year-old inmate from Mount Vernon, was placed in a dungeon at the Industrial Home for Girls at Chillicothe in March.

James E. Matthews, director of the Prison Board, she he had discussed the charge with Mrs. Kitty S. Griesser, superintendent of the home, but had not yet received her official report. Mrs. Griesser will return to Jefferson City early next week from her home in Joplin to confer with the Prison Board.

COMMENT ON DEATH OF JUSTICE CARDOZO

Associates of Supreme Court and Roosevelt Term Passing a Loss to Nation.

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Ok., July 9.—President Roosevelt said today the death of Justice Cardozo was a great shock.

Here for an address on his western tour, the President wrote with a pencil the statement:

"The news of the passing of Justice Cardozo came to me as a great personal shock. Years ago, when he was Chief Justice of the high court of New York, I learned to admire and to love him. He had a great soul. The whole nation has lost a constant friend."

The statement, written after he returned from speaking at the fairgrounds here, was read to reporters by one of his secretaries.

Justice Pierce Butler.

BALTIMORE, July 9.—Associate Justice Pierce Butler of the United States Supreme Court informed of Justice Cardozo's death, said:

"I greatly deplore his loss. He was a man of great learning and singular charm. The death of Justice Cardozo is a serious loss to the judicial service of the country."

Justice Owen J. Roberts.

PHOENIXVILLE, Pa., July 9.—Associate Justice Owen J. Roberts of the United States Supreme Court said tonight the death of Justice Cardozo "is a great loss to the Court and to the Country."

"His life was one of complete devotion to the public service. His personal life should be an example to every American. His passing is a terrible shock to me."

Justice Stanley Reed.

NANTUCKET, Mass., July 9.—Justice Stanley Reed of the United States Supreme Court said tonight he was deeply grieved by the death of Justice Cardozo:

"Justice Cardozo's death is a great loss to the American people. As much as any other man ever did, he epitomized in his personality all that we expect from the just Judge."

Justice Hugo L. Black.

DENVER, Colo., July 10.—Justice Hugo L. Black, vacationing in the Colorado Rockies with his family, said Justice Cardozo's death "is an irreparable loss to the nation." "I believe," he added, "that as a jurist he has had few equals and no superiors on our Supreme Court."

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Justice Cardozo's death brought the following comments from official Washington last night:

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace: A most cultured mind, a precise and elegant stylist and a profound student of modern social trends has left us. His service has been altogether unique in a critical period of our history. We have lost a distinguished student of the law and a genuine friend of man.

Senator Ashurst (Dem.), Arizona: Justice Cardozo was one of the greatest jurists and one of the most authentic scholars our country ever produced. His death is a national loss.

Attorney General Cummings: I am deeply distressed to learn of the death of Mr. Justice Cardozo. He was a great judge and a great man. It is a loss to the bench that cannot be repaired.

U.S. GRAND JURY CALLS FIVE MORE OIL MEN

Two Subpenaed Are St. Louisans; Two More Companies Also Added to List.

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., July 9.—Oil firms and individual employes under call to appear before a Federal grand jury which convenes here next Tuesday were increased to 22 today with the filing of subpenas for two companies and five individuals in the United States District Court.

Herbert C. Hale, court clerk, said he had been notified subpenas were served on the Tidewater Associated Oil Co. and the Texas Co., both of New York; R. D. Ebbert and P. E. Lakin, both of the Shell Petroleum Co., St. Louis; W. F. McDermott of New York; J. W. Carnes of the Consolidated Oil Corporation, New York, and R. G. A. Van der Woude, of the Shell Union Oil Corporation New York.

Five oil companies and 10 individuals associated with oil firms were subpenaed earlier this week.

It was announced in Washington the grand jury would be asked to investigate the general oil situation in the Middle West.

Hale said the grand jury would consider a "variety of cases" and it was not known definitely when the oil firms and employes would be called to testify.

Government Attorney John Henry Lewin said in Washington that the hearing would start July 20.

court's calendar. The Governor hesitated, because of Cardozo's juniority and the claims of others ranking him in service, on the lower court bench, but yielded to the request of the Justices.

Succeeded Samuel W. Seabury.

In 1917 Gov. Charles S. Whitman, a Republican, made him a permanent member of the Court of Appeals in succession to Samuel W. Seabury, who had resigned to run for Governor. In the fall of 1926 Judge Cardozo was nominated by both major parties for Chief Judge, and was elected for a full term of 14 years.

This would have brought his service at Albany to 1940, when, at 70, he would have been eligible for retirement. His appointment to the Supreme Court by President Hoover, in 1932, transferred him to Washington.

Justice Cardozo was a bachelor and was often described as "monkish" in his habits. He arose regularly at 6 a. m., was at his desk by 7:30 a. m. and seldom quit before 10:30 o'clock at night. Not all these hours were given over to legal labors, for he found recreation there in reading Greek, Latin, history and philosophy.

Once his Albany colleagues decided he needed more exercise than was afforded by his short walks from his hotel room to the court, and told him to play golf. He tried the game for a week, then went back to his books.

Famous for "Singing Prose."

Justice Cardozo was famous for the "singing prose" in which his comments and decisions were phrased, and for the clarity of his writings on jurisprudence. Titles of some of these were, "The Nature of the Judicial Process," "The Growth of the Law" and "Paradoxes of Legal Science." He once said:

"I have made myself the self-appointed spokesman and defender of the philosopher in the field of law. I am not, however, concerned to vindicate philosophy, either in jurisprudence or outside of it, as an inquiry of cultural value or of speculative interest. My concern is with the relationship of philosophy to life.

"You may think perhaps of philosophy as dwelling in the clouds. I hope you may see that she is able to descend to the earth."

Gentle Courtesy on Bench.

He read his opinions in a rather high-pitched voice, a thin smile usually on his face. Possessing a tremendous capacity for work, despite a somewhat frail physique, he indited more than his proportional share of the Supreme Court's opinions.

His manner on the bench was one of gentle courtesy, especially when he questioned counsel. His inquiries, however, frequently brought out points inadvertently, or deliberately, concealed by the arguer.

By many he was regarded as the court's outstanding authority on common law.

On his sixtieth birthday Justice Cardozo received many tributes. Henry U. Sims, then president of the American Bar Association, said:

"Probably no one has contributed as much as Judge Cardozo, unless it be Dean Roscoe Pound, toward clarifying for the legal world the function of the judge in shaping and developing the law."

In 1931 he received a Roosevelt medal. Honorary doctorates in law were conferred on him by Columbia, Yale, New York University, the University of Michigan, Harvard, and St. John's College, Brooklyn.

County Retailers' Political Rally.

The St. Louis County Retailers' Association will hold an outdoor political meeting tomorrow night at 8 o'clock at 3725 Jennings road, Pine Lawn, G. H. Foree, president of the association, announced yesterday. All candidates for United States Senator and Congressman from the Twelfth District have been invited to speak at the meeting, which will be open to the public.

Text of Roosevelt Speech

By the Associated Press.

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 9.—The prepared text of President Roosevelt's address here today follows:

Oklahoma will always have a certain distinction in my memory, for it is the only part of the 48 states which bore a different name when, as a small boy, I started to study geography. I am fortunate in being able to remember it as Indian Territory and to remember also the enormous interest in every part of the country when the prospective settlers lined up at the borders and, at the sound of a bugle, rushed forward to establish new homes and new communities in this delightful part of the country.

Since those days you good people have gone far. A splendid future lies before you, and you can rest assured that your national Government knows very definitely that you are on the map.

During the past 10 or 15 years, when I was Governor of New York and even before that, I specialized in the study of natural resources.

Oklahoma is natural resources conscious, and I am glad that Oklahoma also appreciates so well that natural resources are national resources and that, in their conserving and development, all of us have to make our plans from the national point of view.

Slowly but surely we are developing a national policy in regard to the oil resources of the nation, and your Governor has given great assistance toward that end.

Grand River Dam Project.

Probably the most important long range problem is the use of land and water. It affects all of us in country and city. I was sorry that I could not have stopped this morning to view the Grand River Dam project.

It was due to the persistent effort of my old friends, Senator Thomas and Senator Lee, that the appropriation bill of 1935 was amended, with the result that the Grand River Dam project is definitely under way. I take the Grand River project as an illustration.

That project is a good illustration of the national aspect of water control, for it is a vital link in the still larger problem of the whole of the valley of the Arkansas, a planning task—and some people laugh at planned projects—that starts in the Rocky Mountains, west of the Royal Gorge, and runs on down through Colorado and Kansas and Oklahoma and Arkansas to the Mississippi River and thence to the sea. The day will come when every drop of water that flows into the great watershed, through all those states, will be controlled for the benefit of mankind—for the growing of forests, for the prevention of soil erosion, for the irrigation of land, for the development of power, for the ending of floods and for the improvement of navigation.

Such a vision will be of direct benefit to millions of our people, and the price paid for it will be returned many times. The same thing applies to the Red River and to the tributaries which flow into other streams.

Jobs and Improvements.

In a similar way, the Federal Government is using the fact of unemployment and the necessity for giving help to many of our people, in order to assist communities in the erection of much-needed public improvements. This is true of the work of many agencies of the Government, especially the Public Works Administration and the Works Progress Administration.

Senator Thomas has been of enormous help to me and to the administration in keeping me advised as to the needs of this State and to how we in Washington can help meet them.

For example, I am told by Senator Thomas that the Works Progress Program in Oklahoma is leaving permanent monuments all over the State, and that in the matter of new or improved school houses alone this State, in co-operation with W P A, has made a greater record than any other state in the Union.

It is essential, of course, that, if the national policies of the national administration are to be carried forward, there must be a general agreement on those policies by those who are responsible for the legislation which makes them possible.

Two weeks ago, in speaking over a national-hook-up, I referred to that fact—to the fact that the nation is living today under a Government which is essentially liberal and nationally thinking in its outlook—a Government which is progressively bettering economic and social conditions.

I explained why, if the people want that kind of Government to continue, they should choose officials to represent that point of view—and that, if the people want to go back to the school of thought of the unfortunate twenties, they should choose people with a conservative outlook.

And I suggested also that it is always a good thing to look beyond and beneath the surface of things and into men's hearts.

Do they really mean what they say—or are they the kind that profess great devotion to the cause of bettering the lot of their fellowmen, and, when the time for action comes, find all kinds of reasons why they cannot support the action proposed? I refer to such people as "Yes, but-people."

Of course, some are not even "yes, but—people," for I notive that one of the candidates on the Democratic State ticket this year is nationally known as a Republican.

In the same way we find others who seek office, sincerely or otherwise, on perfectly impossible pledges and platforms, people with panaceas for reforming the world overnight—people who are not practical in an age which must be both practical and progressive. Theodore Roosevelt was perhaps a bit rough when he referred to such people as "the lunatic fringe." Strictly speaking they are not lunatics, but in many cases a little push would shove them over the line.

"My Brother's Keeper."

During these past six years the people of this nation have definitely said "yes" with no "but" on it to the old Biblical question—"Am I my brother's keeper?" In these six years I sense a growing devotion to the teaching of the Scriptures, to the quickening of religion, to a greater willingness on the part of the individual to help his neighbor and to live less unto and for himself alone.

It is this spirit, my friends, that your national government seeks to carry on its task. It is in this spirit that, in the consideration of every new problem, our first question is "What makes for the greatest good of the greatest number?"

America needs a government of constant progress along liberal lines. America requires that this progress be sane and honest. America calls for government with a soul.

KANSAS CITY NIGHT CLUBS BLOCK LIQUOR HEARINGS

Get Injunction From Judge Sevier, Alleging State Law Is Unconstitutional.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 9.—Circuit Judge Nike G. Sevier granted temporary injunctions today forbidding E. J. McMahon, State Liquor Control Supervisor, to hold hearings against eight Kansas City night club operators Monday on gambling charges. Judge Sevier set a hearing on permanent injunctions for Oct. 3.

The petitions charged that the notices for the hearings were "indefinite and uncertain" and that the State Liquor Control Act is unconstitutional. The latter charge was based on an allegation that the act provides for no judicial review and gives the supervisor a "roving commission" to determine grounds for revocation and suspension of licenses.

In the Circuit Court at Kansas City 47 tavern keepers today asked for an injunction under which they could remain open on Sunday to sell 3.2 beer.

AUSTRIANS REARRESTED AFTER CRITICISING NAZI OFFICIALS

KITZBUEHEL, Germany, July 9.—Several followers of Kurt Schuschnigg, former Austrian Chancellor, were released from jail today, rearrested a few minutes later, and sent to a concentration camp.

The prisoners, who had been held since March, made the mistake of celebrating their release with their wives in the prison court yard and making derogatory remarks about the Nazi administration. The number of the prisoners was not disclosed.

WALLS OF BUNGALOWS BEING BUILT, SMEARED WITH TAR

Damage to Each Estimated by Builder at $1000; He Suspects Racketeers.

Interior and exterior walls of two duplex bungalows under construction in the 700 block of Cumberland drive, Lemay, were smeared with tar Friday night, the builder, Alphonse De Mervelle, 7127A South Broadway, reported to police yesterday. Damage to each building was estimated at $1000.

De Mervelle's contractor, William Wideman, told a Post-Dispatch reporter a man who identified himself as "with the building trades" demanded $25 from him several months ago, saying "we're not getting along so well." The money was not paid, Wideman said. He does not employ union labor, he said.

De Mervelle expressed the opinion the vandalism was the work of racketeers. The brick bungalows, nearing completion, are at 737-39 and 738-40 Cumberland drive.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Jay Sa uel Hartt, a consulting engineer Madison, Wis., testified before t Securities and Exchange Comm sion this morning that the Utiliti Power & Light Corporation, a ho ing trust, has investments in thr Missouri corporations, its subsidi ries, with an aggregate adjust value of $7,375,000. These he nam as the Laclede Gas Light Co., $ 500,000; the Laclede Power & Lig Co., $3,250,000, and the Misso Natural Gas Co., $625,000.

The Utilities Power & Light C poration is under reorganization the Federal courts according section 77B of the national ba ruptcy act. Its trustee is Char True Adams, a Chicago lawy Hartt is an employe of the trust An application to fix the enginee interim fees at $3800 a month recently reduced by the S E C $2500.

Wants to Spend $12,000,000.

The hearing, which began Thu day and will continue next we is on an application by the Utili Power & Light Corporation and wholly owned subsidiary, Utili Power & Light, Ltd., to dispose $12,000,000 in one of several wa Adams, the principal witness t far, testified that the holding c pany and its subsidiary, though former is in the bankruptcy cou have on hand in cash bank depo $19,000,000, which, through sales other realizations, is likely, in the near future, to mount as high as $24,500,000.

Of the $19,000,000, Adams sa $3,000,000 belongs to the hold company and $16,000,000 to Limited company. These bank posits, he added, are earning no terest. A total of $2,400,000 is by St. Louis banks, according the witness, as follows: Boatm National Bank, $1,000,000; Mer tile Commerce Bank & Trust $500,000; First National Bank, $ 000, and Mississippi Valley T Co., $400,000.

The application was originally permission to dispose of $3,000 but recently has been amende as to increase the sum to $12, 000. Adams and other witnesse scribed five methods for using idle capital, of which they re mended the fifth. These are t vest the money in outside securi largely those of the Governm distribute the funds pro rata am debenture holders and creditors reduce the debts of subsidiaries cluding those in Missouri, by chasing their securities at a count; to spend the money in provement of physical proper and to use it to purchase de tures of the Utilities Power & L Corporation at a substantial count from their face value.

Proposes to Extend Bonds.

Opposing the proposal to em the surplus cash for purchasin curities of its subsidiaries, Ad said that some of these compa needed no money, while "the that need it and could use it relatively few and are in suc nancial condition that the m could not safely be advance them."

The trustee admitted that th clede Gas Light Co. had matur of $20,000,000 due April 1, 1939. this amount is owed to publi vestors, the other half is ple under a debenture issue. Bu witness maintained that "La Gas needs no money from ou sources except short term from banks, unless it propos invest in pipe lines, which t mind would be wholly unwise.

Asked what would be done the April maturieies, Adams clared that "the bonds will ha be extended once more, from to five years."

The trustee's argument in of using the money to purchase ities Power & Light Corporatio bentures is that the holding pany has minimum assets of 000,000, as against debtor clai $59,000,000; that with $12,000,0 would be possible to buy $17,0 of its debentures at 70; and with this reduction of its deb Federal courts could scarcely the Utilities corporation to solvent. HOLDING COMPANY STAKE IN LACLEDE FIRMS DISCLOSED

SEC Witness Testifies Utilities Power & Light Has $7,375,000 in 3 Missouri Companies.

Trustee Would Use $12,000,000 Cash to Speed Reorganization Under Bankruptcy Act.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
201-205 Kellogg Bldg.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Jay Samuel Hartt, a consulting engineer of Madison, Wis., testified before the Securities and Exchange Commission this morning that the Utilities Power & Light Corporation, a holding trust, has investments in three Missouri corporations, its subsidiaries, with an aggregate adjusted value of $7,375,000. These he named as the Laclede Gas Light Co., $3,500,000; the Laclede Power & Light Co., $3,250,000, and the Missouri Natural Gas Co., $625,000.

The Utilities Power & Light Corporation is under reorganization in the Federal courts according to section 77B of the national bankruptcy act. Its trustee is Charles True Adams, a Chicago lawyer. Hartt is an employe of the trustee. An application to fix the engineer's interim fees at $3800 a month was recently reduced by the S E C to $2500.

Wants to Spend $12,000,000.

The hearing, which began Thursday and will continue next week, is on an application by the Utilities Power & Light Corporation and its wholly owned subsidiary, Utilities Power & Light, Ltd., to dispose of $12,000,000 in one of several ways. Adams, the principal witness thus far, testified that the holding company and its subsidiary, though the former is in the bankruptcy courts, have on hand in cash bank deposits $19,000,000, which, through sales and other realizations, is likely, in the near future, to mount as high as $24,500,000.

Of the $19,000,000, Adams says, $3,000,000 belongs to the holding company and $16,000,000 to the Limited company. These bank deposits, he added, are earning no interest. A total of $2,400,000 is held by St. Louis banks, according to the witness, as follows: Boatmen's National Bank, $1,000,000; Mercantile Commerce Bank & Trust Co., $500,000; First National Bank, $500,000, and Mississippi Valley Trust Co., $400,000.

The application was originally for permission to dispose of $3,000,000, but recently has been amended so as to increase the sum to $12,000,000. Adams and other witnesses described five methods for using the idle capital, of which they recommended the fifth. These are to invest the money in outside securities, largely those of the Government; distribute the funds pro rata among debenture holders and creditors; to reduce the debts of subsidiaries, including those in Missouri, by purchasing their securities at a discount; to spend the money in improvement of physical properties; and to use it to purchase debentures of the Utilities Power & Light Corporation at a substantial discount from their face value.

Proposes to Extend Bonds.

Opposing the proposal to employ the surplus cash for purchasing securities of its subsidiaries, Adams said that some of these companies needed no money, while "the ones that need it and could use it are relatively few and are in such financial condition that the money could not safely be advanced to them."

The trustee admitted that the Laclede Gas Light Co. had maturities of $20,000,000 due April 1, 1939. Half this amount is owed to public investors, the other half is pledged under a debenture issue. But the witness maintained that "Laclede Gas needs no money from outside sources except short term loans from banks, unless it proposes to invest in pipe lines, which to my mind would be wholly unwise."

Asked what would be done about the April maturieies, Adams declared that "the bonds will have to be extended once more, from three to five years."

The trustee's argument in favor of using the money to purchase Utilities Power & Light Corporation debentures is that the holding company has minimum assets of $55,000,000, as against debtor claims of $59,000,000; that with $12,000,000 it would be possible to buy $17,000,000 of its debentures at 70; and that with this reduction of its debt, the Federal courts could scarcely hold the Utilities corporation to be insolvent. Then, the witness argued, one of the two pending plans of reorganization would be authorized, and liquidation averted. He added that such a purchase of debentures would retire $1,700,000 of interest.

Permission to intervene in the proceedings was granted to the Atlas Corporation, a creditor of Utilities Power and Light; several organizations of security owners, including the General Protective Committee for security holders of the Utilities Power and Light Corporation; the Associated Investing Corporation and the Public Utilities Corporation; as well as an individual owner, Grace Stein Weigle, said to own 100 shares of preferred stock.

Attorneys for the Atlas Corporation indorse the Adams plan for disposing of the holding company's idle cash, while those for security holders in general oppose it, some going so far as to file motions for dismissing the application. They objected that the proposal is against the law and public policy. The trial examiner presiding over the hearings is Richard Townsend. The S E C attorneys are Francis S. Baldy and Abe Fortas.

ST. CLAIR COUNTY OFFICIAL TO FIGHT PRIVATE BOND SALE

Finance Committee Head to Demand Public Bidding on Hospital Financing.

When the St. Clair County Board of Supervisors meets Aug. 6, a demand will be made by John Rogers of East St. Louis, chairman of its finance committee, that bonds for a proposed county tuberculosis sanitarium be sold to the highest bidder, not at private sale. Rogers, who announced this purpose yesterday, was the only board member opposing the recent private sale to H. C. Speer & Sons of Chicago of county bonds for about $3,000,000 for a Mississippi River toll bridge.

Under Illinois law, private sales are permissible. The finance committee, which will meet Tuesday with the County Sanitarium Board to prepare recommendations for the supervisors, will propose bonds maturing over a period of eight years, bearing interest of not more than 3¼ per cent, Rogers announced yesterday. A tax of 15 cents on the $100 valuation to support the bonds was authorized at an election two years ago.

Cost of the sanitarium is estimated at $350,000. A P W A grant for 45 per cent of the cost will be sought and bonds will be issued to cover the balance. The 100-bed structure will be erected on a 40-acre site near U. S. Highway No. 50 and Bunkum road, Fairview.

GRANITE CITY CO. CUTS PRICE OF ROLLED STEEL

Orders $5 a Ton Reduction in Addition to One of $3 Previously, to Meet Competition.

The Granite City Steel Co. has cut the price of rolled steel about $5 a ton to meet competition following price cuts recently ordered by Big Steel when it abandoned what was known as the basing point system. The local company's cut is retroactive to June 24.

Nathaniel Randolph, vice-president and general sales manager of the company, said that about 18 months ago it had dropped the Chicago base, whereby prices were fixed the same as those in Chicago plus freight to St. Louis. The new prices, as those adopted at that time, are f. o. b. Granite City.

They are: Hot rolled sheets, $45 a ton; cold rolled sheets, $66 a ton, and galvanized sheets, $72 a ton, a drop of $8 from the price at the beginning of the year, which had, however, been cut $3 a ton in the spring.

The next step in the patent litigation will be the accounting reports before Master in Chancery Allen. After considering them he wil make his findings to the United States District Court at Springfield, Ill. Attorneys may then file exceptions, on which hearings will be held.

The District Court's final judgment may be appealed to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals. The final avenue of appeal is an application for a writ of certiorari to the United States Supreme Court.

PATRICK SCANLON GIVES UP DRIVER'S LICENSE 6 MONTHS

Ex-Convict, Found Guilty, Accepts Police Judge's Offer to Remit Fines.

Patrick Scanlon, ex-convict and former Hogan gangster, found guilty in Police Court yesterday of driving carelessly and failing to keep to the right, accepted Judge Edward M. Ruddy's offer to remit fines totaling $110 on Scanlon's surrender of his driver's license for six months. A charge of driving when intoxicated was dismissed after policemen testified Scanlon was not drunk when arrested.

He was arrested June 9 at Natural Bridge and Clay avenues after his automobile sideswiped another machine then struck a car occupied by Mr. and Mrs. John Kappel Jr. of Normandy. At that time he gave his address as 4026A North Newstead avenue. He received a pardon from Gov. Guy B. Park in 1935 after he had served part of a five-year sentence for participation in the $34,700 robbery of the Mound City Trust Co. in 1925.

Lee Ross, a contractor, 1137 Moorlands drive, was fined $160 for driving when intoxicated, driving carelessly and failing to keep to the right. The charges grew out of a collision between his automobile and another on June 7 in the 4200 block of Delmar boulevard. Under questioning by Judge Ruddy he testified he had had eight or 10 highballs before the collision.

20 ARRESTED AS SPEEDERS BY EXPRESS HIGHWAY PATROL

Twenty motorists were arrested yesterday afternoon in the beginning of the new permanent patrol to enforce the 45-mile-an-hour speed limit on the express highway. The first arrest was made shortly after the patrol of 10 motorcycle policemen went on duty at 11:30 a. m.

All of those arrested were booked on speeding charges, one accused of driving 70 miles an hour and several others in excess of 60 miles an hour. Twelve were arrested in the west part of the three-mile stretch of highway, extending from Vandeventer avenue to Skinker boulevard, and were booked at the Hampton Avenue Station. The others, arrested east of Kingshighway, were booked at the Newstead Avenue Station.

The patrol will make arrests also for careless driving and for operating trucks on the highway, and tickets will be given to motorists obstructing traffic by driving slowly in the center of the roadway, passing cars on the right and driving on the wrong side of the center stripe.

ROBBER CAPTURED BY STREET CAR MAN

Second Negro Youth Is Fired On and Is Arrested Later.

A street-car motorman armed with a pistol captured one of two young Negro holdup men in the 3900 block of Enright avenue early yesterday and fired three shots at the second youth, who was arrested later.

William Stierman was operating his owl car from the Hodiamont right-of-way into Enright avenue at 1:30 o'clock when the trolley was jerked off the wire. Stierman, who has been carrying a pistol since he was robbed last month, got out and was met by the two Negroes. One said, "This is a stickup." The motorman, noting that the Negroes displayed no weapons, drew his pistol and ordered them to hold up their hands. One obeyed, but the second ran and Stierman fired at him without effect.

Police booked the youth whom Stierman captured as Booker Atkins, 17 years old, 104 South Twenty-second street. He said he had parked a stolen automobile in the 3900 block of Enright avenue before making the attempt to hold up the motorman. Officers returned to the scene and arrested the second Negro, who was leaving in the machine. Unable to drive, he had asked a Negro whom he met on the street to operate the car. He said he was Emmett Wetter, 18, 2732 Dayton street.

Police said the Negroes admitted stealing the automobile from Twenty-third and Pine streets Friday night.

Stierman was held up on his car June 13 by a Negro armed with a knife, who fled with $36 in cash and tokens.

$282 Stolen at Hotel When Two Men Chase Robber.

William Phillips and James Elrod, employes of the Washington Hotel, Kingshighway and Washington boulevard, reported to police that $282 was stolen from the cash drawer of the hotel when they were chasing a holdup man early yesterday.

Phillips, elevator operator, said he was sitting in the lobby at 2:20 o'clock when a man entered carrying an object concealed under a handkerchief and ordered him to hold up his hands. When he obeyed his hand struck the object, a monkey wrench, Phillips reported.

He grappled with the intruder, who broke away and ran outside with Phillips and Elrod, the night clerk, chasing him. After a sprint east in Washington boulevard the man outdistanced them. When the employes returned to the lobby, the money was missing from the cash drawer, they said.

MAN ENDS LIFE IN LEAP OUT HOSPITAL WINDOW

Winston E. Bryant Had Failed to Kill Self by Cutting Wrist.

Winston E. Bryant, a clerk, ended his life yesterday morning by jumping from a fourth-floor window at the City Hospital. His body was impaled on an iron picket fence on Fourteenth street.

Bryant, 29 years old, was taken to the hospital Friday after he had cut his left wrist with a razor in his room at 2028 Nicholson place. Bryant's wife divorced him last month and remarried. He had discussed with her present husband adoption of his two-year-old son.

None of the 30 patients in the ward with Bryant haw sim leave his bed and jump from the window. He had told police Friday, in explanation of his cut wrist, that he had "personal problems."

UNION TO RESUME DRIVE ON DONNELLY DRESS FIRM

Injunction Against Picketing Lifted, Regional Director Will Return to Kansas City.

By the Associated Press.

MADISON, Wis., July 9.—Meyer Perlstein, regional director of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, said today he would be back in Kansas City Monday morning to direct a drive for unionization of employes of the Donnelly Garment Co.

Perlstein, who came to Madison as guest speaker at the University of Wisconsin's school for workers, said he would leave tomorrow. Meanwhile, he added, he would attempt ot confer by telephone with David Dubinsky, president of the I. L. G. W. U., in New York.

Perlstein said the dismissal by United States District Judge John Caskie Collet of a temporary injunction against picketing would permit resumption of a two-fold organization and publicity program which was under way when the injunction was granted.

"We will start immediately where we left off," he said.

EFFORTS TO SETTLE MEXICO'S OIL SEIZURE

State Department Said to Expect Expropriated Firms to Accept Terms.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Persons close to the State Department predicted today that the controversy over Mexico's seizure of American-owned oil properties would be settled within a matter of weeks.

In a speech this week before the University of Virginia Institute of Public Affairs, Maj. T. R. Armstrong, representative of the Standard Oil Co. in its discussions with the State Department, proposed two solutions. One was that the dispute be submitted to the International Court at The Hague, the other that a committee composed of an American, a British and a Mexican be appointed to manage the oil properties confiscated by the Mexican Government.

The State Department is distinctly opposed to arbitration by The Hague court. It takes the view that much trouble would be caused in Mexico before the issue could be settled by The Hague.

The oil companies are discussing the proposals of Mexican President Cardenas. These have never been made public, but it is thought that they are based on the proposition set forth by Cardenas at a press conference. Cardenas suggested in this conference that he turn over to the foreign oil companies, American, British and Dutch, 60 per cent of the oil produced by the expropriated wells. The companies could sell the oil abroad, he said, and in 10 or 15 years retire the principal of their investment. He did not say whether he would turn over the oil without charge or at cost of production.

Retirement of principal on this basis would be at a very low rate if the valuation fixed informally by the oil companies themselves were accepted. This is around $425,000,000 to $440,000,000.

At the State Department a much smaller valuation is favored. The department leans more toward an informal Mexican valuation of $45,000,000.

It is thought here that the American oil companies are paying increasing attention to the advice the State Department has given them. This is, in effect: "Do not underestimate the strength of a revolution.' The' companies had thought that the Mexican Government, finding itself without foreign markets for its oil, would collapse as a result of economic unrest or would capitulate to the companies. The State Department thinks that the Cardenas Government is in reality an economic revolutionary government.

MAN ADMITS SENDING $500 EXTORTION NOTE

Emil Schulz Tries to Plead Guilty, but Not Guilty Plea Is Entered.

Emil Schulz, 66-year-old tailor, admitted yesterday that he sent a threatening letter through the mail in a plot to extort $500, Assistant United States Attorney Henry G. Morris told reporters.

Schulz, against whom a Federal warrant was issued Friday, sought to plead guilty when taken before United States Commissioner John A. Burke for arraignment, Morris said. A plea of not guilty was entered for him by his attorney and he was released on $5000 bond signed by two friends pending a preliminary hearing July 21.

Morris said Schulz told questioners he sent an extortion letter to Martin Arhelger, superintendent of building for the Public Service Co., who was instrumental in having him fired from a job of church janitor in 1934. Schulz explained he was beset by collectors and in need of funds, Morris said.

Arhelger received a letter June 23 threatening death to himself and family "by poisoned darts" unless $500 was paid. Arhelger, who notified Federal authorities, followed directions received by telephone and in notes left on South St. Louis street corners, and deposited a dummy package, sewed in the sleeve of a coat, in Gravois Park.

No one called for the coat and he was subsequently instructed to place it on a cloth in an alley. Federal agents discovered that a cord attached to the cloth led to the yard back of Schulz's home at 3621 Arkansas avenue.

SWEDISH CROWN PRINCE TO BE AT HARVARD TOMORROW

Partly Recovered From Kidney Ailment, He Joins Princess Louise on Trip to Boston.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 9. — Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden and the Crown Princess Louise went to Boston today.

The Prince appeared practically recovered from the kidney ailment which forced him to spend a week in a hospital.

He will go to Cambridge, Mass., Monday to receive an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from Harvard University. Thence he will leave for Washington, where he will arrive on July 13, en route to Chicago.

Although his physical condition made it necessary to keep his plans on a tentative basis, Prince Gustaf said he hoped to go on from Chicago to Minneapolis and St. Paul, arriving back in New York on July 19. Due to a change in his itinerary, he will not visit Rochester, N. Y., or Detroit.

MAN AND WIFE SHOT TO DEATH

Moline (Ill.) Coroner Investigates Story of Murder and Suicide.

By the Associated Press.

MOLINE, Ill., July 9.—Mr. and Mrs. Rene Van Hulle, 24 and 23 years old, respectively, are dead today in what police were informed was a murder and suicide. Police were told that the husband became enraged because his wife, who was employed nights at a rubber company in Rock Island, came home in an automobile with another man.

When she entered the house, police were told, the husband shot her and then turned the revolver on himself. Coroner J. W. Seids said he was conducting an investigation.

M'KITTRICK DEFENDS LETTING OF STATE PAPER CONTRACT

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 9.—No basis exists for the complaint of the State Paper Contract Committee of the Missouri Wholesale Paper Jobbers' Association that the Graham Paper Co. of St. Louis, recent winner of the State contract, was not the lowest bidder, Attorney-General Roy McKittrick said today.

Following the award of the contract to the Graham Co. on its bid of $75,358 on June 27, McKittrick said he examined all bids received by the State Printing Commission and found no support for the dealers' statement that two other bidders submitted lower figures. Gov. Stark also had the bids examined by an auditor before the letting, in view of complaints that the Graham Co., which has received the contract for more than 20 years, had been favored in the past.

The dealers, in a telegram to Gov. Stark yesterday, asked that a committee to investigate this year's bids be appointed and that Attorney-General McKittrick be instructed to order the Board of Printing Commissioners to place no orders under the contract. Another telegram to McKittrick asked him to investigate.

Gov. Stark left Jefferson City yesterday and will not return until Monday.

NAVY ORDERS ROSENDAHL, DIRIGIBLE EXPERT, TO SEA

Keeps Him in Line for Command of New $3,000,000 Lighter-Than-Air Craft, However.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Commander Charles E. Rosendahl, the Navy's outstanding expert on lighter-than-air craft, was ordered to warship duty today. He was kept in line, however, for command of the new $3,000,000 naval dirigible when it is completed two and a half years hence.

The Navy's order directed his transfer in August from command of the Lakehurst (N. J.) air staton to the Cruiser Milwaukee as executive officer.

To remain eligible for promotion, an aviation or other naval officer must alternate sea duty with shore duty, and officials said it was possible Rosendahl himself had asked for the assignment.

Work is expected to start in a few months on the new dirigible, the first to be undertaken since the building of the Akron and Macon, both of which were destroyed. At President Roosevelt's request, Congress provided $500,000 last month for a start on the new ship.

UNITED CHARITIES COLLECTS 96 PCT. OF TOTAL 1937 PLEDGE

Collections of the $2,127,700 pledged in the 1937 United Charities campaign have amounted to 96 per cent, or $2,041,800, Oliver F. Richards, president of the organization, announced yesterday.

The payments are higher than the average for the last five years, and are better than the national average last year for 97 community chest drives in other cities of the country, which was 94.5 per cent.

The rate of payment of pledges in St. Louis has shown an upward trend since the 1933 campaign, when 93 per cent of the $2,372,000 pledged was collected. The rate for other years was 95 per cent in 1934, 94 per cent in 1935 and 95 per cent in 1936. The national average during the last 10 years is almost 95 per cent, as shown in a report of Community Chests and Councils, Inc., a national organization of which the St. Louis United Charities is a member.

1000 CORPORATIONS OWNED BY 4,000,000

Survey Shows Another 8,000,000 Persons Hold Stock in U. S. Concerns.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 9.—More persons than ever before own the stock of the leading American corporations. This is the conclusion of a survey to be published in next Monday's issue of Barron's, national financial weekly, and prepared by L. C. Duncan.

"Who Owns the 1000 Leading Corporations?" is the title of the article. The 1000 corporations selected include most of those listed on the New York Stock Exchange, and those listed and traded on the Curb Exchange. They reported a total of more than 12,000,000 holders of common stock. Many investors hold stock in more than one company; on the other hand, companies have large numbers of employe stockholders, many of whom have no other stock holding. Duncan's estimate is that approximately 4,000,000 individuals hold stock in the 1000 leading companies.

The increase in distribution of stock holdings since 1930, as shown by comparative charts, has been more rapid than in the speculative period from 1925 to 1929. There have been increases in the number of stockholders of industrial companies, particularly in the chemical and paper industries. Railroads have shown a decreased investment appeal since 1923. The number of utility shareholders has increased, but at a slackening rate. It is stated, however, that utilities have more than one-half again as many stockholders as in 1929. A more speculative bent is shown by wider ownership in small companies, and stockholder gains of "prince-and pauper" industries, such as iron-steel and heavy equipment.

BRITISH ENVOYS TO BERLIN AND PARIS BACK IN LONDON

Expected to Report to Premier on Czechoslovak Difficulties and Spanish War.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 9.—Sir Eric Phipps, British Ambassador to France, and Sir Neville Henderson British Ambassador to Germany, returned today for consultations with the Foreign Office.

Their arrival, officially on leave from their posts, coincided with effort to gain approval by the warring factions in Spain of the nonintervention plan to withdraw foreign troops from the civil war.

It was thought they would report to Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain on two European obstacles to peace—the Spanish war and the Czechoslovak minority difficulty.

CLEVELAND, July 9.—For the second straight day the Browns forced the Cleveland Indians to travel 10 innings here this afternoon, but all Gabby Street's men had to show was another one-run defeat, their second in the series which will be concluded this afternoon.

The victory, credited to young Johnny Humphries, who was called upon to relieve the faltering Bob Feller in the eighth inning with the bases full, kept the Indians in first place in the American League standing and one full game ahead of the Yankees, who defeated the Red Sox.

Ken Keltner, the Indians' rookie third baseman, wrought most of the damage. He drove in four runs—with a homer in the second with a man on base and a single in the seventh with the bases filled.

Duel for Seven Innings.

It was an interesting pitchers' duel for seven innings between Feller and Howard Mills, the Browns' southpaw Sailor Man, and in that time Mills was holding his own in the matter of runs, and had eight strikeouts to six for his more illustrious young rival. And Mills walked six, which was one less pass than Feller dished out.

The Brownie bats talked as though they meant victory in the very first inning and before Feller was warmed up to the task at hand St. Louis had three runs across the plate, largely because Harlond Clift belted a triple with two runners on base and Kress punched out a single to bring in the third-sacker.

Keltner made his first big gesture in the second inning by hitting his sixteenth home run of the season with Trosky on base, but the Browns came back with their fourth and final run in the fourth—largely a donation by the Tribe—when Kress walked, stole second and scored when Webb fumbled Heffner's grounder.

Mills' Wildness Fatal.

But something happened to Mills in the seventh. Sammy Hale opened the round with a double to left. Jeff Heath went down swinging, but the former "gob" hit Averill with a pitched ball and then walked Trosky to fill the bases for Keltner, who promptly rattled a one-bagger to center field to tie the score.

Hemsley was retired, but when Mills walked the weak-hitting Feller he was derricked in favor of Ed Linke, who was eventually charged with the defeat.

The Indians missed a chance to settle the game in the ninth when Averill led off with a double and Trosky walked. Averill went to third on Keltner's long fly, but was out at the plate when Hemsley tapped to Clift.

In the tenth, however, Lyn Lary walked to get Linke in the hole again. He was sacrificed to second, and Hale was then purposely passed and Heath singled to fill the bases for Averill, who also singled to drive in Lary with the winning marker.

The Browns stole four bases, Al-

It's Every Man for Himself at Home Plate

There was plenty of action at the plate in the game between the world champion New York Yankees and Red Sox at Boston yesterday. Here Leftfielder Myril Hoag of the Yankees (No. 9) is sliding across the plate as a teammate, Lou Gehrig, hops away to miss being spiked. Catcher Gene DeSautels of Boston is stretched on the ground, clutching the ball after having made a pass at the runner. Umpire Summers is calling the runner out on Outfielder Cramer's throwin after Joe DiMaggio hit to center. Hoag kicked and was banished from the field. The Yankees won the game, 11 to 6.

By J. Roy Stockton

Pittsburgh's rampant Pirates heard old man Opportunity knocking on their door and they answered. The scoreboard at Sportsman's Park showed the Giants bowing to the Boston Bees and Pie Traynor's hustling Buccaneers, seeing a chance to reduce the margin between themselves and the league leaders, jumped on Curt Davis and Clyde Shoun, added a run when they needed it at the expense of Max Lanier and scored their ninth straight victory by defeating the Redbirds, 8 to 7, in the second game of the series yesterday.

It would have been an easy game to lose, too, for the Cardinals, fighting gamely, tied the score at 7-7 with a final burst of base hits and luck in the seventh frame. Having a big lead like that whittled down to nothing takes the starch out of any team. But Mace Brown, the sensational relief pitcher of the year, kept on firing curves through the strike zone and when it was all over he had his twelfth triumph of the season, against only two defeats.

Continuing with the statistical story, it was the twenty-third decision gained by the Buccaneers in their last 30 games, an amazing pace, which now has the Pittsburgh team of Pie Traynor only two and one-half games behind the pacemaking Giants of Bill Terry.

Rizzo Stars.

Johnny Rizzo, one of the boys that Branch Rickey sold, played a prominent part in the Pirates' triumph. He hit two sizzling home runs, his sixth and seventh of the season, one in the second off Curt Davis for the first tally of the afternoon, and another in the third off Clyde Shoun, with a man on base.

In the hit column, the Cardinals excelled the Buccaneers, collecting a baker's dozen to the Pirates' 11, but the early lead was too much for the Redbirds, who never were better than tied on the scoreboard.

The old one-two Cardinal punch of last year was in evidence as the Gas House Gang battled with courage but futility. Joe Medwick doubled in the second inning, hit a homer in the third and singled in the ninth. Johnny Mize, back at his old stand, followed Joe's third-inning four-bagger with a circuit drive to the pavilion roof and singled a run over the plate in the seventh. But even with all the slugging power, the Pirates were too hot to handle.

After Rizzo's second - inning homer, Vaughan doubled, Young walked and Tobin singled Vaughan home. Handley then doubled Young over the plate and Lloyd Waner singled to send Tobin and Handley home to make it a five-run frame.

Medwick's double, Handley's wild throw on Bordagaray's grounder, and Jimmy Brown's double gave the Cards two in their second, but the Pirates came back in the third with two on Suhr's single and Rizzo's second homer.

Showing the old Gas House spirit, the Cardinals made it close again in their third when Slaughter singled and Medwick and Mize hit for the circuit. After Johnny's wallop, however, Mace Brown relieved Tobin and the rally was stopped abruptly.

Slaughter Starts Rally.

RED BIRD NOTES

BOB WEILAND will oppose the Pirates in one of the games of today's doubleheader, with Max Macon likely to start the other. Cy Blanton and Russ Bauers are due for Pittsburgh.

Johnny Mize, who doubled as a pinch-hitter in the opening game of the series, returned to first base for the Cardinals in a rearranged lineup. Stanley Bordagaray replaced Maestro Mudcat Martin in center field, and Jimmy Brown went to second base.

The second game of the series attracted a Ladies' day crowd of 7129 including 2859 paid and 2665 women, the remainder being boys and girls.

The Cincinnati Reds, the big surprise team of the year, will oppose the Cardinals here Monday and Tuesday, with the Tuberculosis day game Wednesday opening a series with the Bees.

Vaughan, after hitting a double in the second inning, drew four consecutive bases on balls, the last one an intentional pass.

PASSEAU HURLS 16 INNINGS AND PHILS WIN, 4-3

By the Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, July 9.—The Phillies won the second longest game of the season from the Dodgers, 4 to 3, today when Emmet Mueller's triple and Morrie Arnovich's single in the sixteenth produced the winning run.

Hero of the tilt was Claude Passeau, who went the entire distance for the Phils. He yielded 12 hits, fanned eight, and pitched shutout ball in the last 11 innings. Luke Hamlin relieved Freddy Fitzsimmons in the fifth and finished for the Dodgers.

The only longer game in the big leagues this year was the 17-inning affair between the Pirates and Cardinals on Decoration Day.

Manager Burleigh Grimes of the Dodgers was banished in the second inning for disputing Umpire Dolly Stark's decision on a pitch.

WRAY'S COLUMN

The Week's Best Fight.

WHETHER all this blast about Tony Galento, the New Jersey beer hound, was based on merit or was merely a typewriter buildup will be disclosed next Wednesday. Tony will take on John Henry Lewis, an 18k. champion in the light-heavyweight division, in a 10-round event at Philadelphia.

There is a possibility that Signor Galento's brand-new No. 1 rating among the heavyweight challengers will be knocked into the discard by the faster and cleverer, though lighter, Lewis, in this encounter.

Galento, it appears to this writer, has been over-exploited, although in a go-as-you-please combat, and with the referee "looking out the window," his rough-stuff style might cause any foe plenty of trouble.

HOWEVER, TONY is not only fat, but he is 28 years old and his background of experience rather limited, if we believe the boxing guides. These record a professional career prior to 1938 of only 18 fights, half of them fought last year.

Exactly half of those fights were won on knockouts. The kayo victims were: James J. Taylor, Freddie Fiducia, Izzy Singer, Roy Lazer and Terry Mitchell, prior to 1937, and Jack Moran, Al Ettore, Lorenzo Pack and Leroy Haines last year. Galento's other fights were:

Decisions—Eddie Blunt, Don Petrin.

Draws—Al Delaney, Don Petrin, Al Mader.

Los—Al Delaney, Arturo Godoy (twice).

Knockout By—Al Gainer.

That doesn't entitle anyone to rate next to Joe Louis, poor as the heavyweight timber of today seems to be. Quoting Max Baer: "It don't make sense"; nor have Tony's fights this year been of sufficient importance to lift him over all rivals.

John Henry is a pretty good

Stagehand was badly outrun for the first seven furlongs, began to make up ground turning out of backstretch, was lucky to get through on inside and, closing gamely, got up to win in closing strides. Fighting Fox was probably best but when he took lead in stretch Richards took things rather easy and never saw the winner closing on inside until too late. Galapas had plenty of speed and held on better than usual. Thanksgiving ran good race. Stormscud broke slow and trailed far back and could never make up any ground. Mythical King stopped badly.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Maxwell Howard's Stagehand, hero of last winter's Santa Anita Handicap and Derby, regained his brilliant form today and raced to victory in the $10,000 Empire City Handicap in track record equalling time.

The Earl Sande-trained son of Sickle, forced out of the Kentucky Derby by the coughing sickness, drove between horses in a blanket finish and emerged winner by a half-length. His time of 1:51 for the mile and an eighth, made with 124 pounds in the saddle, matched the track record established by Dalmation in 1910 and equalled by three other horses since then.

Five horses charged down to the finish line half-lengths apart. William Woodward's Fighting Fox, freshened up since his disappointing Kentucky Derby and Preakness efforts, was second. Then, in order, came Towsend B. Martin's Galapas, Mrs. Parker Corning's Thanksgiving and B. F. Whitaker's Mythical King. Behind the bunched leaders were the Wheatley Stable's Stormscud, coupled with Fighting Fox in the betting, the Howe Stable's Consul and John Hay Whitney's Gentle Savage.

Stagehand, 8 to 5 choice, won the purse of $9450 and boosted his earnings for the year to $151,400. It was his sixth victory in 10 starts and placed him back in the thick of battle for the three-year-old championship.

The Howard colt was last until the field rounded out of the backstretch, about three-eighths of a mile from the finish. Jack Westrope had "plenty of horse" under him, however.

Meanwhile, Galapas, well beaten in the Kent Handicap, won by Stormscud, was setting a fast pace. He outran Fighting Fox into the last furlong where the Fox took a narrow lead. Then Stagehand, driving through a hole in the last sixteenth, asserted his class and won going away.

BEES HIT THREE HOMERS IN ROW OFF HUBBELL

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Boston's "stingless" Bees fired a record-equalling slugging punch today to back up Lou Fette's four-hit pitching and trample the Giants, 7 to 0.

Tony Cuccinello, Max West and Elbie Fletcher hit successive homers off King Carl Hubbell in the third inning to equal a major league mark that hasn't been tied since 1934. It was only the eighth time in all baseball history and the third time in the National League that three homers were hit in succession in one inning.

Having given up two runs in the second inning, followed by the four in the big third, Hubbell retired at the start of the fourth, being charged with his sixth defeat of the season.

It was the eighth shutout defeat of the year for the Giants, and the fifth time the Bees have whitewashed the National League leaders. Only five Giant batters got on base off Fette, and only two got as far as second as the righthander coasted in with his fourth victory of the year, and his second of the week over Bill Terry's outfit.

The Bees collected an even dozen hits off Hubbell, Bill Lohrman and Walt Brown. Hal Warstler, driving in two runs with a pair of singles, ranked with the homer-hitters at the head of the batting stars for the day.

WALTERS SHUTS OUT CUBS; YANKEES SMOTHER RED SOX, 11-6

REDS OBTAIN 14 HITS OFF THREE HURLERS

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 9.—The surprising Cincinnati Reds ousted the Chicago Cubs from third place in the National League race today by defeating the Chicagoans, 11 to 0.

While Bucky Walters minimized six Cubs' hits, all singles, for his second victory over the Chicagoans in as many days, Wally Berger led a 14-hit Cincinnati attack against Clay Bryant, Tex Carleton and Bob Logan with a homer and three singles.

Ernie Lombardi co-featured the offensive by driving in four runs with a trio of singles.

Walters, who received credit for the Reds' 10-inning 7-6 triumph in a relief role yesterday, was bothered only once today with more than one Cub on base at a time.

fighter offensively and defensively. He hits fast, straight and hard and his technique is far above the mauling tactics of Galento.

But this Tony is a game bird. He will outweigh his foe considerably. And he is a wicked man, when he's battling in close. If he defeats Lewis decisively, we'll reconsider our disapproval of that No. 1 rating.

Too Much Showmanship.

WE HAVE CONTENDED that fireworks, foot races and other artificial aids might temporarily aid baseball's box office, but that in the final sum up, the thing that counts is a winning ball club.

Rogers Hornsby, talking to Kyle Crichton in the current issue of Collier's, concurs in this view.

"You hear a great deal about showmanship in baseball," Hornsby comments, "but that's all a lot of bunk. It's all right to bring color into the game so long as baseball itself remains the main attraction. But when it is a matter of baritone solos between innings and brass bands and marching elephants on opening days it is not only the bunk, but it may be the end of a great sport.

"In my opinion, one of the things that has hurt baseball was the starting of the synthetic doubleheader by Sam Breadon of the Cardinals. Moving up the Monday game to make a doubleheader on Sunday has been fought by practical baseball men for years because all it does is help the situation temporarily. It has made St. Louis strictly a week-end baseball town. The team would play to a handful on week days and get the real crowd on Sunday, when spectators would have attended anyway."

THE RAJAH ATTRIBUTES the rise of showmanship to men like Larry McPhail of Brooklyn, Warren Giles of Cincinnati and Bill de Witt of the Browns. He believes these men are primarily box office or secretarial officials, not practical baseball business men.

TONY GALENTO.

Hornsby believes the salvation of the game lies in giving back the handling of clubs to managers and business managers who have had a baseball playing background—men like Eddie Collins, Ed Barrow and Branch Rickey.

Well, times change. Men have graduated from "pencil pushing jobs" and become valuable baseball men. On the other hand, men of actual baseball playing background like Branch Rickey have failed as field managers and yet become great office baseball men.

As for the showmanship, that, too, can be tolerated, PROVIDED the development of the baseball team is not made secondary to the build-up of entertainment features.

Did the Right Thing.

THEY PAID OFF on two horses to show, in a recent race at Arlington track, because the placing judges misread the saddle blanket numbers of the horses. Martin Barton was announced as third and payoff on him had begun when the camera revealed that Martin Barton was not the third horse, but finished far back.

Officials immediately ordered mutuels to pay off on the real third-place horse as well. It cost the track $1000 or more to do this, but it saved the face of the officials.

When a similar mistake happened in the Kentucky Derby of 1924 and Beau Butler officially was placed third, whereas actually Bracadale finished third, the mutuels started paying off on the wrong horse and continued to do so. Tickets on Bracadale were NOT recognized and remained unpaid, although the error was palpable.

Arlington deserves a bow for recognizing the mistake and correcting it, even at a loss to its treasury.

A Bettors' Paradise.

OFFICIALS AT AGAWAM also used good judgment in the interest of bettors. A nervous race horse tossed his jockey at the starting gate and ran away two miles before he was halted. The stewards ordered the horse withdrawn, although he was back at the starting gate and ready to race.

Officials figured bettors would not get a run for their money from a tired horse and so refunded all the money wagered on the runaway.

That's protecting the bettor.

What a Difference.

ARLINGTON, one of the country's very finest race tracks, tapping a population center of close to 4,000,000, suffered a falling off in mutuel handle this season and thus far the average is about $290,000.

Los Angeles, with less than half Chicago's population to draw from, reports a Hollywood mutuel average of more than $460,000 daily.

The Chicago area has been drained for too many years and the city supports too many poolrooms for the tracks to get full benefit from race horse play.

Lincoln Fields' mutuel turnover this year averaged only $177,000 and that of Aurora only $100,000. The one sure-fire gold mine in the Chicago area continues to be Eddie O'Hare's half-miler, Sportsman's Park.

That always gets a play.

Schmeling Home, Says His Plans Are Indefinite

BERLIN, July 9.—Max Schmeling's return home in defeat caused hardly a ripple of excitement today as the Bremerhaven boat-train reached Berlin for a cheerless reception.

Two dozen persons, nicluding friends, cameramen and newspaper men, were on hand, but there were no cheers and no official welcome for the German heavyweight who lost to Joe Louis.

"I'll go to the hospital tomorrow to complete my cure," said Schmeling of the injuries he sustained in the title fight. "Beyond that I have nothing to say at present."

To friends who expected him to come home on a stretcher the ex-champion said "that would never have done. Naturally I insisted on walking off the boat and the train."

grounder to Handley that should have ended the inning, but Lee threw wild to second, trying for a force play and Mize reached third and Bordagaray first. Owen then dropped a Texas League single in left center, scoring Mize with the tying run. Bordagaray sped to third on the hit, but Jimmy Brown ended the inning with a fly to Lloyd Waner.

Lanier was pitching when the Pirates scored their winning run in the eighth. Young started the attack with an infield single, a grounder that caromed off Gutteridge's wishbone, and Mace Brown neatly sacrificed. Slaughter's fine throw held Young at third on Handley's single to right, but Lloyd Waner hit a tantalizing high bounder to Jimmy Brown, and Young raced home as Jimmy had to be satisfied with a play at first.

Five athletic features, including a regular National League game between the Cardinals and Boston, have been definitely scheduled as highlights of the twenty-fourth Tuberculosis day performance Wednesday afternoon at Sportsman's Park.

GREENSFELDER IN THIRD ROUND OF TENNIS PLAY

By Davison Obear

Favorites advanced in yesterday's opening round of play in the St. Louis County men's singles tennis championship at the Westborough Country Club. Twenty-two matches were played to complete the first round while four second round contests were also decided.

Harry Greensfelder Jr. and Charles W. Barnes were the first of the eight seeded players to gain the third round. Greensfelder, No. 2, drew a bye in the opening round and won from Charles Snyder, 6-4, 6-0. Barnes, seeded No. 4, defeated Leo Mathey, 6-1, 6-1, in the opening round and won from young Allen Richardson, 6-1, 6-4.

Russell Hadden, Clayton player, drew a bye in the first round and advanced another round through the default of George Finger. Walter Pfeffer, president of the Westborough Club, was the fourth player to reach the third round, winning from his son, Walter Jr., 6-1, 6-3. The senior Pfeffer's steady forehand drives were quite effective in the match.

Several of the first round singles matches resulted in close scores. Carl Buck won from V. M. Robertson, 5-7, 6-4, 6-4 in one of them, while Stuart Johnson was forced to a 6-1, 6-8, 6-3 score before eliminating Brooke Sloss. Allen Yaeger won from Charles Dee, 6-3, 2-6, 6-2, in another three-set encounter.

A. B. "Father" Lynn, tournament chairman, announced that all second round matches must be completed today. First round matches in the men's doubles will start this afternoon at 2 o'clock, with an entry of 26 teams. The teams seeded were Richard Rosebrough and Bill Krueger, Karl Kammann and Charles Barnes, Harold Wiese and Wayne Smith, Rev. Melvin Keaney and Frank Keaney.

mada getting credit for two of them, and Kress and Buster Mills the others. Almada had three hits in five times at bat, as did Averill, and Webb, who played most of the game at short for the Indians, hit safely three times in four trips to the plate.

There were all of 29 left on base during the three-hour and 22-minute struggle, 17 by Cleveland and 12 by the Browns.

The series will be concluded at Lake Front Stadium tomorrow, when Johnny Allen will try to register his 13th consecutive victory for the Indians at the expense of Buck Newsom, who will be after No. 10. Newsom is the only hurler this year to hold a decision over the Indians' fiery right hander. Newsom beat Allen in the season's opening game and Johnny hasn't lost an argument, except to the umpires since that cool afternoon.

Dean Says He's Considering Suing Cards for $250,000

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 9.—Kenesaw Mountain Landis, Commissioner of Baseball, apparently held the answer tonight to whether "Dizzy" Dean of the Chicago Cubs would sue the Cardinals, charging damages to his pitching arm—and Landis withheld comment.

Dean said today he planned to take legal steps and would ask $250,000 from his former employer, alleging the Cardinals forced him to pitch too soon after an injury last year.

He said he had talked to Landis regarding the advisability of such action, would confer with him again and would be guided by the Commissioner's decision. Landis would make no statement.

Purchased from the Cards for $185,000 and three players, Dean has won three games against no defeats this year, but has not pitched since May 4. His injury was diagnosed as "sub deltoid bursitis," and a rest was ordered.

A week ago the soreness had almost disappeared, but today another examination disclosed it had returned to the muscles back of the shoulder blade and a further rest was prescribed. An X-ray picture also was taken. On Monday it will be examined again in the presence of William Wrigley Jr., president of the Cubs.

Charlie Drake, assistant to Wrigley, answering a query whether Dean might be retired unless his arm begins to heal, said:

"There was never a thought of retiring Dean. What we are trying to do is get him into condition to pitch this year."

"I am not getting any place this way. I might as well sue," Dean asserted.

Drake said Dean told him he was "going to take the $250,000 and pay back Mr. Wrigley the $185,000 he paid for me."

Sam Breadon, president, and Branch Rickey, vice-president and general manager of the Cardinals, did not comment when advised of Dean's threat to sue. Previously they had said Cub officials were advised of Dean's condition at the time of the deal.

Newark Hurler Has Won 9 Games In Row to Date

NEW YORK, July 9.—Newark's famed "one-two" punch, Buddy Rosar and Charley Keller, continued to set the pace in the International League batting race this week, with Rosar surprising everyone by holding first place from his more noted teammate.

The clouting catcher, collecting 11 hits in 25 chances, not only kept his mate in second place, but increased his pace-setting margin to six points. His average, including Wednesday's games, was .403, a boost of six points for the seven-day span, while Keller climbed two points to .397.

As was the case last week, not another batter in the loop was close to these two, both of whom have their eyes on berths with the parent New York Yankees next year. Sam Narron, Rochester catcher, took over third place with a .376 average by passing the minimum 100 times at bat during the week.

Trailing these three were Bill Schuster, Montreal, fourth, with .358; Joe Mack, Syracuse, .343; Lou Vezilich, Rochester, .342; Nino Bongiovanni, Syracuse, who climbed from twelfth to seventh, with .336; Ollie Carnegie, Buffalo, whose rise from nineteenth to eighth was the biggest hop of the week, with .330; Fred Tauby, Baltimore, .323, and Marrill May, Newark, .322.

Only one change occurred in the various other department of individual play. This shift saw Vezilich climb into a first-place tie with Joe Gantenbein of Toronto for the lead in triples, each with six.

Keller retained the pace in three departments, having scored the most runs, 88; collected the most base hits, 113, and driven in the most runs, 77. His Newark mate, Jimmy Gleeson, still led in hitting doubles, with 26 two-baggers to his credit.

The home-run leader continued to be Woody Abernathy of Buffalo, with 19 circuit clouts. George Myatt, Jersey City speedster, held his lead in stealing bases, with 25, and Jack Haley, Newark's undefeated elbower, was still the pitching leader, with nine victories.

Athlete's Foot
Relief Guaranteed
OR YOUR MONEY BACK

According to the Government Health Bulletin No. E-28, at least 50% of the adult population of the United States are being attacked by the disease known as Athlete's Foot.

Usually the disease starts between the toes. Little watery blisters form, and the skin cracks and peels. After a while, the itching becomes intense, and you feel as though you would like to scratch off all the skin.

Beware of it Spreading

Often the disease travels all over the bottom of the feet. The soles of your feet become red and swollen. The skin also cracks and peels, and the itching becomes worse and worse.

Get rid of this disease as quickly as possible, because it is very contagious, and it may go to your hands or even to the under arm or crotch of the legs.

Most people who have Athlete's Foot have tried all kinds of remedies to cure it without success. Ordinary germicides, antiseptics, salves or ointments seldom do any good.

Here's How to Treat It

The germ that causes the disease is known as Tinea Trichophyton. It buries itself deep in the tissues of the skin and is very hard to kill. A test made shows it takes 15 minutes of boiling to kill the germ; so you can see why the ordinary remedies are unsuccessful.

H. F. was developed solely for the purpose of treating Athlete's Foot. It is a liquid that penetrates and dries quickly. You just paint the affected parts. It peels off the tissue of the skin where the germ breeds.

Relief Obtained Immediately

As soon as you apply H. F. you will find that the itching is immediately relieved. You should paint the infected part with H. F. night and morning until your feet are well. Usually this takes from three to ten days, although in severe cases it may take longer or in mild cases less time.

H. F. will leave the skin soft and smooth. You will marvel at the quick way it brings you relief; especially if you are one of those who have tried for years to get rid of Athlete's Foot without success.

MARICA BREAKS RECORD IN WINNING DELAWARE STAKE

DELAWARE PARK, Del., July 9.—Taking the lead at the first stride and holding a neck margin at the wire in a thrilling finish, T. D. Taggart's Marica, the West's champion mare of 1937, won the second running of the Sussex Handicap, $10,000 added feature of the closing day's program here and smashed the track record in the bargain.

Under a strong grip most of the way, the coal black daughter of Epinard came fast to the wire to defeat Thomas J. Healey's Tatterdemalion. The Belair Stud's Isolater was third, three lengths behind the fighting pair out front. First Alarm, Esposa and War Magic, the last named coupled with the winner in the betting, finished in order.

Marica, ridden by Jockey Bob Dotter, was making her second start of the meeting and year. She had won the $10,000 Newcastle Handicap in impressive fashion but today she was even better, going the mile and a quarter in 2:03 3-5, three-fifths of a second under the mark set in the same race last year by Calumet Dick.

The crowd of 15,000 made the combination of Marica and War Magic an even money favorite. The stablemate of the winner was ridden by Johnny Gilbert but dropped out of the running after a half.

Fast Break Wins Race.

Despite her 125-pound assignment, Marica bounded to the front at once with Jockey Dotter holding her in check. War Magic and Esposa were running as a team about two lengths off the leader as the field swung into the backstretch. Tatterdemalion was last but Jockey Eddie Arcaro soon had him gaining ground.

Leaving the backstretch, Tatterdemalion ran into a pocket formed by War Magic and Esposa with Isolater on the outside. Arcaro had to "bully" his way through. In the stretch, Marica had a long lead and Tatterdemalion set out to cut it down. The former Whitney horse bore out while making a galland bid, finishing on the extreme outside of the track.

The judges called for a photo and the picture showed what the majority of the crowd had already accepted—Marica, the winner.

Gilbert Leading Rider.

A few minutes after being presented with a gold watch for winning the jockey championship of the meeting, Gilbert showed his appreciation by riding a powerful race on W. H. Lipscomb's Could Be, a $19.20 shot. For some unknown reason, the judges called for a photo. Could Be had a margin of three parts of a length over Your Buddy, a long shot. Why Tarry was third in the bulky field of 11 competing at a mile and 70 yards. Gilbert sent Could Be through on the inside entering the stretch and the filly went on to win under strong handling. Could Be, Gilbert's second winner of the day and his fortieth of the meeting, was clocked in 1:44 4-5.

BROWN BOMBING
AS TOLD TO GENE KESSLER
By Joe Louis

No. 10—Crowning a New Champion.

My hat is off to James J. Braddock. He was the gamest man I ever met and fought back hardest after being badly hurt. I had to be twice as good as I was the first time against Max Schmeling to win the championship from Braddock.

My mind was set on a quick kayo and I went out to set a pace too fast for a man of Jim's age, but he fooled me. He fell for that camp gag of ours, when I purposely took rights to the jaw and looked like I had slipped and was gun shy. He rushed me and winged his right fist at the opening gong. That dove-tailed with my plans. I slipped the lead and countered with a left hook to the body.

We sparred for a few seconds then and I let go with my swift gloving pace. I landed a left hook, followed with a right, then another hook, and Braddock tottered on rubbery legs. It was something like the attack I roared into Schmeling, June 22.

So give Braddock all the credit in the world. He didn't cover up and retreat like Schmeling did. Jim piled into me and started pitching back. I missed a right and Jim burned my whiskers with a right uppercut counter that spilled me. It didn't numb my senses, but it hurt and it made me show a lot of respect for his punch the rest of the evening.

When I got back to my corner, Trainer Blackburn issued orders. Believe me, I listened and then obeyed.

"You go out there and use that zipper jab for a few rounds. He's too strong to take chances with," said Jack.

So for the next three rounds my left fist buzzed in Jim's face and his head kept bobbing, but that didn't keep him out of my door. Like that old wolf, Braddock kept knocking with powerful jolts. Most times, though, he caught me going away, but Jim still had a sting until after the fourth. Then I could feel him slowing down. It was a torrid pace and Jim's age began to tell. Still Blackburn warned me, "Don't cut loose yet, Joe."

Never did I question this plan of Blackburn's and I felt all along that I could explode the finishing dynamite when Jack said "go to town."

After the fifth round Blackburn said to me: "He's ready now, Joe. Whip over that right. Move in more and keep punching hard."

Early in the sixth, I feinted a left hook and landed a right-hand shot. It landed high, splitting Jim's lip badly. He reeled and I knew the end was near. Another short right dimmed his vision and still that game old guy stood up there and punched back. He wasn't giving up that championship until he was colder than an iceberg.

Game to the Finish.

Later I learned that Joe Gould, manager of Braddock, wanted to throw in the towel after the sixth round and Jim told him: "If you do, I'll never speak to you again." I sure have to like a guy who goes out that way.

He stood in there through a blazing seventh round and fought back, gambling on the chances that one of his swings might land. And he put plenty on 'em to the last. Near the end of that seventh, Jim pulled away from a right and I sank a left hook deep into his stomach. It was as hard and it drove in just as much as the blow that sent Schmeling to the hospital, but Braddock just gritted his teeth and stood there like a marble statue. The bell stopped me from sending over a haymaker.

At the start of the eighth, Jim gambled everything on one last lunging belt, a looping right. It was easy to block and a left hook counter straightened him up. I feinted another left hook and zoomed a right to the open jaw and the gamest guy I ever met sank slowly to the canvas, knocked out.

Jim Braddock sure made me work for that championship and I was determined to do proud by the crown that I won from him. So I said, "When I get that Schmeling back in the ring I'm going out and fight him off his feet. I know he can't be as tough and courageous as Braddock."

CLEVELAND, July 9.—Her Ladyship, recent $10,000 purchase of E. J. Baker, St. Charles, Ill., owner of the world's champion trotter, Greyhound, gave the Grand Circuit its first two-minute mile of the season at North Randall today.

Capturing a $1500 race in a three-heat battle, Her Ladyship whirled the middle trip in 1:59 4-5, which eclipsed the 2:00 4-5 of Greyhound and the 2:00 3-5 of Billy Direct champion pacer on the July 4th program here.

GUERNSEY WINS COLLEGE TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP

By the Associated Press.

HAVERFORD, Pa., July 9.—Diminutive Frank Guernsey Jr., Rice Institute sophomore, wore the National Intercollegiate singles tennis crown tonight by virtue of an easy 6-4, 6-1, 6-0 victory over Morey Lewis of Kenyon College, Gambier, Ohio.

The Orlando, Fla., youth tore through the final of the fifty-third annual national tournament on the clay courts of the Merion Cricket Club, winning points almost at will.

The University of Southern California team of Joe Hunt, national junior singles champion, and Lewis Wetherell, defeated Lewis and Don McNeill, also of Kenyon, in straight sets for the doubles championship, 6-2, 6-2 and 6-4.

As singles champion, Guernsey succeeds Ernest Sutter of Tulane University, whom graduation kept from the 1938 play.

Lewis, a native of Texarkana, Ark., drove up to the final by defeating three seeded players, but was virtually helpless against Guernsey.

Lewis at the start broke through twice to take a three-love lead, but Guernsey reclaimed his deft touch and won four games in a row to lead 4-3. Lewis squared it at 4-all, but Guernsey won the next two and the set.

Lewis broke through again at the start of the second. Guernsey promptly broke back and from that point on moved swiftly away from his opponent.

In the third set Lewis made little effort to return hard shots. Only in the sixth game did he look like the fighter he was earlier in the week.

Guernsey had match point. He lobbed and Lewis ran to the net to congratulate his opponent. But the lob proved to be an out. Then Lewis fired two spectacular forehand placements down the line to deuce the game. Lewis then netted twice to give Guernsey the match.

TRAINER FINED $200 FOR ASSAULTING HORSE OWNER AFTER ARGUMENT

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 9.—A fine of $200 was imposed today in District Court on Alfred E. Van Ree, Texas horse trainer, on a charge of assaulting John W. Carter, Lexington (Ky.) horse owner, in which District Attorney T. F. Moriarty described as a dispute after an attempt to "fix" a race at Agawam Park.

Despite Moriarty's assertion, counsel for Van Ree maintained the assault occurred in an "ordinary brawl."

In urging a jail sentence, Moriarty told the Court that Carter and Van Ree "reached agreement that in a certain race at Agawam Park in which both men had horses entered, Van Ree's horse was to win."

The agreement was broken, the District Attorney said, when Van Ree's horse staggered "at the far turn" and Carter's jockey rode to victory.

ROOSEVELT HINTS CHANDLER URGED JUDGESHIP DEAL

Letter Indicates Kentucky Governor Suggested Post for Logan, to Make Senate Place for Him.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—A parting presidential shot at Gov. A. B. Chandler, opponent of New Deal-favored Alben W. Barkley in Kentucky's Democratic senatorial primary, exploded in the capital today, when Senator Logan (Dem.), Kentucky, made public a letter from Prsident Roosevelt dated Feb. 1.

It said the Governor had made a "proposition" to the President the day before, and had "seemed surprised when I told him that you and I would be the last people in the world to traffic in judicial appointments in order to satisfy the ambitions of one office-seeker."

Mr. Roosevelt's letter did not say in so many words what Chandler's "proposition" was. But, coupled with an announcement which Logan had just issued, it conveyed the idea clearly that the Governor had suggested that the junior Senator from Kentucky be appointed to a Federal judgeship. This would have permitted Chandler to be appointed to succeed him in the Senate, and would have left Barkley a clear field in his race for renomination to Kentucky's other Senate seat.

A "Disagreeable Situation."

"I want you to know how fine I think your statement of Monday was," the President wrote, referring to Logan's announcement that he would decline any judicial post offered him. "The Governor put you and Alben and me into a most disagreeable situation, and wholly without any necessity therefor.

"I want you to know that the Governor came to see me yesterday, repeated the same proposition and seemed surprised when I told him that you and I would be the last people in the world to traffic in judicial appointments in order to satisfy the ambitions of one office-seeker.

"You deserve all the credit in the world for the splendid and unanswerable and unselfish position you have taken."

Logan, in his statement of Jan. 31, said he would refuse to take part in "anything that looks like a bargain with respect to the judiciary." One of the lieutenants in the President's unsuccessful fight to reorganize the Supreme Court last year, he said he intended to serve out his term and seek re-election in 1942.

Hopkins Assails Critics.

Another political development in the capital today was a statement by W P A Administrator Harry Hopkins, accusing critics of "trumping up" charges that the work relief agency was engaged in political activity.

Hopkins denied, in a letter to Senator Vandenberg (Rep.), Michigan, that the W P A had distributed groceries and other commodities to relief clients in Kentucky in large paper bags bearing the inscription, "paper bags donated by a friend of Senator Alben W. Barkley."

Vandenberg had sent Hopkins a photograph of a bag bearing the inscription.

Hopkins explained that the bags were supplied by an "unnamed friend" of Senator Barkley to a general store across the street from a W P A commodities distribution center in London, Ky. Asserting that they were "handed out to anyone who asked for them, to be used for any purpose that they might see fit to put them," Hopkins said this was an instance which typified "the loose and unfounded charges that are being trumped up by persons who are anxious to find political activities in any and every act of this administration."

At Lexington, Ky., Ernest Rowe, district W P A director, reiterated that "W P A people had nothing to do" with the bags.

Tydings Makes Charge.

At Baltimore last night, Senator Tydings (Dem.), Maryland, an opponent of the President's Supreme Court reorganization bill, charged that the summary dismissal of Henry W. Webb as Maryland F H A administrator was intended as a blow at Tydings' candidacy for renomination. Tydings is opposed by Representative Lewis (Dem.), Maryland, who is campaigning as a New Deal candidate.

Tydings said he felt Webb had been "guillotined in the interest of political expediency."

Senator Sheppard (Dem.), Texas, commented that the Senate campaign expenditures committee would consider any complaint that might be filed by Senator Tydings or any other person in connection with Webb's ouster. He said no such complaint had been filed thus far.

The committee sent out questionnaires by registered mail today to all senatorial candidates. Each candidate was asked to answer nine questions involving possible use of public money, promises of jobs or patronage for political purposes.

Sheppard said charges made by a primary opponent of Senator Clark (Dem.), Missouri, that public employes were being assessed for Clark's campaign fund, had not been called officially to the attention of the committee.

ROOSEVELT LOOKING INTO USE OF RADIO AND MOVIES

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 9. — President Roosevelt has authorized a study looking toward the setting up in the National Emergency Council of a division of radio and motion pictures to promote extensive use of the air and scene to spread information on Government activities, it was learned today.

The plan contemplates the coordination of radio and motion picture activities of Government departments under the council, and eventually a more ambitious effort to publicize governmental activities than has been attempted.

The plan involves the equipping of radio and motion picture studios and the assembling of trained staffs of announcers, script-writers and technical experts.

Until now the Government has had no central moving picture production and distribution agency and it has used the commercial radio chains for its radio programs. Within a week or 10 days the Interior Department intends to open a broadcasting studio on the top of its building. Although the building has been in use for more than a year, the existence of the radio station was unnoticed until word leaked out that it would soon be ready. For the present the plan is to connect the department's studio with the commercial chains, although the station is fully equipped for sending and receiving.

DEMOCRATS OF SOLID SOUTH SPLIT ON ROOSEVELT'S PLANS

Of 23 Senators and Governors, Only 11 Indorse His Effort to Rehabilitate Area.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The politically "Solid South" of the Democratic Party was split tonight over President Roosevelt's proposals for its economic rehabilitation.

Of 23 Southern United States Senators and Governors who responded to a survey of opinion, 11 gave full indorsement to the President's statement this week that the South is the nation's "No. 1 economic problem" and to his action in calling a conference to "do something about it." A number of the 11 offered definite suggestions on what the "something" should be.

None of the others expressed flat opposition to the President, but several gave more than gentle hints that they would rather the South be let take care of itself.

Four reported themselves "too busy" to read the President's statement. Six declined comment now, one way or the other.

4000 Take Examinations in City for Clerkships.

Examinations for clerical positions with the State Unemployment Compensation Commission were taken yesterday by about 4000 applicants at McKinley, Southwest and Blewett high schools. About 5000 other applicants took examinations throughout the State.

Practical tests will be given later and accounting and statistical examinations will be held within two weeks. The commission plans to add 105 clerks before the end of the year and a substantial number of jobs will be open probably early in 1939, when compensation payments start.

Vienna, a Changed City, Now a German Provincial Town Dominated by Fear

Author Describes Altered Scene, With Hitlerites in Saddle and Important Part of Masses Behind Them.

By VINCENT SHEEAN

(Copyright, 1938).

VIENNA, via Zurich, July 9.

THE impression made by 10 days of observation and investigation of the new Vienna is that National Socialism has a firm grip on the life of the place and has come to stay.

Reports of dissension in the Nazi ranks are no doubt true, although perhaps exaggerated. It is also true that terror reigns throughout the population and that nobody dares give a plain answer to a plain question; but the Nazi organization is in full and unquestioned control, with an important part of the masses supporting it.

The various elements of opposition, scattered through jails and concentration camps or paralyzed with fright at home, are powerless to impede the triumphant progress of National Socialism through the mind and institutions of what once was Austria. Liberals, intellectuals, Communists, Jews, aristocrats and Catholics are the oddly assorted enemies—or, at least, the victims—of the new regime.

50,000 Put in Prison

The number of them who have suffered imprisonment is very large. There was bitter laughter over Vienna when Gauleiter Buerckel (Joseph Buerckel, the Nazi district leader for Austria) made recently a published statement giving the total number of political prisoners, including Jews, as 3780.

In point of fact, the total number placed in jails since March 12 (when Austria was annexed to the Reich) can hardly be less than 50,000, and probably is more. It is possible to arrive at a pretty good estimate by taking the groups one by one and adding them up.

There were 12,000 Catholics arrested in March—Catholics belonging to various associations and groups supporting Kurt Schuschnigg, the last Austrian Chancellor. These were middle-class people, lawyers, Government officials and office workers.

There also were 5000 or 6000 members of Prince Ernst Rudiger von Starhemberg's Heimwehr (Fascist Home Guard), who were arrested; there were several hundred aristocrats jailed in the first days after the anschluss and a score or more lately; there were numerous arrests among intellectuals, especially those in the teaching profession, and there have been thousands of arrests of workers, trade union leaders, Social Democrats and Communists.

20,000 Jews Also Seized

The foregoing calculation is exclusive of the Jews, of whom some 20,000 now are in jails or concentration camps.

And to all these—already a very respectable total—there have been added, in the last 10 days, a number of Nazis taken up in the so-called purge. These are Austrian Nazis, some of whom already had suffered imprisonment as Nazis under the preceding regime, and who now are undergoing party discipline at the great concentration camp of Dachau, near Munich, in Bavaria.

It is currently believed in Vienna that these new Nazi prisoners number 400 or 500, but the authorities say—without giving any exact figure—that the whole thing has been greatly exaggerated.

Perhaps so. But one thing it would be impossible to exaggerate, and that is the change which has come over Vienna.

The character of this city, at all times in the past, has been very special, unlike that of any other city in Europe. The population was so mixed in its cultural, liberal and social habits, so gentle, that it bore no resemblance to any other German-speaking city.

The Austro-Hungarian Empire had imprinted chameleon graces on its capital during centuries, so that Vienna was Hungarian, Bohemian, Polish and Croatian, as well as German, came in the end to be German in language only. The effect of the Nazi steamroller has been to annihilate this special character and to grind the swastika into the face of Vienna.

In only three and one-half months it has become a German provincial town like half a dozen others, and dominated by fear.

Just the same, fear does not altogether account for the phenomenon. Sufferers from the Nazi revolution and those who sympathized with them are much given to the opinion that National Socialism rules by terror alone. I believe this to be a fantastic distortion of the truth.

The regime is, indeed, a tyranny and imposes the bitterest humiliation and suffering upon hundreds of thousands of people. But it is much more than that. It is also a mass movement which appeals very powerfully to the whole lower middle class and to a great part of the workers. To the youth of the masses its appeal is practically irresistible, and it is among these—the very young, uneducated and non-political poor—that it finds the real sources of its power.

Proletariat Backs Invaders

As Talleyrand said to Napoleon, "You can do anything with bayonets except sit on them." The Nazis realize this very well, and they do not sit on bayonets; they sit on the proletariat.

The proletariat of Vienna was predominantly Social Democratic. The varieties of Socialism were many, both Marxian and non-Marxian. Among the Marxian Socialists there was a small Communist group of unknown size and strength, and the Communist party itself has not legally existed since 1934. Christian Socialism and its kindred groups, controlled by Catholic leaders and favored by the church, occupied a position of special influence among the workers from 1918 until last March.

Now under the new regime the proletariat has been rapidly absorbed into the great Nazi organization, the Arbeiter Front (Labor Front), which controls industrial labor and capital throughout the Reich. Whatever party and trades union affiliations an Austrian worker may have had before March 10 were gone by March 12. Thereafter the worker was a Nazi worker or was nothing.

Workers Quickly Absorbed

The absorption of the workers was consummated rapidly and successfully in Austria, thanks to the experience gathered during the past five years in Germany. The mechanism already existed, for Austria has been Socialist for years, and all that was necessary was to take over the social services and reorient them. Through the social services, with their elaborate system of pensions, sickness compensations and unemployment doles, it was possible to get a firm grip on the whole working class.

Nationalization of heavy industries, proceeding from the opposite end of the capital-labor structure, further strengthened Nazi control in Vienna, and a combination of terror and bribery made opposition useless. It is my impression that the Nazi control over Viennese workers is now already complete, and that any anti-Nazi hope, based on a supposed dissatisfaction of the proletarians, is vain and futile.

Parenthetically, it should be mentioned that the aristocrats, Jews, liberals and intellectuals, without much direct knowledge of the working class, tend to believe that the Viennese are anti-Nazi, but can never produce a shred of objective evidence to that effect.

The Nazi approach to this all-

Chairman O'Mahoney Says It Is Not 'Witch-Hunting Expedition'

Revision of Anti-Trust Procedure, Patent Rights, Interstate Commerce and Control of Investment Trusts Also Among the Subjects to Be Considered.

By RICHARD L. STOKES
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 9.

A FEW weeks after the stock market crash of October, 1929, a railroad worker in Cheyenne, Wyo., appeared at the office of a friend, an attorney, with a letter. It bore the address of an office hundreds of miles away and the signature of a man whom the recipient had never seen. Without explanation or apology, in bald, terse phrases, he was ordered to report for duty at once in another town.

"Joe," exclaimed the visitor, with tears in his eyes, "I'm being pulled up by the roots. I don't want to leave Cheyenne. This is my home. I have a house here, partly paid for. Two of my kids are buried in the cemetery. What can I do?"

In answer to questions, he said he was 52 years old, that he was responsible for the livelihood of a wife and several children, and that the sole trade he knew was railroading. Reluctantly the lawyer gave an opinion. It was that the friend, in order to support his dependents, had no choice save to "follow the job."

But when the caller had left, the attorney indulged in a moment's pregnant reflection.

"That man," he meditated, "is bound as tightly to a railroad as a serf was fettered to the land under feudalism."

One of Results, a Bill for Federal Incorporation.

This proved to be no idle flash of illumination. The lawyer of the anecdote, Joseph C. O'Mahoney, a Democrat, was appointed on Dec. 18, 1933, to the United States Senate to fill a Wyoming vacancy caused by the death of John B. Kendrick, and the following November was elected to both the unexpired term ending Jan. 3, 1935, and the full term concluding in 1941.

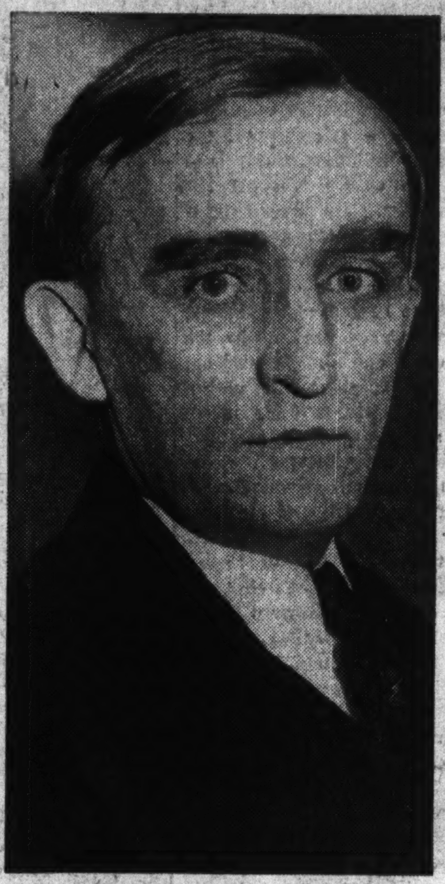
In collaboration with Senator William E. Borah (Rep.), Idaho, O'Mahoney on Nov. 30, 1937, introduced a bill, not yet enacted, to set up a national charter system for corporations operating in interstate commerce. The measure proposed that it be made unlawful for such corporations to engage in business without first obtaining a license from the Federal Trade Commission, which would be authorized to deny the application of any corporation if it were found that the applicant was a combination in violation of the anti-trust laws, or that it was monopolizing, or attempting to monopolize, or combining or conspiring with any other person to monopolize, any part of such trade or commerce."

On April 29 of this year President Roosevelt sent to Congress a message transmitting recommendations relative to strengthening and enforcing the anti-trust laws. Congress replied with a joint resolution, approved June 16, erecting a National Economic Committee, to consist of three members each of the Senate and House and representatives of the Departments of Justice, the Treasury, Labor and Commerce, the Securities and Exchange Commission and the Federal Trade Commission. The committee was authorized to summon by subpena any and all persons to testify and produce books, papers, correspondence, contracts, agreements or other records and documents. Its sessions were implemented with an appropriation of half a million dollars, of which $100,000 was made immediately available.

O'Mahoney and Borah on Economic Committee.

Largely because of their activity in behalf of Federal licensing of corporations, Senators O'Mahoney and Borah were appointed members of the committee by Vice-President Garner, together with Senator William H. King (Dem.), Utah. Observers did not fail to note that King had been an unswerving antagonist of the New Deal, and that O'Mahoney had voted against the administration's Supreme Court-packing scheme. In the House, Speaker Bankhead appointed Congressman Hatton W. Sumners of Texas, chairman of the Judiciary Committee, who, as much as any one man, was responsible for defeating the President's program for remaking the Supreme Court; Congressman Edward C. Eicher (Dem.), Iowa; and Congressman B. Carroll Reece (Rep.), Tennessee.

The congressional representation on the committee was regarded as having been balanced by nominees from the six Government agencies concerned, who included several recognized members of the New Deal's "Brain Trust." From the Treasury came its general counsel, Herman Oliphant; and from the Department of Justice, an Assistant Attorney-



SENATOR O'MAHONEY

General, Thurman W. Arnold, sardonic author of "The Folklore of Capitalism." From the Department of Labor came its commissioner of statistics, Isador Lubin, and from the Securities and Exchange Commission its militant chairman, William O. Douglas. The Federal Trade Commission sent its chairman, Garland S. Ferguson; and the Department of Commerce one of its assistant secretaries, Richard C. Patterson Jr.

At their first meeting, on Friday of last week these members elected Senator O'Mahoney as chairman of the new National Economic Committee, and chose as executive secretary Leon Henderson, an economist of the Works Progress Administration.

At Last in Position to Do Something About It.

Thus the senior Senator from Wyoming, less than 10 years after the misfortune of a railroad employe convinced him that within the framework of American democracy industrial capital had constructed a system comparable to feudalim in the Middle Ages, has come to a position of leadership in making a drastic study of that system, and recommending legislation to remedy its abuses.

With the committee still engaged in preliminaries of organization and campaign planning, its spokesmen decline at present to make forecasts of its specific objectives, to say nothing of such curative legislation as may be recommended.

Senator O'Mahoney, moreover, impressed on the writer, during an interview this week, that the process is not to be a "witch-hunting expedition," and in particular that the investigation will not be used as a means for getting the Borah-O'Mahoney Federal licensing bill enacted. He protested against a popular belief that this is to be solely an anti-monopoly research, explaining that the purpose covers a far broader field—that of delineating an authoritative picture of the entire economic system of the United States.

General Objectives of the Investigation.

For business men who, throughout the country, are vitally interested in the outcome of this new governmental study, it is possible at least to outline the subjects which are likely to receive serious consideration from the National Economic Committee. These may be inferred from the President's message, the joint congressional resolution, the provisions of the Borah-O'Mahoney bill, and the expressed views of the chairman. Some of the more important may be summarized as follows:

A law compelling corporations engaged in foreign and interstate commerce to obtain their charters not from one state or another, as at present, but from the National Government.

An amendment to the patent laws making the use of inventions available to anyone upon payment of appropriate royalties, and thus preventing the suppression of inventions, or their use to create industrial monopolies.

A revision of anti-trust procedure that would permit the Government to adduce, as prima facie evidence of unlawful actions, such instances as identical bids, uniform price increases and higher domestic than export prices, with the burden of proving that such practices are innocently placed on the defendants.

Strict control of investment trusts, which, like holding companies, place huge aggregations of capital belonging to the public under the direction of a few managers.

Drastic regulation of bank holding companies, with statutes making it illegal for them to borrow from or sell securities to any banks in which they hold stock, to acquire control of any more banks, and to establish additional branch banks.

Supervision, with effective publicity, of trade associations, and in particular of the "agreements" through which they are alleged to interfere with competitive practices.

A law empowering the courts, when a corporation has been enjoined from violating the laws, to forbid the corporation, for a specified time, to give employment or official position to any person or persons found to bear responsibility for such corporate wrongdoing.

More rigid scrutiny of proposed mergers and consolidations so as to prevent their consummation when not in the public interest.

More effective laws for breaking up interlocking directorates and similar devices for bestowing business by favor.

The creation of a Bureau of Industrial Economics which would perform for business men functions similar to those rendered to farmers by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Some Study Probable of Federal Licensing.

Despite Senator O'Mahoney's disclaimer, it appears likely that some proposal for the Federal licensing of corporations—whether in the form of the Borah-O'Mahoney bill or some other—will receive grave attention from the committee.

This is because of a long-standing anomaly of legislation. Corporations at present may come into existence only through charters granted by one state or another; but if the corporations engage in foreign or interstate commerce the state giving them birth thenceforth totally loses jurisdiction over their operations. A formidable body of court decisions establishes the incompetence of the states to regular interstate commerce.

The temper in which this problem bids fair to be approached may be judged from provisions of the proposed "corporation licensing act" of Senators Borah and O'Mahoney. Having made it unlawful for any corporation to enter upon or continue in interstate business without a license from the Federal Trade Commission, the bill enjoins that before a license can be issued the applicant corporation must file a sworn statement concerning:

Organization and financial structure.

Terms, position, rights and privileges of the different classes of its securities outstanding.

Terms on which its securities have been offered to the public.

Personnel and salaries of its management.

Contracts with promoters and financial interests with respect to organization, management and service.

Profits and losses for preceding fiscal years.

Every license issued under the act would provide that there shall be no wage discrimination between male and female employes rendering equivalent services; that no person under 16 years of age shall be employed; and that all employes shall have the right to join labor unions and bargain collectively through representatives of their own choosing after due notice and opportunity to be heard. The Federal Trade Commission would have power to revoke the license of any corporation found to be guilty of violating the law.

Terms of Resolution Authorizing Investigation.

"To make a complete investigation with respect to the matters referred to in the President's message of April 29, 1938, on monopoly and the concentration of economic power and financial control over production and distribution of goods and services and to hear evidence with a view to determining—

"1. The causes of such concentration and control, and their effect upon competition;

"2. The effect of the existing price

So Great Since 1929 No Economy Can Long Survive It, Says Nels Anderson, Urging Permanent Work Relief Program.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 9.

THE cost of idleness enforced on millions of workers is so great that no nation, no economy, can long survive it. That is why some kind of public works program is inevitable in the face of mass unemployment, in the opinion of Nels Anderson, director of the section on labor relations in the Works Progress Administration, expressed in "The Right to Work," just published by Modern Age Books, Inc., New York.

Through 1936 the cost of the works program evolved out of New Deal relief efforts starting in 1933 has been, for both state and Federal governments, more than 13 billion dollars, but this is small, Anderson insists, compared to the cost of enforced idleness in the earlier years of the depression, and he marshals a convincing argument in support of this thesis.

Anderson takes a sane line in this year of congressional elections when work relief promises to be a hotly controverted issue. He sees the works relief program not as the special brain child of the New Deal, but as growing inevitably out of the pressure of circumstances. No party in power could have resisted the pressure, first for relief and later for work relief, Anderson suggests.

President Roosevelt's predecessor, Herbert Hoover, was approaching—reluctantly to be sure—a relief program in the last year of his administration, the author points out, citing the Emergency Relief and Construction Act passed by Congress at the beginning of 1932.

"No law passed under the later Roosevelt administration has represented a more radical step than did this emergency legislation," Anderson writes. "It was the first significant reversal of the American doctrine of laissez faire."

Computing the Loss.

In computing the loss to the nation from unemployment, Anderson takes the last year of the big boom, 1929, when the total national income was 80 billions. It declined to less than 40 billions in 1932 and came back gradually to slightly more than 65 billions.

"If we add together the income loss sustained during each of six depression years, including 1936," he writes, "we get a total loss of over 200 billion dollars of national income. This is a bill that has yet to be paid. Its very existence, though unrecognized, exercises a greater retarding effect on recovery than any other debt we could have contracted.

"An accumulated income loss of 200 billion dollars represents more money than all the national income for two more prosperous years than 1929. If that huge income loss were shared by 120,000,000 people, the burden per person for each of six years would be about $285. Consider what that would mean in increased purchasing power, in better living conditions, for a family of five for six years—or even for one year!"

Preliminary estimates of the national income for 1937, just announced by experts in the Department of Commerce, put it at nearly 70 billions. In his recent "fireside talk" President Roosevelt said that despite the present slump he hoped the total income for the present year would not fall far below 60 billions.

The Cost of Neglect.

Under the weight of mass unemployment the whole physical plant that the nation lives by—bridges, highways, sewers—goes to pieces, the author of "The Right to Work" points out. Health declines, sickness increases. The medical bill mounts to staggering proportions and most of it is unpaid inasmuch as the unemployed cannot afford medical care. If, in emergencies, they must have a doctor's services, the doctor goes unpaid. And so the cost, unseen, unrecognized for the most part, accumulates by what appears when it is analyzed to be an almost geometric progression.

"Eventually," Anderson writes, "the cost of neglect to one's body and property must be paid. Whether these losses are public or private, they hang over in unpaid bills. Farmers have a term for such bills for benefits not received. They call them "paying for dead horses."

"The billions lost to workers are really losses in work they did not do as well as in benefits denied to others. Add up all the idleness of the unemployed during six depression years and the result is a labor deficiency of no less than 50,000,000 man-years. Not only the workers and their families, but all who might have shared the benefits of their labor are forced to bear the cost of these 50,000,000 man-years of wasted labor. That was a bill for "dead horses" amounting to no less than 200 billion dollars."

Evolution of Program.

Anderson's book is written in a simple, straight forward style, intended for reading by a large audience. The author traces the evolution of the present works program from its beginning. The relief program was started in 1933, he points out, merely as a stop-gap until private business should re-employ men and women who were without jobs. No one believed that it would last very long, perhaps six months at the most. At the outset, straight relief was administered by counties and states. The first venture into work relief was through the short-lived Civil Works Administration in October, 1933, which followed the failure of the large-scale public building program—dams, courthouses, power plants—to absorb the jobless. When C W A was abandoned, the F E R A was resumed and gradually a works program was built up to supplement direct relief.

Then in July, 1935, the present W P A, doing away with direct relief by the Federal Government entirely and offering jobs to "employables" at a "security" wage, was started.

The W P A is still regarded more or less as a temporary device to take care of surplus labor until it can be absorbed in industry. More and more, however, and again by the force of circumstance, it is taking on a permanent character. In the course of a recent press conference at Hyde Park the President discussed with reporters the need for a permanent works program that could be expanded and contract rapidly and easily.

Old Deal and New.

"Although Old Deal and New do not differ greatly in fundamental aims," Anderson writes, "they do differ widely in their formal programs. The New Deal, because it is committed to action, finds itself with each step drifting toward a new concept of the relation of government to business. This difference grows out of another, which concerns the method of administering unemployment relief. The Old Deal doled out money to the corporations and banks at the top of the ailing economic system; the New Deal circulated it among the unemployed at the bottom.

"To illustrate the difference of method, let us look at the $90,000,000 lent by the R F C to a Chicago bank. What ultimately became of the money nobody knows. The bank had to close its doors. Presumably the money trickled down through the channels of trade. But the same amount of money distributed to the needy unemployed would have been spent at once by two, three, or more, million workers for the necessities of life. It would have entered the channels of trade

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

CHRISTOPHER MORLEY did not know how truthful he was when he said, "The oracle of today drops from his tripod on the morrow."

In 1918, everyone went wild over the soldier boys. Nothing was too good for the "laddies." An unknown warrior of the great international holocaust was buried with more magnificent military honors than had ever been accorded anyone before.

Joyce Kilmer, one of the many young men who died in the fevered attempt to wring from the great debris an ideal democracy, wrote an epochal poem before he succumbed. John McCrae, a Canadian, described the settlement of the international problems as a "torch," and entreated following generations to hold it high. Then he died. Everyone promised faithfully to keep faith with those who never came back from Flanders.

It did not take long for the immense popularity of the soldier boy to wane. Somehow, the belief spread that the program to preserve democracy had not preserved it at all.

Today, soldiers are not respected with a holy patriotism as formerly, and the world, in its maddening pace, does not gaze with awe upon a man who has been torn by disease, gas or misuse in the trenches. No one feels his heart beat faster and his eyes grow dim when he passes on some city street and is bound to look at a dejected figure, trying to foist pencils, safety-pins or shoe laces upon an indifferent public.

A definite cycle is formed in the life of the soldier. First, he is forced to wilt under the blare of appeals to his patriotism. Second, he is carried on the shoulders of the populace and made to feel he is a second Messiah. Third, he fights for those who have already forgotten him. Fourth, he returns home and is greeted by a citizenry which praises out of one corner of the mouth and refuses him out of the other. Fifth, the "faith" everyone has been talking about must be subordinated to preparations for the "protection" of a stray gunboat which has wandered too far from home and has drawn fire. Sixth, the valiant soldier boy hugs the sidewalks, while his country passes him by as just so much idle machinery in an attempt to recruit new and able-bodied men for the attainment of an ideal which the last conflict threw into terrible reverse.

"There's something about a soldier that is fine." Thank God, there is at least something. But the hulk that often remains of the valiant youth who went out to fight for a great ideal, and the contempt which people accord him as an encumbrance upon society after his return, are the best typical testimonials to the glory that is war.

Hoyleton, Ill. RALPH O. GROTE.

Boy in the Street.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Small coupe tries to pass a truck as a large truck comes from the opposite direction. Brakes groan, rubber screeches and the truck comes to a stop 15 feet from the child.

Will this little fellow land in the hospital with a broken little body depending on public medical aid for his right to live? His chances are very good to do just that. HANK.

If You Don't Like Your Uncle Sammy.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

WHILE listening to the radio July 4, I heard an old song which impressed me more than anything had for a long time. I do not remember all the words, but four of the lines went like this:

If you don't like your Uncle Sammy,
If you don't like the Red, White and Blue . . .
Then don't act like the cur in the story;
Don't bite the hand that's feeding you.

It seems to me that with all this foreign propaganda going around, it would be a good thing if some well known orchestra would revive this song, as the words are only too true as applied to some of our "visitors."

AMERICAN.

An Interesting Old Newspaper.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

RECENTLY while I was repairing a very old dresser, I happened to remove the back of the mirror in which I found a very old copy of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch. It has about eight pages and is unusually "newsy."

The date of it is Feb. 14, 1897. It was the 189th issue of Vol. 48.

All of the articles are very well written and are of nation-wide interest or, should I say, were of nation-wide interest.

One gets a thrill out of comparing and contrasting the line of news of then and of today, also the type and style of print and reporting.

I thought that this incident might be of some interest to you and your many readers.

I shall keep it as a keepsake and as a novelty for its humor and its historical value, for it mentions the Spanish-American War, Mark Hanna and McKinley.

"THE NATION'S PROBLEM."

Yet another effort to "save the South" is under way. An imposing 17-point analysis of the South's economic ills has been brought forward by the National Emergency Council and accepted by the President with the ringing statement that this "unbalance can and must be righted."

Well and good, but it remains to be seen how much will actually be done. We may venture, although the full document has not yet been published, that the N E C's report will contain little not revealed in studies already existing.

The major ills of the South are comparatively easy to recognize and the remedies would seem to be indicated by the diagnosis. First and foremost, the South is suffering from an overdose of the protective tariff, administered over several decades. The South has been milked of its capital by having to sell its principal product—cotton—at prices set by the world market, while buying what it required at prices set by a tariff-protected market. The primary need of the South, then, is a reduction in trade barriers.

Such a reduction would automatically help restore the cotton belt's fast-dwindling foreign market and would do away with the necessity for artificial crop restrictions, which are bound to prove harmful as a continuing policy. But even with a revival of the cotton market, Southern agriculture still will need to free itself from slavishly following the one-crop system. Diversification is urgently need, at least to the extent of enabling the region to grow its own food and feed crops. Solution of the tenancy problem is another pressing need of Southern agriculture.

As the N E C has indicated, the South needs additional industries to absorb its fast-growing population. And as the N E C neglected to point out, the South should be freed from the burdensome freight rate differentials which handicap it in competing with Northern industry.

The South has suffered from absentee ownership of its principal industries. Not only have profits been pumped out of the South, but various means, such as the basing-point price-fixing system for steel, have been used to prevent Southern industry from competing in Northern markets with industrial plants of the Midwest.

Finally, educational opportunity in the South needs to be broadened. A high illiteracy rate and a low average of educational achievement tend to delay necessary economic adjustments. The situation calls particularly for an expansion of the facilities for vocational education. In proportion to its income, the Southern states have been spending measurably more for public education than other sections of the country, but even so, the school systems for the most part have been backward, except in urban areas.

Some of the South's maladies can be corrected only through action by the Federal Government. Others are primarily matters of state and local concern. Yet all the maladjustments are related as to cause and effect, and the solution of any particular problem would help with the solution of others. For example, revival of the foreign cotton market and abolition of the freight rate handicap should raise the general level of prosperity and afford tax resources which could be drawn upon to provide better schools.

Mr. Roosevelt is right when he says that conditions in the South are "the nation's problem—not merely the South's." Because St. Louis' preferential trade territory embraces six Southern states and two border states, this city has a particular reason for hoping that the administration's attention to the problem will get results.

OPPORTUNITY BEFORE THE CITY SURVEY.

The Citizens' Committee on Survey and Audit, set up by Mayor Dickmann and now beginning to function under the chairmanship of Sidney Maestre, has a notable opportunity for accomplishing much in behalf of more efficient and economical municipal government. It has made a fine start by retaining the able Governmental Research Institute as consultant. The character of the committee's personnel is an assurance of sound policy.

While the committee's agenda has not been announced, it has been stated that the field would be broad enough to cover virtually all phases of the city's business. That will take in a lot of territory, for the city's functions extend literally from the cradle to the grave and touch somehow on the daily life of every citizen. To administer these activities requires a big organization and budget. It was inevitable that in the course of time many conditions would arise which would need correction.

Fortunately, there is no indication that the city charter, adopted in 1914, is faulty in any essential. Its general scheme of organization has proved exceedingly workable. Nor has the city government grown more complicated along with the Federal New Deal, save in the tremendous problem of relief. The city's job is principally one of maintenance and operation in familiar fields. Elimination of the huge deficit and a genuine balancing of the budget, in the face of shrunken revenues and increased needs, form the horns of the municipal dilemma. The survey will be similar to and probably even more important to the public than the inquiry into public school operation proposed by the School Board.

If the expected beneficial recommendations come from the city survey, it will be the administration's duty to see that they are carried out, regardless of whose toes may be pinched.

ANOTHER CHANGE IN THE MAP.

Bit by bit, the work of the post-war map makers is being undone. The latest instance concerns the Sanjak (district) of Alexandretta, in Northern Syria, a region small in area but great in strategic possibilities. Pressure by Kemal Ataturk, dictator of Turkey, has caused France and the League of Nations to back down, and has brought an added degree of Turkish control there that causes observers to predict annexation in the near future.

The district, a virtual gateway to the Arab world, was part of the territory separated from Turkey after the World War and placed under French mandate. Because the Turkish minority totals about 40 per cent of the 14,000 population, Kemal 18 months ago obtained a status of autonomy for the district. An election under League supervision had been scheduled for July 15, but Turkish agitation compelled the League commissioners to leave, and brought France to accept joint Turkish occupation of the area. France strengthens her hand by making a treaty of friendship with Turkey, but incurs the suspicion of the Arab nations by this concession to their traditional enemy. The promises of Arab and Syrian independence, it begins to appear, may go unfulfilled because of the Anglo-French desire to win Turkey as an ally against the German and Italian threat in the Near East.

Again the old game of power politics and diplomatic wire-pulling is being played. When a dictator's bluster can virtually set aside a League mandate, designed to safeguard the rights of minority peoples, we are back in the era when self-determination was only a political theory.

"DEAR ALBEN" GETS THE CALL.

"How happy could I be with either, were t'other dear charmer away!" Thus our peripatetic President at Latonia. But of course Senator Barkley got the call over "Happy" Chandler in Kentucky's race for the Democratic senatorial nomination. Everybody knew that the presidential favor would be bestowed where it was. The realities of politics made it inevitable that the President should indorse his Senate majority leader if he indorsed anybody in the Kentucky contest. No one in Congress has been more faithful in the execution of the Roosevelt policies than the "Dear Alben" of the letter written by the President when the Senate Democrats were about to choose a leader after the death of Senator Robinson.

If it is argued that the President should have kept silent, the answer is that what he did was thoroughly in keeping with the realities of his position as the leader of his party. It is no new thing for a President to throw the weight of his influence into a state primary. Republicans and Democrats alike have done it. Sometimes it is done openly and sometimes subtly, behind the scenes, without the hand of the President showing. Mr. Roosevelt is acting in character by expressing his preferences in a more spectacular way than is customary.

As we have said before, each case of intervention by the President needs to be judged separately, on its merits. We can see no good reason why the President shouldn't have come out for the nomination of his Senate leader, an experienced legislator, over "Happy" Chandler. No national issue is involved, since both men are running as complete New Dealers, and the "party purge"—which seems to have simmered down to small proportions—doesn't enter into the picture. Chandler's effort to have the way cleared for him, through a deal involving a judicial appointment for Senator Logan, gives added justification for the President's choice.

The case of Otha Wearin and Senator Gillette, where the intervention was by presidential subordinates with the President remaining nominally neutral, was a horse of another color; for there the effort was made, in defiance of a definite pledge by National Chairman Farley and in defiance, more importantly, of sound public morals, to punish a man for daring to vote his convictions against the Supreme Court packing scheme.

As for "Happy" Chandler, who "never came to Washington and went away empty-handed" (there are disturbing implications in that remark by the President), the only question in the public mind was how the deed would be done. Mr. Roosevelt came through with as neat a bit of sword play as the political arena has seen this season. He pinked "Happy," that was all, and then poured balm into the wound. We don't envy the task of John Hamilton in trying to cope with political finesse of that quality.

SOCIAL CREDIT'S KAYO.

"Nowhere to go but out." That seems to be the predicament of William Aberhart, Alberta's Premier and proprietor of the Social Credit plan that was to spread joy and abundance over all the province. Everybody of voting age was to be given $25 a month, and subsequently the princely Premier engaged to distribute largess to all the people, regardless of age. He never got around to it.

Never let it be said, though, that he did not try. He has been persistent and resourceful in drafting formulas and fashioning devices to bring the happy days. His latest charter of plenty, which a subservient Legislature promptly approved, provided for a press that would tell the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, as Aberhart understood the truth; it also carried a scheme for regulating credit that virtually placed every solvent citizen on parole.

The Dominion Supreme Court voided the measures, as was generally predicted, and now the Judicial Committee of the British Privy Council, the last court of appeal, has administered the coup de grace.

It's a long way to Utopia.

A WELL-PLANNED INVESTIGATION.

Some time will elapse before the inquiry actually begins, but it already seems evident that the anti-monopoly investigation will be on a high plane.

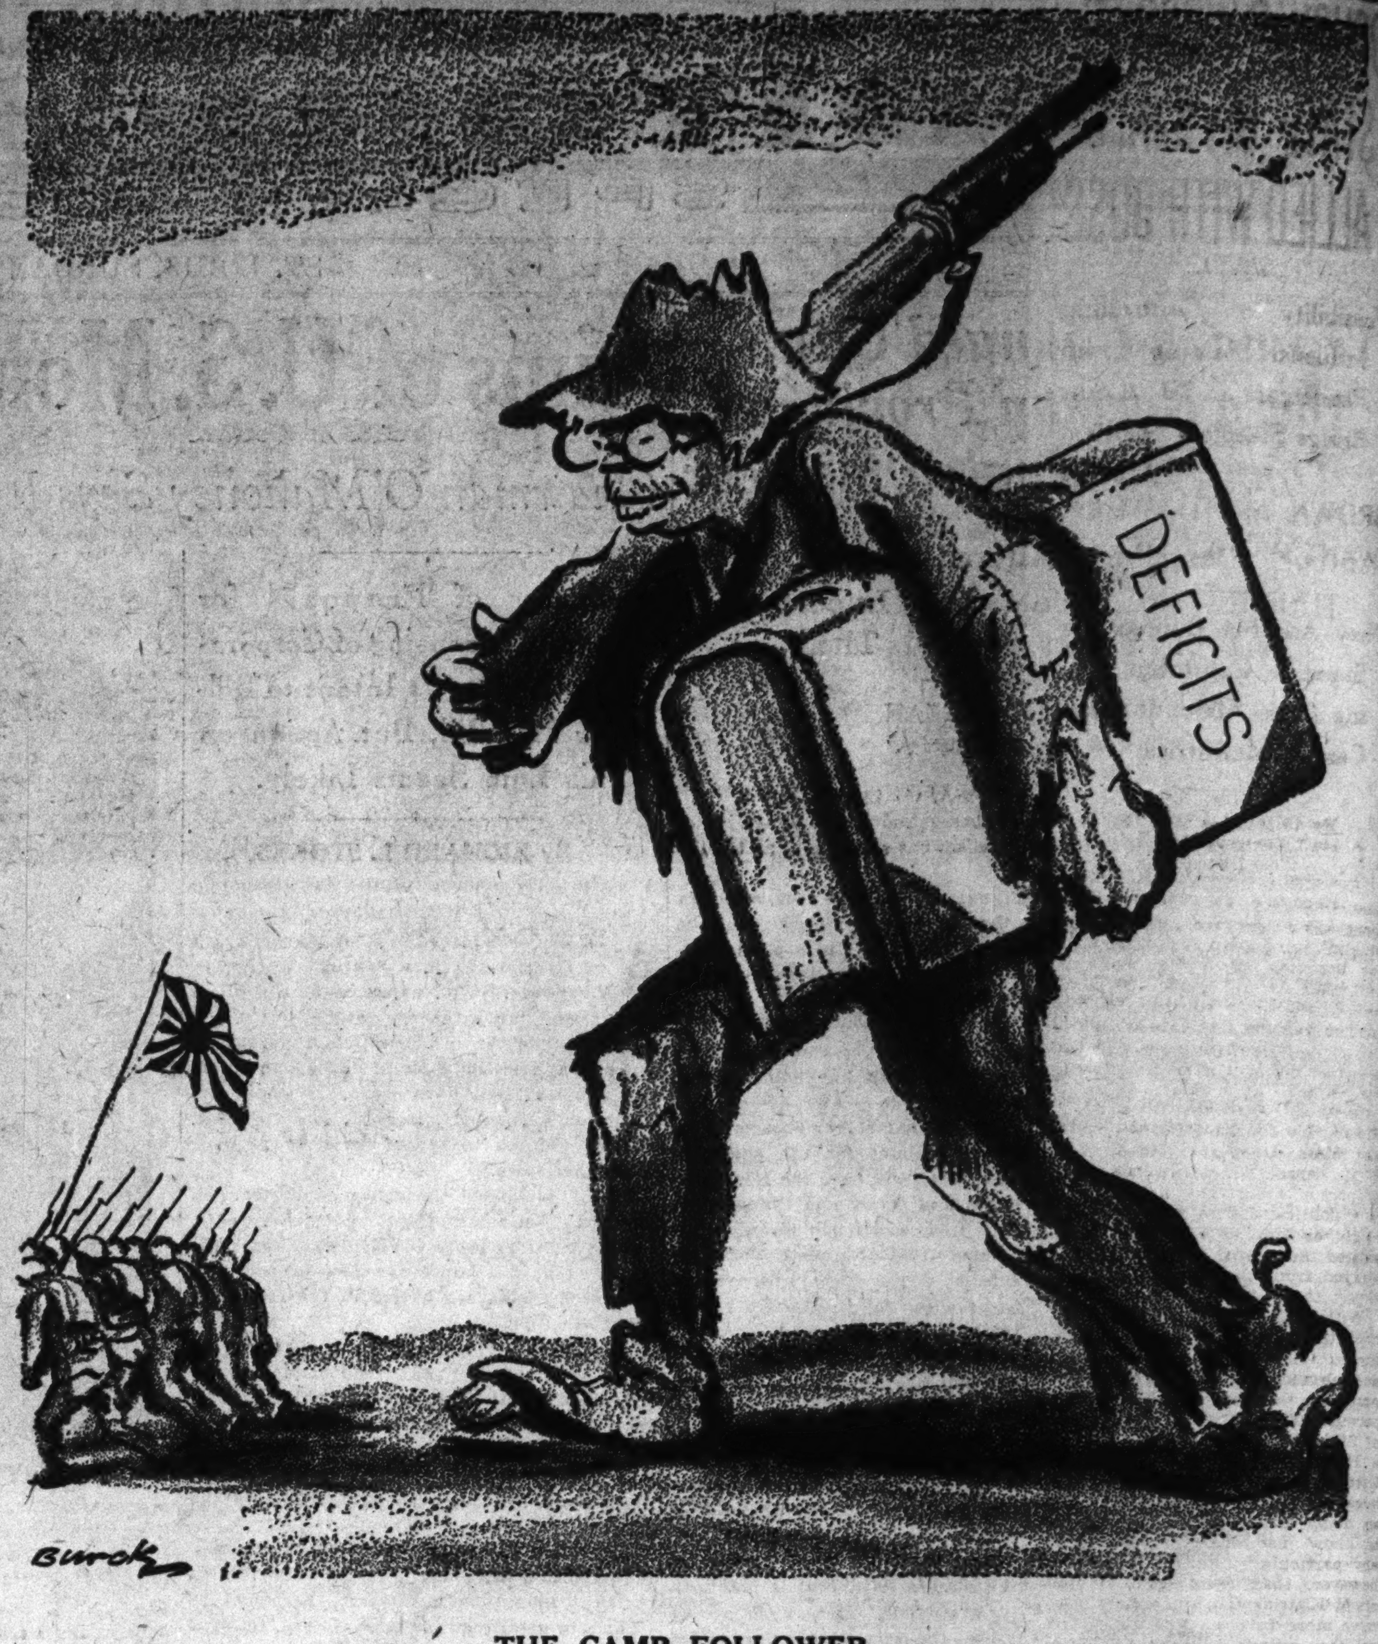
The personnel of the investigating group, in the first place, is reassuring. The congressional members—Senators Borah, O'Mahoney and King and Representatives Sumners, Reece and Eicher—will bring ability, interest and diverse points of view to the important work before the committee. The Department of Labor could hardly have a more qualified representative than Dr. Isador Lubin, Commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, a skilled economist who went into public life from the Brookings Institution. Assistant Attorney-General Thurman Arnold, Chairman William O. Douglas of the S E C, former Chairman Garland S. Ferguson of the Federal Trade Commission, and Herman Oliphant of the Treasury all are executives of proved capacity.

Then the plan of the investigation is evidence of thoughtful preparation. The general practice in congressional investigations has been to allow committee members to question pretty much at will according to the phases of the inquiries which interested them. The anti-trust investigation is planned so as to allow various administrative agencies to look into the aspects of trust operation and control which they are peculiarly fitted to investigate. For example, the S E C will inquire into investment pools, large aggregations of wealth and corporation powers and structures, while the Department of Labor will devote its attention to the effect of combinations, mergers and price policies on labor, employment and living conditions.

Finally, there is the purpose of the investigation, which has been well stated by Senator O'Mahoney, who sponsored a Federal incorporation bill in the last session of Congress. Declaring that the intention is to hold an "objective, not a punitive" investigation, the Wyoming Senator said:

> The purpose of the committee is not to pillory any industry or group, but to draw a broad picture of American industry as it is and to find out how the machine operates. There is no intention here to reveal violations of the law, but to get the broad aspects on which recommendations for corrective legislation may be based.

The committee will find that it has decided wisely in this matter of purpose. What is needed now, as Senator O'Mahoney says, is a careful stock-taking on which recommendations can be based.



THE CAMP FOLLOWER.

Paradox of the Twentieth Century

Today's dominant institutions and social thought stem from around eighteenth century, while material culture is fully up to date; this discrepancy creates our gravest problems, writer says; "we cannot go on for long with one foot in an airplane and the other in an oxcart"; sees the choice before civilization as barbarism or Utopia.

From "An Intellectual and Cultural History of the Western World," by Harry Elmer Barnes; Reprinted by Courtesy of Random House, Inc., New York.

WE ARE now living in a great transitional age which differs from any previous epoch of transition in two ways. The first contrast lies in the rapidity with which the change is bound to be carried through because of the very nature of our urban industrial world civilization, which is so complex, so delicately articulated, that no change can be accomplished gradually in any one of its defective parts, since the whole system must work efficiently if it is to work at all.

The second contrast lies in the choice facing our age—either Utopia or barbarism. We have created a Machine Age uniquely prepared to serve us or to wreck us. Upon the type of social control imposed on our empire of machines will depend the outcome.

The most characteristic aspect of our twentieth-century civilization and that which makes our age inevitably transitional in character is the unprecedented contrast between the material and the non-material factors in our culture. We have a thoroughly up-to-date material culture, complete, diverse and potentially efficient beyond that of any earlier ages. Today we are in the midst of the third industrial revolution, characterized by varied applications of electrical power—the age of electrification, automatic machinery, electric control over manufacturing processes, air transport, radios, and so on.

On the other hand, our institutions and the social thinking through which we seek to control and exploit this material culture are an antiquated mosaic, compounded mainly of accretions from the Stone Age to the close of the eighteenth century.

The national state was a legalized institution of wide prevalence in 1648. The theories of representative government and democracy were worked out in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries. Capitalistic ideals and practices were well established long before 1800. The legal theories which dominate us today rest fundamentally upon Roman law, the medieval English common law and the seventeenth-century doctrines of natural law.

Our educational curriculum and much of its subject matter come from ancient, medieval or early modern times. The prevailing religious system dates from the beginning of the Christian era and embodies many elements far older than that. Our basic economic theories appeared in Adam Smith's "Wealth of Nations," published in the same year as our Declaration of Independence. Indeed, Smith was a much more erudite and enlightened expositor of such theories than most of the business leaders, financiers and lawyers in our own day who hark back to him.

Our moral code has developed over a protracted period, stretching from Moses to Augustine, the Puritans and Immanuel Kant. Nine-tenths of our philosophical speculation is a rehashing and rationalization of mental antiquities, originally suggested by thinkers between the ages of Socrates and Hegel.

It is, therefore, fair to say that the dominant institutions and thought of our day derive from the eighteenth century or earlier. Such a discrepancy has never existed before, except among the Attic Greeks and, to a lesser degree, the Romans. In their case, institutions and social philosophy were in advance of material culture.

Not only does this vast gulf exist in our age between material culture and social thinking and institutions, but we seemingly do everything possible to widen the abyss. We usually reward those who extend our already top-heavy material equipment, but the social inventor we make an outcast and deride as a crank. We are restrained from narrowing this gulf because of the sharply contrasting psychological attitudes with respect to material and mental antiquities.

We demand the most up-to-date models of automobiles, and the average man would be unutterably embarrassed to have to drive along a public thoroughfare in a 1925-model automobile, even though the vehicle were in perfect condition. Yet that same man may worship ideas and institutions dating from the stagecoach era.

So long as this state of mind exists, there is little hope of closing the gap between material culture and institutions—another way of saying that there is no hope of preserving civilization—since we cannot go on for long with one foot in an airplane and the other in an oxcart.

Another phase of this paradox lies in our reaction toward expert guidance. When a man wants a bathroom faucet repaired, or a tooth pulled, he deems it necessary to call on an expert. But for the much more difficult problems of social, economic and political life, he is completely satisfied with the opinions of the man on the street.

This striking discrepancy between our machines and our institutions has already exacted a frightful penalty and may exact the supreme penalty—extinction of civilization. It has produced severe depressions and other economic disasters. It has almost destroyed democracy. It has made our legal system inadequate and produced widespread contempt for law in general. It has bred moral chaos and educational futility.

If we go on as we have so far in the twentieth century, the ultimate result will be the collapse of Western civilization from internal weaknesses, with the grave probability that the process will be greatly hastened by a devastating world war. If society awakens in time and brings our institutions up to date, we may literally "inherit the earth."

EVERY MAN AN EXPERT.

F. P. A. in the New York Post.

THERE must be millions of Americans who are unable to keep their bank accounts straight; that is, so that the statements will tally with their checkbooks. Millions of Americans can't tell you who wrote the book that they read yesterday, or who wrote the play or the movie that they saw last night. Millions of New Yorkers can't tell you, offhand, which Assembly district they live in. But nobody anywhere, apparently, can't tell you—and won't—exactly what the President really means when he says anything.

When Presidents Go On Tour

From Editorial Research Reports.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S present speech-making trip across the country may give some gauge of how much of his former popularity he has lost.

It is somewhat unusual for a President to make an extended tour for political purposes except in his campaign for re-election. The exceptions have occurred chiefly when public support was needed for a particular item in the presidential program.

Thus, by the end of 1915, President Wilson had reversed his original position against any marked strengthening of the armed forces of the United States. In January, 1916, with the election of that year still 10 months away, he "swung around the circle" in behalf of preparedness. The tour was successful, and in the summer of 1916 Congress passed legislation reorganizing the army, increasing the navy and providing for industrial co-ordination in case of war.

Wilson was less successful in his tour from coast to coast in September, 1919, in behalf of the League of Nations and the Treaty of Versailles. The treaty, in the form submitted by the President, was rejected later by the Senate, and in the election of November, 1920—which Wilson called a great and solemn referendum—the Republicans, anti-League, swept the country.

Theodore Roosevelt was constantly making individual speeches during his incumbency of the White House, and they were generally credited with augmenting popular support for T. R.'s ambitious reform program. Taft traveled much while President, but often refrained from addresses en route. He did try to whip up public favor for the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill by speeches—notably one at Winona, Minn., on Sept. 17, 1909, but with little success.

In particular, Taft's statement in the Winona speech that the Payne-Aldrich bill was "the best tariff bill that the Republican party ever passed" was used against him with telling effect in the presidential campaign of 1912. Another clause in a presidential address of an off-election year which had an unfortunate effect was that of Wilson, "There is such a thing as a man being too proud to fight," in talking to a group of recently naturalized citizens in Philadelphia three days after the Lusitania was sunk.

The Western trip on which President Harding died was taken only incidentally for speech-making. Coolidge gave comparatively few political talks, even when running for re-election, and most of Hoover's speeches were not directly political until he ran for re-election.

The "swing around the circle" by a presidential candidate was really initiated by Bryan in 1896, although Greeley in 1872 and Blaine in 1884 had traveled around the country more than had previously been customary in presidential campaigns.

RIDE 'EM, COWBOY.

From the Pittsburgh Press.

IF you are not thrilled by occasional items indicating that older men are still useful in the world, be patient. Appreciation of such items will increase with the years.

There are some, no doubt, who will find a glow in an announcement from the Interior Department. The General Land Office granted a three-year grazing lease to Ned Hillyard, a rancher near Phoenix, Ariz., who is said to be "at least 100 years old." An investigator was sent to interview Mr. Hillyard. His report says:

"In spite of his advancing years, Ned Hillyard is considered yet as one of the best cowboys in the State. He was alone at his ranch at the date of my examination, and was engaged in breaking a bucking colt."

DOUGLAS WORRIES STATE OFFICIALS ALLIED WITH BOSS

BROWN, SMITH, WINN WANT HIGHER OFFICE

They Are for Billings for Supreme Court but Saying Little About It—The Case of McKittrick.

By CURTIS A BETTS,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, July 9.—The possibility that, as a result of the Douglas-Billings race for the Democratic nomination for Judge of the Supreme Court, the controlling influence in Democratic State politics will shift from the Pendergast organization in Kansas City to St. Louis, is wrecking the political peace of State officials allied with the Kansas City boss.

Secretary of State Dwight H. Brown, State Auditor Forrest Smith and State Treasurer Robert W. Winn came into office with the support of Pendergast and, looking to a political future which seemed bright as long as Pendergast considered them loyal, they have never strayed from the course he would expect them to follow.

With Attorney-General McKittrick the situation is somewhat different. He was twice nominated and elected with Pendergast support, but this has been given not because of McKittrick but because of State Senator Michael E. Casey, a Pendergast leader, who is McKittrick's friend. McKittrick has been in and out of the boss' favor so many times that it is difficult to know just where he stands at any particular time. It is known, however, that Pendergast considers McKittrick too "unstable" to receive more favors. McKittrick did not obey orders to approve the fire insurance rate litigation in which Pendergast was interested.

Brown and Smith and Winn.

Brown and Smith have been considered tentative candidates for the Democratic nomination for Governor in 1940, tentative in the sense that, if either could get Pendergast's approval, he would be a candidate. Winn, too new in State politics to be justified in aspiring to the governorship, is said to have his eye on the office of State Auditor if Smith should run for Governor. McKittrick would like to be Governor, or possibly succeed United States Senator Truman in 1940, but it would appear that, if he expects Kansas City aid, he will be disappointed, Pendergast having refused to support him when McKittrick considered running against Senator Clark.

As long as Pendergast maintained his power as a boss and could nominate or defeat any candidate with his huge machine vote in Kansas City, there was nothing to worry the Jefferson City officeholders except as to which one was in the greatest favor.

But when Gov. Stark appointed a Kansas City Board of Election Commissioners which purged the registration lists of some 50,000 to 60,000 fraudulent names and when Federal juries kept up a continuous record of convictions of Kansas City election crooks, the future did not seem so clear.

The climax came when Judge James V. Billings of Kennett entered the race for Supreme Judge as the Pendergast candidate against Supreme Judge James M. Douglas of St. Louis, who had the support of the entire St. Louis Democratic City Committee. The judicial contest, arranged by Pendergast as a test of his strength as opposed to that of Gov. Stark, who had appointed Judge Douglas and was backing him, became in reality a test of whether Pendergast or the St. Louis Democratic Committee had the greatest power.

The St. Louis committee, not particularly friendly to the Governor, gave its support to Judge Douglas because of his popularity with the committeemen, and rather in spite of the Governor's support.

For Douglas in Earnest.

So earnest is the St. Louis organization for Judge Douglas that recently, according to reliable reports, it sent word to Brown, Smith and Winn that, if they were politically wise, they would not be overly active for Judge Billings. The implied threat was that, if Douglas was defeated and if the three State officials, because of their Pendergast alliance, had any major part in the defeat, the three officials could expect the opposition of the St. Louis Democratic organization in 1940.

In view of the fact that most political observers are expecting St. Louis to give Judge Douglas a majority of about 100,000, while they are estimating that the purged election lists in Kansas City will hold Pendergast's majority for Judge Billings there to 60,000 or 65,000, the situation is an unhappy one for the State officials.

They are so tied in with Pendergast that they would be classed by practical politicians as political traitors if they failed to go along with him for Judge Billings. And, to Pendergast, going along means something more than passive support. It means exerting all the influence they have.

But, if they do that, there is the bigger St. Louis Democratic vote, much of it controlled by city committeemen, to be faced. It is enough to cause ambitious officeholders sleepless nights, and to cause them to wonder whether they will not lose whoever wins the judicial race.

"They Know My Connections."

They are for Judge Billings, but personally are not saying much about it. One of them, questioned as to his activity among his several hundred employes, protested that he made no attempt to influence the votes of his employes.

"The franchise is a great privilege of citizenship," he said, "and nobody should be under any coercion. Of course, from the practical standpoint, employes know my political connections.

"It is natural that they should be inclined to stay with the crowd that gave them their jobs. Undoubtedly many of them are doing that."

There is no doubt that virtually all of them are doing just that, actively working for Judge Billings.

THEORY MAN'S EFFICIENCY IS AT PEAK IN MID-AFTERNOON

Scientist Who Spent 32 Days in Mammoth Cave Says Higher Body Temperature Is Reason.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 9.—Dr. Nathaniel Kleitman of the University of Chicago said today experiments had convinced him that man's efficiency is at its peak when body temperature is highest, in the middle of the waking hours, usually mid-afternoon for most individuals.

"Before a person goes to bed, his body temperature and his efficiency begin dropping; but, as a rule, an individual's efficiency is higher when he goes to bed than when he wakes up in the morning," he said.

Dr. Kleitman has just returned from Mammoth Cave, Ky., where he and B. H. Richardson, a graduate student, lived for 32 days on a 28-hour day schedule in one of a series of experiments dealing with the functioning efficiency of the human system.

Causeway and Mummies 50 Centuries Old Found

Richly Ornamented Inscriptions Explain Puzzling Question of Where Ancient Egyptians Cut and Dressed Granite.

By the Associated Press.

CAIRO, Egypt, July 9.—A city of 20,000 dead and a richly ornamented funeral causeway have been unearthed from the dust of 50 centuries at Sakkara.

The discoverer, Selim Bey Hassan, said today at least 20,000 mummies lie in the necropolis beneath the causeway which connected a valley temple with the funeral chapel of Unas, last King of the fifth dynasty.

The necropolis antedates the causeway—or walled passage—by about 300 years but Selim said he found evidence it was used long after the causeway was built.

Discovery of the latter was termed a find of highest importance because inscriptions on the walls answered the puzzling question of where ancient Egyptians cut and dressed granite used for statues and temples.

Where Stone Was Cut.

These inscriptions told the story of a technical school beside the quarries of Asswan where all the dressing was done and where men learned how to cut the stone which was shipped northward by way of the Nile.

The richly ornamented causeway is a passage 700 yards long and seven feet wide. The side walls, nine feet high, were covered with the largest known collecton of old kingdom inscriptions and scenes.

Ceiled with blue-painted stone to represent the sky, the passage was covered with large limestone blocks, with a central slit running its whole length to admit light and air. Walls and floor were on white tura limestone.

Scenes depicted included the transport by boat of red granite columns and capitals from Asswan to the pyramid of Unas, wresting between Egyptians and Bedouins, and transport by boat of Asiatic prisoners.

King Unas With Gods.

Other scenes showed work in the fields in the four seasons, including gathering of honey and figs, harvesting, bird catching and breeding of animals.

Marketing scenes depicted trading by barter, men beating out gold leaf, and the casting of metal, polishing of gold and stone utensils and weighing of goods in fine scales.

Discovery of the route from the chapel led to the finding of the valley temple itself.

More than 300 stelae (slabs or pillars) and false doors were found in the temple—placed there to remind their owners of benefits conferred by the King.

The cemetery was cut from solid rock and covered several acres. It was traversed by long galleries from which passages led to funeral chambers and storerooms.

Along with the thousands of mummies were found pottery vases and fragments of alabaster vases.

SCIENTISTS ISOLATE VITAMIN THAT CONTROLS FERTILITY

Successful Tests With It in Its Synthetic Form, as a Powder, Reported.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 9.—The isolation and synthesization of vitamin E, which controls fertility, was announced yesterday in the weekly journal, Science.

The vitamin, which appears naturally in wheat germ oil, has a double-ring nucleus and a long tail of 10 hydrocarbon groups. It is a white powder in its synthetic form.

The identification of the vitamin ended long research by Dr. Lee Irvin Smith, Dr. Herbert E. Ungnade and Dr. W. W. Prichard of the University of Minnesota and Dr. Herbert M. Evans, Dr. Gladys A. Emerson and Dr. Oliver H. Emerson of the University of California.

Dr. Evans reported that sterile white female rats had normal offspring when fed synthetic vitamin E and that the reproductive germ cells of male rats died when the animals were deprived of the vitamin.

SHIRLEY TEMPLE TAKES SWIM WITH SISTIE AND BUZZIE DALL

HYDE PARK, N. Y., July 9. — Shirley Temple went swimming with President Roosevelt's grandchildren, Sistie and Buzzie Dall, in the pool at the Roosevelt country estate here today.

Scarcely had the 9-year-old movie star, who is on her first trip East, arrived at Val Kill cottage and been greeted by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, than the Dall children invited her to swim. The invitation was accepted promptly by Shirley, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. George F. Temple, and her manager, Jack Mulcahy.

Shirley, guarded by New York City detectives, came here by automobile and will return to New York tonight. Tomorrow she will be the guest of Gov. and Mrs. Herbert H. Lehman at their summer home in Purchase, N. Y.

THEORY SEIZURE OF AUSTRIA BY HITLER PREVENTED WAR

Brother of Yugoslav Premier Says Otto Was About to Try to Seize Throne.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Dr. Dragomir Stoyadinovitch, brother of the Premier of Yugoslavia and Secretary of the Yugoslavian Parliament, said today that Hitler's seizure of Austria forestalled a secretly-planned attempt to restore the Hapsburg throne and prevented an "inevitable" war between Yugoslavia and Austria which might have developed into a general European conflict.

Archduke Otto, heir to the Austrian throne, had an agreement with Czechoslovakia and France to go back to Vienna and proclaim himself monarch," said Dr. Stóyadinovitch, here for an unofficial study of social and economic conditions. "He would have acted in less than two weeks if Hitler had not stepped in. That's what made Hitler act so suddenly.

"Otto has pledged himself to restore the Hapsburg empire, if he ever regains the throne. A third of Yugoslavia was carved out of the Austro-Hungarian empire under the Treaty of Versailles.

Vienna Changed Under Nazi Rule; Fear Dominates

important question—which is, in fact, one of life and death for National Socialism—has been intelligent and determined. Experience has shown that the masses of the workers care for food, shelter and employment more than for any idea or ideal.

Between March 11 and April 10, when the population was asked to vote for Chancellor Adolf Hitler, a vast amount of food and money was given away in the working-class districts of Vienna. Demands for aid from the ordinary charitable organizations practically ceased during this period.

Socialist workers who had suffered imprisonment or unemployment and often eviction under the old regime were restored to liberty, jobs and houses. Every effort was made by the Nazi labor propaganda to employ the Left revolutionary vocabulary, so that these workers should be convinced that the new regime existed for their benefit.

The determined invention of Kraft Durch Freude (the Strength Through Joy) organization which endeavors to make life more agreeable for workers by means of free sports, excursions and amusements, was rapidly transplanted into Austria and encouraged to the utmost.

The usual tribal slogans and songs tending to inculcate ideas of Germanic superiority and power were used to arouse mass enthusiasm.

By hook or crook, unemployment was cut down so that in some districts of Vienna it does not exist. The workers were told that the city's park and treasures, once the property of the aristocrats and Jews, now belonged to them so long as they behaved themselves.

Excursion boats on the Danube, marching children and singing men in the streets all are part of the general psychological phenomenon of National Socialism, which does in fact carry away the minds and hearts of a great part of the masses.

Those who refused to be carried away by these persuasions have been easy enough to deal with, since no limits are now set to police power in Vienna.

Few there were, of course, who did not fail to observe how this trumped-up enthusiasm, these cajolements, flatteries and loud noises, concealed the annihilation of all liberty for the working class. The right to strike ceased to exist for everybody in Austria on March 11. Liberty of speech ceased on the same day.

Steadily, from then to now, Nazi party workers have eradicated the dissatisfied—those who refused to be persuaded and could not be flattered or bribed.

Thousands went to the Dachau concentration camp, and other thousands in the last two weeks have been transported to forced labor in North Germany or on fortifications on the Czechoslovak frontier. Those who remain—and they are, of course, greatly in the majority—are good Nazi workers, ready to cheer and sing when they are supposed to do so, and more than ready to accept the social security which National Socialism actually does insure to those who will work and obey.

How much secret dissatisfaction there is, nobody can guess; but the fact is that enrollment of workers in the National Socialist party is steady on the increase.

The proletariat of Vienna had no very imperative reason for loving the last two regimes to which it was subjected, and the new forms and organizations, with their feudal revolutionary slogans and their tribal emotionalism, do make life seem a much more exciting and hopeful affair for those who yield to them.

I emphasize the power of the Nazis with the workers because this seems to me not only the most important current phenomenon but also one which has received the least notice. The terrorization of Jews, Catholics, aristocrats and intellectuals has been the chief object of the world's interest, and does, of course, dominate the atmosphere of present day Vienna for all persons not members of the working class.

MISSOURI PRISON EXPANSION FOUND TO BE INADEQUATE

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—In an exhaustive report entitled "The Prison Problem in Missouri," which has been submitted to President Roosevelt and which was made public tonight, the Prison Industries Reorganization Administration declared that "Missouri has today an over-centralized, unbalanced and undiversified penal system."

Unflinching criticisims are directed at the policy of herding a great majority of adult criminals in one institution, the State penitentiary at Jefferson City. Ther it is stated, "nearly 4300 prisoners are housed in quarters suitable for about 2300, and men are compelled to sleep in unsatisfactory, unventilated quarters." Its population on Dec. 30, 1937, was 4202 men and 76 women.

Since the penitentiary receives all convicted felons whose terms of sentence are two years or more, the survey finds that its inmates range from a prisoner serving "six lives and eight years" for many serious charges, to a 74-year-old man under sentence of two years for "borrowing three old hound dogs." Some are first offenders, and some have long prison records.

"It is significant," declared the report, "that Missouri's largest institution contains nearly twice as many inmates as New York's, although Missouri's total penal population is only half as great as New York's. The excessive concentration of the penal population in one place in Missouri is evident. Even after the present building program is completed, the Missouri State penitentiary will continue to be one of the largest institutions in the country."

Prisons Not Self-Supporting.

For a century, the account proceeds, Missouri has been striving to make its penitentiary self-supporting and to expand its housing facilities to keep pace with the growth of criminal population. The battle has been a losing one on both counts. A study of such figures as are available for the last century proves that prison population in the long run increases faster than population as a whole. And the conception of prison labor as a source of profit is no longer tenable, because increasing restrictions on the sale of prison goods in other states have sharply narrowed and in some cases almost eliminated the market for large scale prison production.

"The outstanding need of the Missouri penal system," it is declared, "is a well-thought-out, long-range plan of development based on the principle of treating prisoners as individuals, with industries operated not for profit but for rehabilitation."

The point is made that, even after the current $5,000,000 building program is completed, the penitentiary and its outlying properties, including the new minimum-security prison at Church Farm, will not be adequate for housing under decent standards more than 80 or 85 per cent of the present prison population, and "will be totally unable to care for the increased population which may be expected in coming years."

At Governor's Request.

The report, it is stated, was undertaken at the request of Gov. Lloyd C. Stark, and was made in co-operation with Chairman J. E. Matthews of the Board of Penal Institutions and with Commissioners P. F. Willis and Paul V. Renz. Under control of the board are the State Penitentiary, the Intermediate Reformatory for young men at Algoa Farms, the Missouri Training School for Boys at Boonville, the State Industrial Home for Girls at Chillicothe and the State Industrial Home for Negro Girls at Tipton. The report also considers the department for insane criminals now under construction as part of the Fulton State Hospital, though this department is under the direction of the board of managers of eleemosynary institutions.

The rule is laid down that "the best prison plant in the world, unless competently run, is worthless either as a means of keeping men locked up or as a correctional institute." It is pointed out that modern prison methods do not favor large institutions, which lead to idleness and overcrowding, and make impossible scientific classification and training of individuals.

Some Recommendations.

The investigators recommend that the members of the board be appointed for overlapping terms, so as to minimize political pressure and assure continuity of policy, and that they be freed of administrative details by the creation of an executive staff to be composed of a director of classification and casework, a medical director, a director of education and vocational training, an industrial director and a farm supervisor. It is suggested that all persons employed by the department should be selected and promoted on a merit basis, and given civil service status, and that a school for guards should be established.

"If present quarters are to be used to best advantage and new facilities are to be properly planned and located," the report continues, "there is urgent need for study and classification of the entire inmate population at the State penitentiary." An experienced professional staff is named as the first requirement for starting classification work, to include psychologists, caseworkers, a psychiatrist and other additions to the medical staff, "which is now much overburdened."

Tests have shown, it is declared, that 10 per cent of the prison population are feeble-minded. It is recommended that the board make a special study of criminal mental defectives, with a view to establishing them in a separate farm institution, apart from normal prisoners, and to providing special indefinite commitments in such cases.

Public markets for manufactures by prison labor having mostly been destroyed, it is urged that prisoners should create goods and farm products for institutions and agencies which are supported by State taxes.

For Women Prisoners.

Women prisoners at the penitentiary, it is urged, should be segregated in a farm of the cottage type, operated as an independent unit under a woman superintendent, with a larger staff and better hospital woman quarters. The suggestion is offered that such an institution might reduce its per capita cost by "boarding" prisoners from nearby states, such as Arkansas and Oklahoma, which have no separate prison facilities for women.

"The Algoa Intermediate Reformatory," it is stated, "has a splendid plant and has begun intelligent classification work, but it will not develop as a first-class minimum-security institution unless the population is selected more carefully and the staff is appointed on a merit bases with security of tenure. Case workers, an industrial director, civilian nurses and part-time psychiatric and surgical service are badly needed, as well as several small vocational shops and considerable school equipment."

SCOTT FIELD BUILDING TO START TUESDAY

$5,653,000 P W A and W P A Projects to Make It One of Army's Busiest Airports.

Work will be started Tuesday on the reconstruction and enlargement of Scott Field, under P W A and W P A allotments aggregating $5,653,400 announced yesterday, in preparation of the post as headquarters of the Army's General Headquarters Air Force, which will be moved from Langley Field, Va.

This will make Scott Field, east of Belleville, one of the busiest military airports in the nation. About 35 officers, 200 enlisted men and 20 airplanes will be sent to Scott Field from Langley Field, but it has not been decided whether the transfer, ordered for strategic reasons, will be carried out before or after completion of the improvements.

Most of the present Scott Field structures are of "temporary" wartime construction and there are no runways in the landing area.

Landing Field to Be Enlarged.

Included in the P W A allotment of $4,403,400 was $120,000 for purchase of land to enlarge the field, which is now a mile square except for the absence of a small bit at the northeastern corner. Maj. Walter T. Meyer, adjutant, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter yesterday that it was proposed to buy land of somewhat irregular outline to make the field approximately a mile and one-half square. The enlargement will be to the east and north and will facilitate drainage of the area.

This will permit installation of runways extending from the center of the field to the eight principal points of the compass. In effect, this will provide four runways each a mile and one-half long. Maj. Meyer said it was virtually certain the $1,250,000 dirigible hangar, erected in 1922, and the airship mooring mast, built later, would have to be removed, in order to make the runways effective. Washington dispatches quoted Air Corps officers as expressing belief these structures might not be demolished, although they said a decision had not been announced. Congressman Edwin M. Schaefer of Belleville, a member of the House Military Affairs Committee, announced last Wednesday that the hangar would be razed.

What P W A Is to Do.

Construction to be carried out under the P W A allotment will include the following: Barracks for 330 men, quarters for 35 field officers (Majors, Lieutenant-Colonels and Colonels) and 27 company officers (Captains and Lieutenants), mess or clubhouse for 10 bachelor officers, quarters for 32 non-commissioned officers, headquarters and operations buildings, heating plant, sewerage, electrical distribution and water supply systems, hospital, warehouse, post exchange, hangar, runways, miscellaneous buildings, grading and drainage.

The W P A allotment was $1,250,000 for grading and laying drain tile. This will be done with a force of about 1500 laborers, beginning Tuesday. Officers at Washington were not prepared to say when other work would be started, but added that detailed plans have been completed. As War Department building funds have been allocated, all Scott Field improvements for the next year must be paid for with P W A and W P A money.

A War Department spokesman said the improvements were designed to provide permanent quarters for the officers and men already at the field, as well as the personnel to be transferred from Virginia.

"Of Making Many Books"

EDITED BY
JOHN G. NEIHARDT

His Butterflies Are Painted

THE KING IN YELLOW. By Robert W. Chambers. (D. Appleton-Century Co., New York.)

WHEN, in 1895, this collection of nine short stories by a young painter, who was destined to be one of America's most prolific novelists, first appeared, critics vied with each other in bestowing the green and never-fading bays of literary immortality. Edward Ellis hailed the author as "a genius of the highest order," and a reviewer for the New York Commercial Advertiser described the book as "the most notable contribution to literature which has come from an American publisher in many years." In the years intervening between his first triumph and his recent death, Robert W. Chambers performed the amazing feat of turning out 80-odd novels. His stories of high society were no less esteemed than his tales of early American history. He knew how to tell a story rapidly and engagingly for people who believe the desirable function of fiction to be that of an anodyne rather than a stimulant to thought. His work was easy to read, but just as easy to forget.

The stories in this reissued volume are of two patterns: the grotesque and the romantically whimsical. The group, centering about a diabolical volume named "The King in Yellow," suggests a diluted Poe. A madman fancies himself King of the World, wearing a brass crown which he fondly believes to be decorated with priceless jewels. There is even a malevolent cat, in the authentic Poe tradition. One of the tales has to do with a beauteous maiden who is immersed in a solution which transforms her into marble. Of the horrendous book itself, one of the characters exclaims: "Oh the sin of writing such words—words which are clear as crystal, limpid and musical as bubbling springs, words which sparkle and glow like the poisoned diamonds of the Medicis! Oh, the wickedness, the hopeless damnation, of a soul who could fascinate and paralyze human creatures with such words!"

The romantic pieces exude a slighly musty odor of lavender and old lace. One of them concerns a traveler who stumbles across an isolated castle where a young girl hunts with falcons and is unaware of the modern world. Others tell of the amours and labored witticisms of gay American art students in Paris—the Paris of Chambers' own apprenticeship as a painter.

Rupert Hughes, in a slightly belligerent foreword, defends Chambers against the aspersions of realists who deny that his subject matter is vital. Hughes writes: "I cannot see why a fluttering, sunlit butterfly is not as legitimate and important a subject as a bedbug, a spider, or a toad." The trouble with Chambers is that his butterflies are obviously painted and artificial ones; there is little of the sun, air, sky, and earth about his work. Even in this early effort the future marathoner of romance had turned his back on realistic interpretation, and as his financially successful career progressed he shunned it more and more determinedly.

There Were Giants In Those Days

HOLY OLD MACKINAW. By Stewart H. Holbrook. (The Macmillan Co., New York.)

FOR nearly 300 years the American lumberjack cut a wide, handsome swath through the Northern timber. From Maine to Michigan, through Wisconsin and Minnesota, then out to the Pacific slope he strode, industrious, alcoholic, and sensual. There never was a rougher, saltier, harder fellow than he. His ax put big holes in the scenery, and his calked boots scarred the floor of many a barroom and bagnio in the tough towns on the edge of the timber. Churches and libraries and the haunts of the highbrows he let alone. He wasn't interested in pie in the sky. He demanded and got it right here.

When the logger went to work on a dark neck of virgin timber, bent on letting daylight into the swamp, the whole Northern world crackled with the blows of his ax and the blue flashes of his picturesque blasphemy. And when he had let sunshine into that particular stretch of forest, and the white-water men of his breed had dangerously ridden the logs to mill, he picked up his ax, his peavey, a plug of tobacco, and a jug of drinkin' liquor and hightailed it into a new cut.

There were giants among the loggers; not fellows like Paul Bunyan, who came on the wings of the morning or out of nightly jugs, but real jacks like Jigger Jones who, in bare feet, walked on the snow when she was down to 35 below. Jigger drank alky straight and fought with his teeth as well as his fists. When he got holt of a feller's ankle, he chawed clean through, boot, hide, and all.

This is all changed now. The hard work is done by steam, electricity, and gasoline. The logger is softening up. He listens to the radio and drives a car; and (what is, to the old-timers, a certain sign of his deterioration) he smokes cigarettes. And, by the holy old Mackinaw, sometimes he even gets married!

Here is a work that will surely become a source book on the logger. It is written with an enthusiasm that is sustained even through the valuable loggers' dictionary at the end of the volume. All the words are here, because the lumberjack was no fellow who talked in dashes.

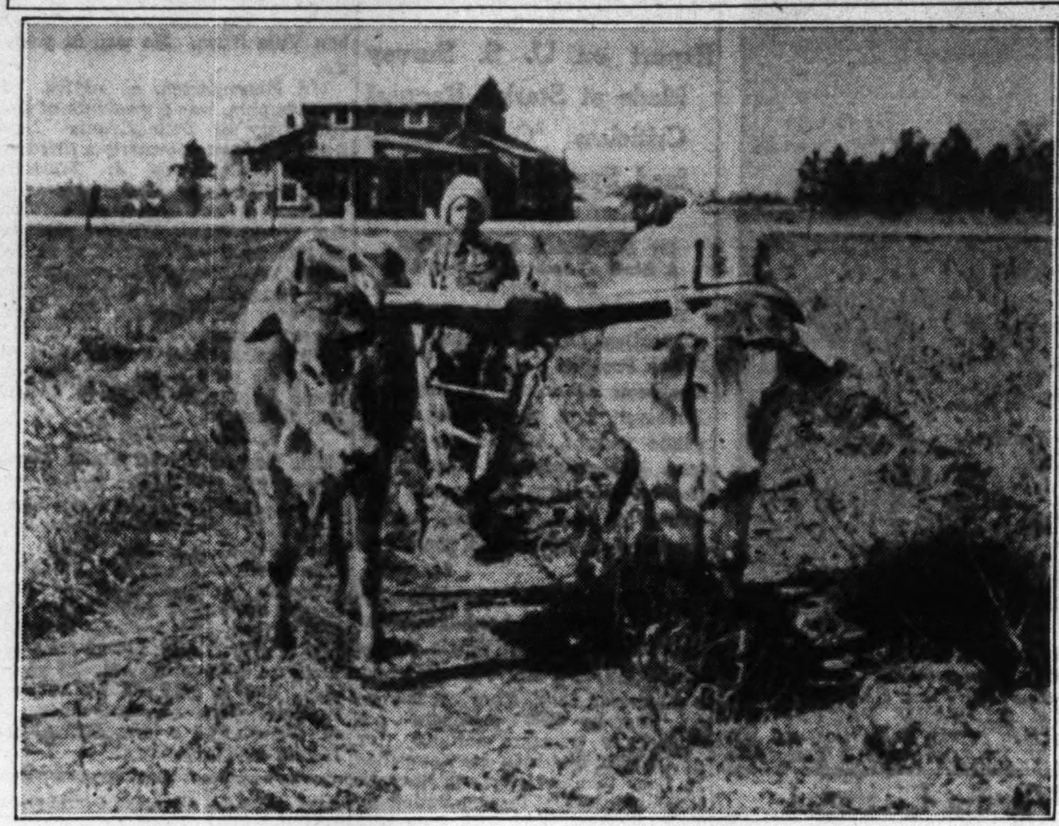
TWENTIETH-CENTURY FARMING IN THE SOUTH



From "Forty Acres and Steel Mules," an interpretation of the rural South by Herman Clarence Nixon.

What's the Matter With the South?

FORTY ACRES AND STEEL MULES. By Herman Clarence Nixon. (The University of North Carolina Press, Chapel Hill.)

"THIS book," insists the author, "is a Hillbilly's view of the South. It is an attempt to interpert the rural South and the village South in the light of the inevitable trends of the times." And it must be added that Prof. Nixon's interpretation, regardless of its validity, assuredly does reflect an intimate first-hand knowledge of the personalities and problems that he describes. This fact, even more than his qualifications as an expert in the field of political science, will lend authority to his words in the minds of many readers.

At present it is the social and economic problems of the rural South which chiefly concern Prof. Nixon; specifically, the situation of the small farmer, the share tenant, and the farm hand. Taken collectively, these groups account for an enormous proportion of the South's population; but considered, as the author says, "in a broad democratic sense, this civilization is at the national bottom in all statistical comparisons of wealth, production and culture." In a few closely-knit chapters, illustrated by a great many fine camera shots, Prof. Nixon proceeds to show why, in his opinion, this state of affairs exists and to suggest ways of remedying it.

First among its causes the author stresses an unbalanced agriculture, with emphasis upon soil-robbing crops like cotton and tobacco, and a corresponding disregard for scientific diversification and the possibilities of subsistence farming. This trend, extending back over many generations, has led to the impoverishment of soil, farm tenant, and landowner alike; resulting inevitably in the exploitation of all three by Eastern and even foreign capital, and by the local credit agencies. Thus Southern soil, tenants, and landlords have fallen together into a vicious circle which must result in ever increasing poverty and social decay unless something can be done about it.

Prof. Nixon believes that amelioration will be possible only when the problem is recognized as a national rather than a social one. By way of a remedy he recommends a closer co-operation between all concerned. This, of course, would imply a large scale program of public education, as well as the extension of facilities for acquiring farm ownership and security therein. The fostering of an effective communal spirit through the development of a more meaningful village life, and the cautious encouragement of industrialization and local craftsmanship are important supplementary points in the suggested program of social planning.

The whole argument is carefully reasoned and well pointed with significant facts. The ultimate test of its soundness, however, can be found only in practice, for the human element is often a highly unpredictable factor in schemes for social reform.

The First Ironclads

THE CONFEDERATE IRONCLAD "VIRGINIA" ("MERRIMAC"). By Harrison A. Trexler. (The University of Chicago Press, Chicago.)

A GREAT deal has been written about the famous battle between the Monitor and the Merrimac in Hampton Roads on March 8, 1862, for it was, notwithstanding the relative smallness of the participating vessels and the handful of seamen involved, one of the significant engagements of naval history.

This well-printed 95-page book, however, is the first complete story of either vessel. Dr. Trexler's subject is the Confederate ironclad, and he has handled it with historical scholarship as well as facility. The main story runs without interruption, but at the end he has more than 15 pages of notes and references which support his observations and conclusions.

The Northern reader will find it awkward to think of the Merrimac as the Virginia, but he must, for Dr. Trexler, properly enough, uses the Southern name. Although he salutes the work of their operators, the writer raises questions which suggest that, with more skillful planning of the battle, the Monitor might have defeated the Confederate boat much more quickly, or the latter might have won and steamed on up the Chesapeake and Potomac to Washington.

The writer is a professor in Southern Methodist University. Many Missourians will remember him as a one-time faculty member of Hardin College at Mexico, Mo.

FRIENDLY DOGS. By Louise Schawe. (World Book Co., Yonkers, N. Y.)

HERE are 16 true stories in which dogs are the principal characters, moving against a background of everyday life in 14 different countries. The author has the gift of story-telling, perfected by long experience in recounting for young children the incidents, adventures, and characters of the dogs she has owned or has met in her extensive travels. The authors own Airedale, Nicky, is the prize-winner of the last two stories. Other dogs considered are Pierre in Canada, who helps his master farm and fish; Ney, who lives near a Mexican serape factory; Waldi, a little dachshund, who becomes a hero in the Black Forest; and Zanna, the foster mother of two lion cubs in the Brussels zoo.

For the Camera Enthusiast

THE FUN OF PHOTOGRAPHY. By Mario and Mabel Scacheri. (Harcourt, Brace & Co., New York.)

THE Scacheris wrote this book for novices in photography, and by their sprightly narrative style, their choice of subjects for illustration, and some flights of humor, they bring emphasis to their premise that photography is fun.

The book contains some excellent advice for any photographer. In chapters entitled "Emphasis on Central Theme" and "Limitation of Subject," the authors hit upon a common failing, that of including too much in a picture. They say: "Very often a picture that is suggestive of something is better than a picture of that something itself."

The authors advise novices to begin with the photographing of statues, as a basis for study of lighting, exclusion, and composition. They then proceed to a discussion of "candids" and camera reporting, emphasizing the point that many pictures can be made more interesting if shot in a story-telling sequence. They also explain methods of stop-action, flashlights, portraits, and numerous special problems of technique.

Clear directions for developing and printing are given, followed by a discussion of projection control and trick printing. The next step is multiple montage; and here the reader is apt to bog down if he attempts it. This process, while the end may well justify the effort, requires unlimited time, patience, photographic paper, and a high degree of skill.

The authors continue with a chapter on salable photographs that seems rather weak, and conclude with a useful list of cameras available in the various price groups.

—Arthur L. Witman.

The Subaqueous World

THE LIFE STORY OF THE FISH. By Brian Curtis. (D. Appleton-Century Co., New York.)

THE emotional appeal of this volume begins with the front of the jacket—an area of cool green-blue with dark, streamlined silhouettes gliding through, and white bubbles. And on the back of the jacket is the intellectual appeal—a series of questions designed to arouse eager curiosity in the reader. Can fish tell color? To what extent do fish feel pain? Why is the fish's face one of its notoriously weak features? Why do some fish "blush" during the mating season? How does the flounder get two eyes on one side of his head?

Getting off to a flying start with a witty introduction by that denizen of the deep, William Beebe, the author immediately commands confidence by setting forth with admirable impartiality opposing theories of evolution held by those who believe in a guiding purpose in the universe as opposed to those who believe in chance combinations.

Soon the reader finds himself trying with all his might to understand the diagrammatic explanation of how everything appears to a fish as if in a round mirror at the surface of the water, to be rewarded with this kindly observation: "If you understand all this from reading it over once . . . you are fortunate in having that kind of a mind. If you do not, . . . lie flat on your back, hold the book over your head . . . and just make believe that you are a fish."

Thus beguiling his readers, Brian Curtis leads them through the story of the fish's evolution, its every-day life, internal structure, love affairs, and such mysterious processes as the spawning migrations of the salmon and the eel.

It has become well known that the Pacific Coast salmon returns from the sea to its own native stream to spawn and die. But the strange story of the eel, picked up by scientists a bit at a time over a long period of years, is not so familiar. Reversing the course of the salmon, the eel leaves fresh water streams on both American and European shores of the Atlantic, travels far out to the Sargasso Sea, descends to the deeps, spawns, and expires. Hatching in spring, the little fish "start in close proximity to each other, and yet one year later those of the American species appear off the American coast and three years later the little Europeans appear off the European coast . . . both have now attained a length of two and one-half to three inches, both are still in the larval condition."

There are fantastic creatures here, too: the little sea-horse, standing upright in the water, his tail curved around a stem of seaweed, and the incredible angler-fish with his dorsal fin elongated into a pole and line to bait his prey.

Let anyone who is bored with summer fiction lay down his novel and take up this book!

A Black Forest Vacation

THIRD-CLASS TICKET TO HEAVEN. By Helen Follett. (The John C. Winston Co., Philadelphia.)

IF YOU are undecided about your plans for the summer, a "Third Class Ticket to Heaven" can settle your difficulties and enable you to spend a vacation with Helen Follett and the German peasants in the Black Forest. You may travel from Freiburg through Hell's Valley to the little village called The Kingdom of Heaven, proceeding from there to Hinterzarten. You will live first in a cowshed and then in Dream Cottage, with its blue curtains and its circle of "personal pine trees." You will bruise your hands as you work in the fields with the peasants, you will drink coffee at an ancient gasthaus, and you will be an honored guest at a wedding festival. Penny-pinching Farmer Engel and jolly Herr Vogel will be your friends. You will admire Amalia who, despite her 80 years, is the best worker in the field, and you will sympathize with Herr Kunstler, the poetic owner of Dream Cottage, whose soul seems strangled by the noodles he must sell to make a livelihood.

You will gain more than pictorial impressions, for, according to Helen Follett, only half of the story is in the objective realities; the other half lies in the spirit of the country and the people. The spirit of the Black Forest is one of stability. The same type of peasants wore the same type of clothes as they worked at the same type of tasks centuries ago, and the peasants of today know that nothing exists that can change their life. It is a life incapable of being altered by human events. A wedding, a death, a tragedy may evoke a brief comment of "That is fine" or "That is too bad," but there is time for no more. The fields are waiting, and there is a harvest to be gathered. There is no place for hysteria in the life of a Schwarzwald peasant. Stripped of superficialities, it goes placidly on, oblivious of the outside world.

Helen Follett has suited her style well to the spirit of her peasants. What she lacks in poetry she has made up in color and interest. She has succeeded in reducing the ego-element in her writing to a minimum, yet she is never impersonal. Her book holds the friendliness and warmth of the Black Forest and its people.

He Was Born To Wander

GOOSE FEATHERS. By George Digby. (E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.)

SOME explanation of the title of George Digby's travel autobiography is necessary. The author is not seeking to combine the titles of such Marx Brothers' pictures as "Horse Feathers" and "Duck Soup," but only to carry a suggestion of an old proverb: "A child born on a goose-feather bed is born to wander." Digby was born on a goose-feather bed and wandered, so he considers the title quite appropriate. If he knew living conditions in the Middle West during the '90s, however, he would realize that he has too much company in the matter of birthplace to be extraordinarily fated.

An Irish-French journalist, with experience as a tea planter in Ceylon and a trader in the East Indies, he recalls an inviting series of adventures. He has felt the magic of the East, he has been overlord of hundreds of coolies, he has listened to strange confessions from strange people. At times he digresses to discuss the problem of the German colonials in the East after the war, or to explain the national character of the Japanese, and in this regard his book has unique value.

Too often he writes what he thinks will fascinate, and falls into the usual South Seas or Oriental tosh. He met a beautiful half-caste girl at a jungle pool, even as Ray Milland meets Dorothy Lamour in the jungle movies. He was bitten by a cobra, he hunted birds-of-paradise, he talked to cannibals, he developed telepathic powers, he knocked out villainous degenerates with his strong fists, he gave the Foreign Minister advice on how to make Japan popular in the world, he knew a spy who went dashing away on a destroyer under cover of night.

Perhaps he did. Perhaps it is all true. It has become so common, however, that it is fit material only for burlesque. The book has the ring of Joan Lowell's stuff after the appearance of "Salt Water Taffy."

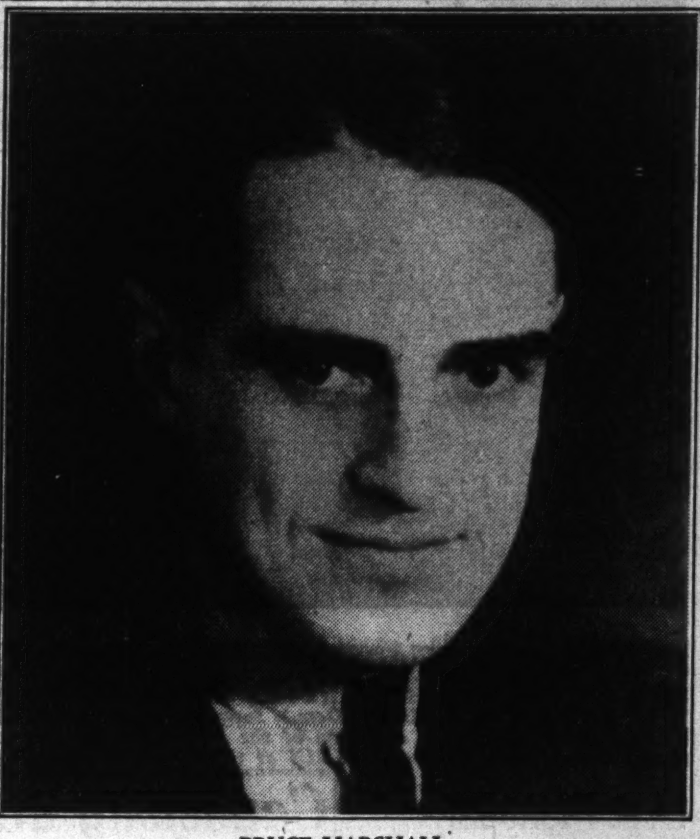
AUTHOR OF "LUCKYPENNY"



BRUCE MARSHALL.

"The Sinclair Lewis of Scotland"

LUCKYPENNY. By Bruce Marshall. (E. P. Dutton & Co., New York.)

MODERN society's tendency to gauge its ethics and morals according to financial standards has probably occasioned the spilling of as many words as any other one subject during the past 100 years. In few cases, however, has the impact of monetary power on human relationships been followed out so interestingly as in this new book by Bruce Marshall, who will be remembered as the author of "Father Malachy's Miracle."

Marshall's hero, Luckypenny, seems an ordinary family-rearing, suburban-dwelling, wish-dreaming clerk as the book opens; but he has rather more than the ordinary clerk's get-up to him, as soon becomes evident when he tells his boss, an armaments manufacturer, where to head off. As a reward for his temerity he is sent to Italy to smuggle out his firm's dividends, which have been held up by currency restrictions. He is no match whatever for the close surveillance of the Fascist authorities and the crafty scheming of competing munitions makers; but his mistakes cancel one another, and his blundering honesty carries him through.

His accidental success makes him a partner in the firm and a rich man; then the change in his social status brings about other complications. Having managed to climb out of his class, he attempts to rid himself of his old associates, whom he recognizes as inadequate, ignorant people; but he finds his new friends just as inadequate and ignorant, with the added disadvantage of superciliousness. Personal and business relationships become involved. His employer, Lamsden, falls in love with his daughter, Barbara, and his son, Tom, in turn falls in love with the employer's daughter. Lamsden breaks up Tom's marriage so that he can buy off a pacifist bishop by marrying his daughter to the latter's son; Tom kills himself. In revenge Luckypenny wrecks Barbara's marriage to Lamsden. At length Luckypenny, success bitter in his mouth, goes to Spain in an attempt to rehabilitate his self-respect by repeating his currency-smuggling exploit. Captured by the Catalan officials, he offers to help them fight the Fascist insurrection. He sees no distinction between the principles he serves, since his only interest is in saving his own life and his money. Eventually he is taken by the Fascists, identified, turned over to the Italians, and executed because Lamsden sold arms to the Abysinnians, a betrayal of which Luckypenny was ignorant.

Melodramatic as are the events of the book, the essential reality of its situations are reinforced by Marshall's mastery of British middle-class character and idiom, which is so complete as to afford some justification of the publisher's description of the author as "the Sinclair Lewis of Scotland."

Potentialities Of the Church

LAYMEN SPEAKING. By George Morlan. (Richard R. Smith, New York.)

WITH 250,000 ministers in America, the church has tremendous potentialities which it has not realized, according to Mr. Morlan, who has undertaken to discover the reasons for this failure.

Having interviewed laymen to learn their opinions as to the proper sphere of the church, he reports: "Traditional spiritual culture that has saved souls without soiling its hands in politics and business has morally stupefied people." The church has abstracted itself from life, dealing only in "religion" and avoiding immediate social problems which are, Mr. Morlan feels, its proper concern. The author and those interviewed have concrete suggestions, but offer no particular panacea.

Another group of interviews, devoted to discovering what makes a sermon effective, will be found in a neat chapter, which might be called "Effective Speaking for Preachers." Sermons should be intellectual adventures; their logical conclusions expressed and acted upon. The laity must be willing to face facts; for without a co-operating laity, the most progressive minister is helpless.

The Catholic, Jew, and Protestant are represented in the interviews, and the conclusions apply to all three. Considering the variety of people interviewed, and the use of verbatim reports of the interviews, the book has surprising continuity and integration. It is not an exhaustive study, but it should serve as an effective handbook in attempting to make the church more useful in our culture.

By One Who Has Been There

THE GREAT AMEN. By Arthur J. Burks. (Egmont Press, New York.)

THIS is the strange story of a man who came back. "Killed in action" during the World War, George Carter returned to America the most famous man in the world, because he had come back from the dead. He brought back with him from that experience a flaming hatred of war—and a promise. A syndicated newspaper column, lectures, and radio speeches gave expression to that hatred and indignation. George Carter, buck private, wrote and spoke as one, vehemently, simply, profanely; and the people listened. Dictators protested, war-minded groups opposed his work subtly or by force; he continued his fight, upheld by the strength of his indignation and by the memory of that promise given him while he lay on the battlefield. And, eventually, the promise was fulfilled.

"The Great Amen" is a dark and violent and passionate book by a man who has "been there." This author writes of blood and guts, of the horror of war, not for themselves nor for the sake of being sensational, but because they are symbols, as words are. Fitted together, they become the only possible expression of his idealism—his intense yearning for peace in the midst of a world which is, once again, on the verge of going mad. The book boils with Mr. Burks' sincerity. It is, if you please, a tract; but it is a powerful and vivid one. And how should a man stand detached and watch objectively while the world plunges toward catastrophe?

Mr. Burks, at any rate, cannot. He remembers too clearly the disgrace and futility of the last war. Here he foreshadows the greater disgrace of the next, the ultimate failure of all the nations of the earth, of all our present civilization. In this book he does what he can to avert, or at least to postpone, the inevitable explosion. He is a Voice crying with Zola, "J'accuse!" and with Voltaire, "Ecrasez l'infame!"

• • •

Yet even those who are moved now by reading it will forget, when the bugles begin to blow and marching hobnails seek again the path of "glory." The most tragic thing about the book is the probability that it will do no good whatever.

—W. L. Knickmeyer.

THE LIFE OF CHEVALIER JACKSON. An Autobiography. (The Macmillan Co., New York.)

IT is always fascinating to see what makes the clock run. That sort of fascination is derived from Chevalier Jackson's autobiography, in observing the unfolding of the famous surgeon's mind, as he passes from childhood to adolescence, from adolescence to manhood, and finally receives, as the creator of a special branch of surgery, honors such as are seldom attained by a benefactor of humanity in his own lifetime.

Chevalier Jackson, it will be remembered, is the surgeon who invented the bronchoscope, founded the science of bronchoscopy, and, as such, was instrumental in saving the lives of thousands of children, who came to his clinics in Philadelphia from all over the world, to have him remove from their bronchi foreign objects, such as open safety pins, hairpins, screws, and whatnot. It was Dr. Jackson who, after 25 years of unrewarded effort, inspired the passage, in 1927, of the Federal Caustic Act, providing for a poison and antidote label on lye, frequently fatal to children who had mistaken it for sugar.

Dr. Jackson's development is in the best American "bootblack-to-banker" tradition, although his rewards have never been of the monetary kind. Indeed, despite the fact of his international fame, of his unprecedented holding at the same time of professorial chairs in five different medical colleges, of his numerous honorary degrees and membership in dozens of medical societies, Dr. Jackson's life has been a ceaseless struggle to make ends meet. Monetary success has never been his goal. Judging by his autobiography, the strongest motivation in his life was the urgency of achievement, regardless of material rewards. Thus, at the age of 9 he received an early reward in achievement when he extracted a cork from a bottle, after that task had been given up as impossible by his elders. It was that same urge to achieve the impossible which aided him in struggling through medical college, despite meager funds, by working at various times as a book agent, a decorator of chinaware, a cook on a fishing schooner out of Gloucester, and at other odd jobs.

During Dr. Jackson's lifetime (he was born at Pittsburgh in 1865), medical science passed from the horse-and-buggy to the motor stage. It is said that medicine entered upon a new era with the publication, in 1913, of Dr. Jackson's book, "Peroral Endoscopy." Since his life reflects this transition of medical science from the old to the new era, Dr. Jackson's autobiography has importance as an historical document. When the famous surgeon recently announced his retirement, there were numerous expressions of regret. It is with similar regret that one reads the final page of his autobiography and lays the book aside. The following lines appear at the end of the book:

"Like the hick'ry cog
In the old mill wheel
He did his part
As his turn came 'round.

—H. W. Salz.

It Is All Very Romantic

MRS. BLAIR. By Maud Keck. (Harper & Bros., New York.)

IN her portrait of Serena Blair, Maud Keck has incorporated all the secret dreams of the ordinary American woman whose life shuttles between kitchen and club room. In the cosmopolitan atmosphere of Peking, where anything can happen and be attributed to the "spell of the East," Serena is presented as an exciting enigma. Men characterize her with vague but heavy adjectives—glamorous, mysterious, subtle; and their wives deprecate and envy her. Her drunken husband has left her penniless, yet she lives surrounded by all the luxury of the East. Where does the money come from? Just how daring are her indiscretions? And why is her daughter hidden away in a convent in Hongkong?

Indeed, Mrs. Blair is no ordinary siren. With the subtlety and mystery of the East, she combines a commendable Western alertness and industry. Through her painting she brilliantly interprets the spirit of China. She is acclaimed in Paris and London, even in San Francisco. She is not above trickery in her art, and when she forages on the enemy, the crass and indiscriminate art collectors, we are made to sympathize. Miss Keck has been very generous with Serena, giving her all good things except, of course, a quiet heart. That is irretrievably lost to an incredible young Russian, who understands China as no other outsider has done. Known alike to peasant and diplomat, he dashes between Peking and Moscow on vague, "secret missions," and is at last lost sight of in the war. After the revolution in Russia, he reappears in China, a noble Khan born many centuries too late, with the dream, a brave, futile dream we are assured, of awakening the sleeping power of the East. It is all very romantic.

WHEAT PRICE IS BACK WITHIN 3C OF 5-YEAR LOW

Moderate Commercial Selling Dominates Market at the Final Session of Week.

By the Associated Press.

CHICAGO, July 9.—Although rallying slightly but frequently from early 1-cent declines, the wheat market today was dominated by moderate commercial selling and closed at a net loss of ¾ to 1⅛ cents a bushel.

Hedging sales accounted for some of the selling, but the market also was influenced by ⅝ to 1 cent decline at Liverpool, a favorable Canadian crop condition and rains in Canada. With many dealers on the sidelines awaiting the official domestic crop report Monday, volume was restricted. Prices fell to within 3 cents of the five-year lows established late in May.

The market's support came partly from removal of previous hedges coincident with increased flour business. Sales by Southwestern mills were estimated to have exceeded 2,000,000 barrels this week and this was accepted as indication that bakers considered prices satisfactory. Rust reports from the spring wheat belt were numerous and the Department of Agriculture's survey said weather conditions had been favorable for rust development. It said susceptible wheat varieties were likely to be injured, but the degree of injury was unpredictable.

Wheat closed ¾@1⅛c lower, July 70¾@⅞c, September 72@⅛c, December 74@¼c; corn ⅛c up to ¼c off, July 57⅞c, September 59¼@⅜c, December 58⅜@½c; oats unchanged to ⅛c down, July 26¾c; rye unchanged to ¼c down, July 53½c; lard 8c to 18c higher.

The official Canadian report showing a spring wheat condition 91 per cent of a long time average compared with 51 per cent a year ago was interpreted as indicating a production of 360,000,000 to 377,000,000 bushels in the three principal provinces. This compared with Canada's 1937 crop of 182,500,000 bushels and indicated the largest production since 1932.

The Liverpool market was affected by the Canadian report, by a sharp upward revision in the Rumanian crop estimate and larger and cheaper Russian offers. Export business continued dull with foreign buyers watching crop developments.

Corn prices held to a narrow range in a quiet trade, but the market was steadied by the recent falling off of movement from the country and the pickup in foreign buying. Export clearances for the season to date were estimated at 100,000,000 bushels, or within 60,000,000 bushels of the record for a full year.

Oats and rye markets were dull while lard advanced on buying credited to Eastern sources. Hog prices gained as much as 50 cents per hundredweight this week.

ST. LOUIS MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE, July 9.—Grain futures were not quoted locally today.

Liverpool wheat closed ⅝ to ⅞d lower after opening ¼ to ⅝d off.

Winnipeg wheat opened 1@¼c lower and early was unchanged to ¾c off. The close was ¼c higher to 1⅛c lower.

Argentina had holiday today.

Local wheat receipts, which were 617,500 bushels, compared with 246,000 a week ago and 351,000 a year ago, included 390 cars local and 25 through. Corn receipts, which were 33,000 bushels, compared with 45,000 a week ago and 12,000 a year ago, included 19 cars local and 3 through. Oats receipts, which were 8000 bushels, compared with 26,000 a week ago and 4000 a year ago, included 4 cars local.

St. Louis Cash Grain.

In the cash grain market Saturday, soft wheat was ½@1c lower. Quite a few sales were made after the closing bell owing to the late arrival of samples on the floor. Trading basis generally was about steady. Elevators were the best buyers. Hard wheat was 1@¼c lower. Corn was unchanged. The available supply was small and with the demand good a quick clearance was made. Mills were the buyers. Premiums were about steady with No. 1 and No. 2 yellow ¾c over the July option. Oats were unchanged. Receipts were somewhat larger and included two cars new crop. Demand was good. Mills and feeders were the buyers.

SPIRITED UPTURN IN RAIL BONDS IN WEEK

I. C. C. Favorable Ruling on Eastern Roads Passenger Fares a Factor.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Rails took a tighter grip on bond market leadership last week with another spirited advance which carried the Associated Press average of 20 issues a full 10 points above the March 31 low.

While the carriers overshadowed other divisions of the list in respect to trading interest, the trend almost uniformly was upward.

The movement showed signs of leveling in the later sessions, but not before the general run of rails and miscellaneous industrial loans had widened by a good margin the big gains of the preceding two weeks.

Retreat from the high levels of the week was of minor proportions. New buying continued to come into the market in sufficient volume to cushion the selling pressure.

For a considerable part of the way on the June-July climb bonds were seen as responding to sentiment as to the anticipated business and industrial outlook. To this, in the last week, was added some tangible events which evoked active response in the market.

Of outstanding importance, in the opinion of bond dealers, was the Interstate Commerce Commission's favorable ruling on application of Eastern roads for higher passenger fares. The entire rail group pushed up buoyantly on this development, with bonds of Eastern carriers leading.

A further moderate climb in carloadings, firmness of commodity markets after recent sharp price gains, and indications some industries were preparing to increase production as a result of better inventory positions likewise tended to support the improved investment confidence.

Low-yield bonds moved ahead quietly on a steady run of institutional buying. Bids were lifted a bit after underwriting circles reported a good reception for the Standard Oil of New Jersey $50,000,000 debentures bearing 2¾ per cent interest and $35,000,000 of serial notes.

Offered on Thursday together with one or two smaller new corporate issues, the Standard Oil securities gave a more than seasonal activity to the capital market and led to predictions of another good run of corporate financing.

U. S. Governments had a small turnover within a narrow and steady price range.

The market charted an irregular course today with trading interest limited in all groups. Railroad loans were the best performers on the upside, but even here gains in most cases were minor. And there were a few soft spots.

Total turnover of $2,971,500 face value was the smallest for a Saturday session in three weeks, and less than half of the $7,685,000 a week ago when all departments of the market were in stride with the vigorous mid-year advance.

Trading forces working for higher prices pointed to this comparatively light turnover as an indication that profit selling after swift rise for two and a half weeks had been well absorbed.

Of the railroad liens making headway, Louisville & Nashville 4½s and Western Maryland 4s, each with a gain of a point or more stood out. Others improved included Nickel Plate 5½s, Cleveland Union Terminal 5s and Santa Fe adjustment 4s. Baltimore & Ohio 6s were in supply and ended a point lower, but some other obligations of the system were higher. New York Central 3¼s closed 1 lower at 68½.

Industrials and utilities displayed a steady undertone but there were a few soft spots, including Safeway Stores 4s, United Drug 5s, North American 5s and Western Union 4½s. Gaining some ground were North American Edison 5½s and Consolidated Oil 3½s.

U. S. Governments quieted down after a fair turnover in the first hour and closed mixed, 3-32 of a point lower to 5-32 higher with gains slightly outnumbering losses.

With the exception of fair moves in some inactive South American liens the foreign dollar group was lifeless. Colombia 6s and Canadian 3¼s closed fractionally higher.

Stocks Meet Stiff Opposition On Rising to Near Peak of Last October; Price Index Shade Off

Selling by Those Who Judged Market Had Gone Too Far in Discounting Hopes of Autumn Business Improvement.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 9.—The stock market showered brilliant displays of fireworks over the financial community this Fourth of July week, but did not extend the high-powered June upswing appreciably. The price index was a shade lower at close of week.

Although bulls beat the tom-toms of hope for business improvement loudly, they were careful to convert some of the lucrative paper profits accumulated on the way up into cash as a precaution against a "technical" setback.

Toward the end of the week, it became increasingly apparent the market had encountered stiff opposition. Almost in a straight line it had shot up to around the peaks of the late October and early November rebound from the autumn crash. That marked a 100 per cent recovery of the March losses. Apparently many speculators who were early buyers in the scramble to get a bull position assumed it was appreciation enough until industrial expansion assured a higher level of profits to support the gains.

As steel, motor, chemical, electrical equipment, building and other industrial groups retreated before waves of profit-taking, speculation for the rise shifted into backward issues, and the comparatively slow-moving rails and public utilities. These tactics provided cover for selling in the leaders of the first big leaps out of the mid-June stagnation.

Buying Wave in Rails.

The strategy got unexpected help from Washington in form of I. C. C. approval of an increase in passenger fares for Eastern roads. Rail shares around the opening Thursday, following overnight digestion of the fare news, were whirled up on one of the largest buying waves of recent years.

But the surge of the rails seemed to increase caution among professional traders, who thought they detected the familiar tactics of rotation and spotty strength characteristic of later stages of a forward drive.

Despite the slowing of the move, speculative psychology still seemed to be attuned to the idea stocks and business had rounded the much-discussed corner for another journey uphill.

Notable in the eyes of those who believe things economically are moving upward was a marked shrinkage in share trading on the reactions, especially yesterday, when the volume declined more than a million shares compared with Thursday's animated market.

Emphasizing the breadth of the forward sweep was extension of the recovery movement in secondary corporate bonds and basic raw materials, like rubber, hides, cotton and metals, resumption of forward buying in raw materials and textiles, while characterized in trade circles as partly speculative, was interpreted widely as one of the most convincing signs industry was headed for an autumn reawakening.

Here and there on the industrial fronts appeared indications of a counter-seasonal uptrend in production. Attracting most attention were re-employment of workers for factory reopenings and increased working schedules in key consumer goods industries—shoes, clothing, textile mills. To a large extent this was attributed to preparations for autumn trade along normal lines. Yet the extent of the gains impressed many as larger than might have been expected before the June boom in the speculative markets.

Holiday Alters Index.

In the heavy industries, Fourth of July shutdowns and summer vacation curtailments offset gains in other sectors. After four consecutive weeks of advance, the Associated Press weekly index of industrial activity dropped to 67 from 68.2 per cent of the 1929-30 level in the preceding week.

Still gossip in the suddenly-crowded boardrooms painted rosy visions of a late summer trade and industrial pickup, aided by increased Federal spending, the marketing of large crops and rise in such important contributors to farm income as hogs and cattle. Railroad car loadings, making extra-seasonal gains, already were showing the lift of the crop movement.

The dramatic mid-year change in the Wall Street atmosphere was illustrated by a jump in the quotation of Stock Exchange seats to $80,000 from $51,000 before the upturn. Since June 20, more than 30,000,000 shares have traded on the "big board," several times the turnover before the bull market began to make a noise.

But brokers weren't counting any large winnings from commissions. They welcomed the unexpected summer outburst of trading mostly as an opportunity to recoup losses of recent months when speculation was at the lowest ebb since immediately after the war.

Market Points Up at Close.

The list started the two-hour proceedings indecisively today, encountering some further selling as the result of yesterday's relapse, the sharpest since the plan got under way on June 20.

Buying forces soon got behind the aircrafts and later selected steels, motors, rubbers, coppers, rails and specialties were taken in hand. Recoveries at the finish ran to around a point with a few particular favorites up 2 to 3.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues was up .2 of a point at 47.6, but on the week it showed a net loss of .8, the first setback following two successive weekly climbs. Transfers totaled 592,300 shares, the smallest turnover since June 18.

There was nothing much inspiring in the day's news for either side of the market and the meager improvement, on the whole, was attributed mainly to the inclination of quick-turn traders to try for at least a moderate rally on the idea Friday's washout may have furnished the "correction" which Wall Street had been looking for coincident with the smartest run-up witnessed in several years.

Aviation Group Leads.

The aviation group seemingly derived benefit from the belief the new Federal Civil Aeronautics Act would act as a stabilizer for the air transport companies and possibly bring out orders for more planes as passenger traffic expands. It was not overlooked, also, that the aircraft makers may report the best earnings in their history this year.

Steels did fairly well as forecasts were made of an upturn in mill operations next week in the wake of the let-down for the Independence day holiday. At the same time confusion persisted over the new basing point price system and the United States Steel Corporation June shipments figures, coming just after the close, while revealing a modest increase over May, amounted to only 478,057 tons compared with 1,268,550 in June a year ago.

Rails were aided by broadening freight shipments and hopes the new passenger coach fare boost for Eastern lines, effective July 25, would step up revenues sufficiently to steady a number of shaky roads.

Prominent gainers on the day were Douglas Aircraft at 50⅞, Glenn L. Martin 25⅜, Boeing 30, Curtiss-Wright "A" 22¼, Wright Aeronautical 94, United Air Lines 10⅜, Bethlehem Steel 59¼, General Motors 39, International Harvester 64⅜, Kennecott 40, American Smelting 49⅝, du Pont 118¼, Santa Fe 37¾, Southern Railway 13, Chesapeake & Ohio 31, Richfield Oil 8 and Union Carbide 80¼.

Bonds Irregularly Lower.

Bonds were irregularly lower, as were commodities. Wheat at Chicago was off ¾ to 1⅛ cents a bushel and corn was ⅛ up to down 14. Cotton lost 60 to 70 cents a bale. Both sterling and the French franc gave ground. The former was off ⅝ of a cent at $4.93⅝ and the latter yielded .00⅜ of a cent at 2.76⅝ cents. Thursday sterling hit a new low for the year at $4.93 5-16.

Oils and specialties were up on the curb. Advances were recorded here by Aluminum of America, Creole Petroleum, Pantepec, Humble Oil, International Petroleum, Electric Bond & Share, New Jersey Zinc and American Cyanamid "B". Curb transactions were 94,000 shares.

Total stock sales during the week amounted to 8,446,420 shares, compared with 12,132,840 a week ago and 4,995,140 corresponding week a year ago. Sales from Jan. 1 to date were 129,115,058 shares, compared with 235,383,797 a year ago and 270,240,970 two years ago.

FOREIGN MARKETS AT A GLANCE

By the Associated Press.

LIVERPOOL, July 9.—Wheat futures were quiet today, down ⅝ to ⅞d in final trading. Traders found bearish the official Canadian crop report, larger and cheaper Russian offers and an official Rumanian crop estimate of 182,000,000 bushels.

An initial advance in cotton, reflecting firm overseas markets, failed to hold. Long liquidation, coupled with hedging against outside growths, uncovered a few stop orders. The market ended unchanged to 2 points lower.

London and Paris markets closed on Saturdays.

Odd Lot Stock Trade.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The Securities Commission reported today these transactions by customers with odd lot dealers or specialists on the New York Stock Exchange for July 8: 8211 purchases involving 228,037 shares; 8818 sales involving 237,657 shares.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY AFFECTED BY HOLIDAY

Upturn in Freight Shipments One of the Largest in More Than Year.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Industrial activity declined this week after rising for four consecutive periods from the recession low-point late in May. The Monday holiday was a factor in some lines.

The Associated Press seasonally adjusted index, based on latest available statistics and with 1929-30 as 100, receded to 67.0, from 68.2 the previous week and compared with 104.1 last year.

Railroad carloadings stood out as the one big gainer among the series used in this measure, every other barometer either losing ground or remaining unchanged.

The upswing in freight shipments was one of the largest since the recession started more than a year ago. Miscellaneous loadings, the major industrial classification, chalked up the sharpest improvement as inventory restocking was started by many companies.

Both automobile assemblies and steel mill activity slackened more than expected over the recent holiday, the latter operating at the slowest rate of the year.

The major consumer goods indices, cotton manufacturing and electric power output, turned down after rising industrial activity.

	Latest. Week.	Pv. Week.	Year Ago.
Composite index	67.0	68.2	104.1
Automobile Prod.	36.0	37.9	114.1
Steel Mill Act.	37.9	38.5	90.3
Cotton Mfg. Act.	82.7	85.9	127.5
Elect. Pwr. Prod.	106.0	106.7	120.1
Residential Bldg.	57.5	57.5	64.8
Total carloadings	60.1	57.8	81.8

Lead and Copper Prices Are Further Advanced; Tin Off

Irregularity Develops in Yellow Metal for Export—Zinc Is Unchanged.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Although lead and copper prices again advanced last week to new highs for the recovery, irregularity developed in tin and export copper. Unsettlement in securities also dampened bullish sentiment.

Domestic copper gained ¼ cent to 9.75 cents a pound as a result of a tremendous buying wave, apparently some of which was of a speculative nature. Sales tapered off sharply, however, at the end of the week. A decline to the 9.65 cent basis for export from 10 cents reached at mid-week implied no weakening of prices here, it was said, but was due to a waning of effective interest from abroad.

The $3 a ton gain in lead to 4.90@4.95 cents, bringing recent upturns to $18 a ton, was made on Wall Street demand and stocking by paint, battery and munitions manufacturers. Bookings remained excellent.

Closing the week with a quiet tone, zinc was unchanged at 4.75 cents East St. Louis, business had been active in the preceding fortnight so present quietness may be considered normal.

Opinion abroad that tin prices needed correction brought a one cent fall to 42.75 cents the week-end. The high for the week was 43.875 cents.

Antimony remains unchanged at 14c a pound for Chinese grade. Slackness in the auto industry may account for present limited demand.

Steel buying fell off during the period as establishment of six new basing points, following close upon cuts of $3 to $5 a ton, left buyers somewhat confused over their delivered costs. Recall of 500 miners by a Birmingham producer was a cheering item.

Lead was steady at $4.75 per 100 pounds in St. Louis today. Zinc was steady at $4.75 per 100 pounds.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Copper steady; electrolytic spot, $9.75; export, $9.65. Tin steady; spot and nearby, $42.75; forward, $42.80. Lead steady; spot, New York, $4.90@4.95; East St. Louis, $4.75. Zinc steady; East St. Louis spot and forward, $4.75. Pig iron, aluminum, antimony, quicksilver, platinum and wolframite unchanged.

NEW YORK, July 9.—St. Joseph Lead Co. reports 50 tons of Southeast Missouri pig lead sold yesterday at $4.75 per 100 pounds East St. Louis, and 50 tons at the New York average.

U. S. STEEL SHIPMENTS

NEW YORK, July 9.—Shipments of United States Steel Corporation subsidiaries in June totaled 478,057 tons, an increase of 12,976 from the preceding month and compared with 1,268,550 in June last year.

Shipments in the first six months of the year were 3,010,354, compared with 7,614,274 in the comparable 1937 period.

Oil Stocks Decrease.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The Bureau of Mines reported today stored stocks of oil decreased 1,651,000 barrels in May.

Stocks of crude and refined oil in May totaled 590,469,000 barrels, compared with 592,120,000 in April and 548,695,000 in April, 1937.

Stocks of finished gasoline totaled 80,987,000 barrels on May 31, representing 53 days' supply, against 82,684,000 barrels or 56 days' supply in April and 72,269,000 barrels, or 45 days' supply in May, 1937.

STERLING'S DROP IS MINOR MYSTERY OF 'CHANGE TRADE

Demand for More Dollars Than Pounds Considered Only Partial Explanation for Weakness in British Money.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 9.—A steady drop in the pound sterling in terms of the dollar during the week, which sent that unit to the low point of the year on Thursday, left international banking circles with a minor mystery.

The excess of British imports over exports contrasting with the reverse situation here and the purchase of American securities—creating, in other words, a demand for more dollars than pounds—are only partial explanations of the weakness in the pound, according to most foreign exchange experts. Another factor is found in the current rumor that English and American exchange authorities have agreed to allow the pound to drop to the old gold-dollar parity of around $4.86, roughly 8 cents below the present level.

Rise of Gold.

Bolstering the devaluation theory has been the rise of gold in the London free market to the highest price in more than a year, a move which acts as a strong deterrent to gold shipments from England which in turn would lessen pressure on the pound.

A loss of around 2⅛ cents in sterling dragged most other currencies, with the exception of the French franc, lower in terms of the dollar. One of the hardest hit was the guilder, down around .22 of a cent. Swiss francs lost about .08 of a cent and the belga and French francs a smaller amount.

Japan continued to pour gold across the Pacific, accounting for $11,600,000 out of a total of $12,100,000 engaged during the week for shipment here. A week ago the total was $563,000.

Sterling was under pressure again today, carrying most other European currencies lower in terms of the dollar.

Mild Rally Friday.

Except for a mild rally yesterday, the British unit declined steadily during the week, today's loss of ⅝ of a cent pushing it close to the low piont for the year.

The French franc dipped .00⅜ of a cent and Holland guilders .02 of a cent. The belga and Swiss franc were each .00½ of a cent lower.

The Federal Reserve Bank reported the engagement of $5,159,000 in gold in Japan for shipment here, swelling the week's total to around $17,000,000, nearly all of which was from Japan.

METAL GROUP IN LEAD OF A NEW COMMODITY RISE

Weighted Index of 35 Important Wholesale Staples Up 6 Per Cent Since Low Point of Recession on June 1.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Commodity prices continued the sharply rising trend of the past month this week, with soaring metal quotations leading the upswing.

The Associated Press weighted index of 35 important wholesale staples advanced to 67.56 per cent of the 1926 average from 66.39 last week and compared with 92.28 a year ago.

Since June 1, when the bottom for the current recession was established, the index has risen 6 per cent.

Sensational gains have been scored by raw materials of industry during this period. Copper has jumped from 9 to 9¾ cents a pound; lead from 3.85 to 4.75 cents a pound, cotton has added more than $12 a bale to its value, steel scrap has advanced from $10.62 a ton to $12.37, and hides from 9½ to 11 cents a pound.

Touching bottom early in May, livestock has chalked up increases running as high as 25 per cent in less than three months.

The extension of gains this week found increases outweighing declines two to one among commodities making up the index. Every major category was up on the week.

Buying by Consumers.

Lead, copper and steel scrap were eagerly bid for by consumers, more in the hope of speculative gain than any substantial improvement in business, according to the trade. Tin took another tack, dropping slightly.

Other industrial staples were mixed. Hides were up 10 per cent and burlap moved ahead, while rubber, turpentine and lumber fell back.

The spurt in livestock carried hogs and cattle to new peaks for the year. Lambs eased fractionally. Supplies of animals have dwindled steadily for several months. Demand, on the other hand, has improved during the recent upturn in industrial activity.

Grains were mostly higher. Corn jumped 4 cents during the week to 59 cents a bushel. Oats also advanced. Wheat gave up more than 3 cents a bushel as the trade forecast crop damage would be comparatively moderate and the final outturn one of the largest in history.

Cotton nudged ahead as the Government officially estimated planted acreage to be one of the smallest for the present century. Wool and cotton cloth were higher on dealer stocking to fill barren shelves.

What Index Shows.

Market basket items picked up moderately. Eggs, sugar and lard were higher, while cocoa and flour slipped back.

The index, with its components based on 1926, as follows:

	July 8.	Prev. Week.	Year Ago.
35 commodities	67.56	66.39	92.28

15,000,000 Bu Wheat at K. C.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, July 9.—The biggest week in the history of Kansas City's grain market closed today with the arrival of 1350 cars of wheat.

The outpouring of grain from the Southwest brought the total for the last five days to 9616 carloads, well above the previous record of 8844 cars for the week ending July 10, 1937.

Grainmen said the influx would have been even larger had rain not brought a recess of harvest activities in parts of Kansas two days ago.

Prices on the carlot market today ranged from 65 to 85 cents a bushel, better grades bringing a large premium.

The week's receipts would total about 15,500,000 bushels, grainmen estimated.

LOCAL STOCK TRADE VOLUME CONTRACTS

Twice as Many Issues Close With Gains as Show Declines for Week.

There was a contraction in volume of business on the St. Louis Stock Exchange last week, which was one day short due to the Fourth of July observance. Prices, however, were mainly higher, twice as many issues rising as declined. A number were unchanged.

Hamilton-Brown was the most active issue but failed to hold a point rise. Columbia Brewery, International Shoe, Burkart and Rice-Stix were higher.

Dr. Pepper was in the lower group.

COTTON SELLS LOWER AFTER RECENT $7 A BALE UPTURN

Increased Realizing—Outlook Is For Generally Favorable Weather in the South.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Cotton turned easier today under increased realizing and owing to the outlook for generally favorable weather in the South. October reacted from 9.01 to 8.93c and ended at 8.94c, with closing prices 12 to 14 points net lower.

The market opened 8 to 12 points lower in response to easier Liverpool cables and longs were inclined to take profits following the recent rise of $7 a bale. While yesterday's acreage report was considered moderately bullish, some quarters upon overnight consideration were inclined to stress the possibility of comparatively large yields per acre owing to intensive cultivation of the smaller area planted. The market displayed little rallying power and closed at the lows for the day.

Commodity Credit Corporation reported 16,075 bales entered the loan last week bringing the total to 5,444,169 bales, exclusive of 164,798 repossessed by borrowers.

From a trading standpoint the most important development was the Government report on acreage, issued Friday, estimating planted area at 26,904,000 acres. Private forecasters had prepared the trade for a smaller acreage figure even though the Government's indicated it would be a record low since 1900. This, apparently, accounted for a moderate dip in future prices following release of the report, but almost immediately the market erased these losses.

Amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the close of the week was estimated at 37,000 bales against 24,000 last year and 30,000 two years ago. Spot quiet; middling 9.03c.

M'NUTT'S HOPES FOR PRESIDENCY SAVE VAN NUYS

Senator Once Slated to Be Cast Out by Party Now Likely to Be Nominated by Acclamation.

ACTION TUESDAY BY INDIANA CONVENTION

Threat of Independent Race and Rally of Senate Colleagues Changed Situation.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., July 9.—Indiana Democratic leaders predicted tonight the renomination of Senator Frederick Van Nuys, opponent of many New Deal measures, at a "love-feast" convention Tuesday.

All obstacles to renomination of Van Nuys, who, long at odds with Gov. M. Clifford Townsend and the Democratic State organization, had threatened to seek re-election as an independent, apparently have been removed at conferences between representatives of the Governor and the Senator.

Party leaders say Van Nuys, who once said it would be "suicide" for him to permit his name to be presented to the convention, probably will get the nomination by acclamation.

In the background of the peace pact with Van Nuys, is the Paul V. McNutt's presidential hope. A group of party leaders headed by Frank McHale, National Committeeman, feared the consequences of an attempt to retire Van Nuys from public life.

Rally to Van Nuys.

Some of Van Nuys' Senate colleagues, notably those with whom he fought President Roosevelt's court and Government reorganization bills, announced they would come into Indiana to campaign for Van Nuys if he ran as an independent.

When McNutt, former Governor of Indiana and now United States High Commissioner to the Philippines, was in Washington in February for his presidential "coming out" party, some of the anti-court bill Senators took direct means to impress upon him that his own aspirations had become very much entangled with the Van Nuys issue.

Other pressure for Van Nuys' renomination has come from local Democratic nominees over the State, who were selected in the May 3 primary. They feared Van Nuys, if he ran as an independent, would cut deeply into the Democratic vote in November and endanger their own chances of success.

Townsend Invites Van Nuys.

Gov. Townsend, who previously had criticised Van Nuys for his fight against the court bill and had said the Senator couldn't be renominated, extended the "olive branch" early this week by inviting Van Nuys to become a candidate in a "wide open" convention.

The Governor also issued a statement denying he ever had attempted to read Van Nuys out of the party and declared Van Nuys "is a Democrat and is entitled to the consideration of the convention."

Van Nuys, vacationing at Walloon Lake, Mich., replied he would be "very glad" to accept Townsend's invitation and permit his name to go before a "wide open" convention. He interrupted his vacation and returned to Indianapolis for the convention, which he originally had said he would not attend.

Then came the series of peace conferences, but Van Nuys and Townsend have not seen each other as yet. However, Van Nuys said he expected to call upon the Governor before resuming his Michigan vacation. Townsend said he would "see" the Senator if the latter called.

What McHale Says.

National Committeeman McHale, reporting on the conferences, said:

"It was the opinion of all present that any misunderstandings that heretofore existed have been overcome and that complete harmony now prevails; that it is definitely understood that Senator Van Nuys will become a candidate before the Democratic State convention for the office of United States Senator.

"In their opinion, he will be nominated."

Promptly after the Governor extended his "invitation" to Van Nuys, two of three announced candidates for the nomination indicated their withdrawal from the race. Samuel D. Jackson, Fort Wayne lawyer, and Lieutenant-Governor Henry F. Schricker, Knox banker, said they believed renomination of Van Nuys would be for the best. The third candidate, Alex Gordon, Indianapolis labor leader, made no comment.

Points of Difference.

Van Nuys and his party's State organization have been apart since the 1934 State convention in which the Senator sought nomination of former Mayor Reginald H. Sullivan of Indianapolis for Indiana's other Senate seat. Instead, the convention nominated Sherman Minton, the choice of then Gov. McNutt, and Minton was elected.

Van Nuys lost another fight with the organization in the 1936 convention. He supported E. Kirk McKinney of Indianapolis for Governor, but Townsend, the McNutt administration's choice, won the nomination.

After visiting President Roosevelt last summer at the White House on a hot July day, Gov. Townsend told newsmen:

"I don't believe any power in the State could nominate him (Van Nuys) and our organization is unaccustomed to trying the impossible. I don't think our organization could nominate him even if it wanted to."

Low-Cut Gowns at Court Agitate Social London

Question Laid Over Till 1939, When King and Queen Will Pass on Proper Dress Design.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, July 9.—While the matter won't come up again until the King's 1939 courts, the question of how low cut a gown a woman being presented may wear is agitating social London. Several young women presented at Buckingham Palace this week made a daring break from the conservative styles handed down from the reign of the late George V and Queen Mary.

Several made their curtseys before King George VI in startling gowns with off-the-shoulder necklines—one of them square-cut lower, said the Daily Mail, "than any seen at court since Victorian days."

This was Wednesday night. On Thursday night several others had planned to appear similarly gowned, but a quick order from the Earl of Clarendon, who is Lord Chamberlain and official arbiter of court etiquette, resulted in their curtseying with modest additions considerably toning down the daring effects.

At least seven debutantes wore scarfs hastily designed by their dressmakers to conceal their shoulders and at this, the last court of the season, there were no raised eyebrows, as there had been the night before.

Early next year the official court dressmaker will take sketches of court costumes to Buckingham Palace. There the King, the Queen and the Lord Chamberlain will look them over. The approved ones will be put on view at the Earl of Clarendon's office for the guidance of dressmakers and debutantes as well, with written regulations.

The Lord Chamberlain is the official arbiter, but his decisions are guided by the royal wishes.

Queen Mary, mother of George VI, had a dress problem early in her reign when hobble skirts—extreme in their tightness about the ankles—were all the rage. They were ruled out.

Then in the twenties came the short skirt craze, and the court called a halt at four or five inches from the ground.

The court prescribes certain rigid rules for dress. Trains must not be longer than two yards; veils not more than 45 inches. Gloves must be of specified length.

BAIL DENIED HARLAN MAN HELD IN KILLING OF FORMER DEPUTY

Case to Be Given to Grand Jury; Employe of Tourist Camp Discharged.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Ky., July 9.—County Judge John D. Gross today ordered Chris Patterseon held without bond pending grand jury action in the fatal shooting of Frank White, a former Harlan County deputy sheriff who was on trial in the labor conspiracy case in Federal Court here. White was killed Wednesday night at a tourist camp near Corbin, Ky.

Judge Gross dismissed a charge of murder against Jack Reed, employe of the tourist camp. The Court held that there was "not a word of evidence" to connect Reed with the shooting. Prosecutor asked Judge Gross to hold Reed as a material witness, but he refused.

Driver Nods; One Killed, Two Hurt.

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 9.—Herbert Shafer, 21 years old, of Indianapolis, fell asleep near here early today, and his automobile crashed into the rear of a tractor-trailer, causing the death of Edward Dransfield, 40, also of Indianapolis, and injuries to Mrs. Dransfield, 38, and himself. The three were returning from a Wisconsin fishing trip. Both Shafer and Harlan Edson, 23, of Gays, Ill., truck driver, were ordered held under $500 bonds pending an inquest.

ART NEWMAN'S PLEA BEFORE PAROLE BOARD

Hearing Tuesday for Southern Illinois Gangster Seeking to Be Freed.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., July 9.—Art Newman, former southern Illinois gang leader serving a life term in Joliet prison, is one of eight convicted murderers whose applications for pardons were scheduled today for hearings Tuesday before the State Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Newman, lieutenant of the notorious Charlie Birger of Williamson County, who was hanged several years ago, has frequently applied for clemency since his incarceration for three terms for murder—two terms for 57 years and one for life.

He was convicted in 1929 of the murder of Mr. and Mrs. Lory Price and of Mayor Joseph Adams of West City, receiving the life term for the Adams killing.

Unemployment Waste Computed By WPA Official

Relief workers, Anderson points out, do not save any of their "security" wage, since it is hardly large enough to cover the cost of necessaries. W P A workers have been spending for consumers' goods from 20 to 30 million dollars a week.

What would happen to the business of the country if this flow of spending were suddenly to stop is obvious. Without it consumption, and therefore production, would slump to disastrously low levels.

Cost of Relief.

Insisting that the sums spent for relief since 1933 were trivial compared to the losses sustained through unemployment from 1929 to 1933, Anderson adds up the cost of relief through 1936 as follows:

F E R A, $2,946,536,000 for 26 months.

C W A, $844,067,000 for eight months.

P W A, $1,444,727,000 for 40 months.

C C C, $1,391,640,000 for 42 months.

Resettlement Administration, $137,695,000 for 17 months.

W P A, $2,324,258,000 for 17 months.

Total for the emergency work agencies, $9,088,923,000.

Amount spent by non-emergency agencies, $1,578,474,000.

Total Federal relief and work funds, $10,667,397,000.

To this must be added $2,940,165,000 spent by states and local communities for work relief in co-operation with the Federal Government. The total then for the period through 1936 is $13,607,562,000.

Contributing Factors.

The author does not attempt to break down the 200 billion dollar total that he gives as the cost of enforcing idleness of millions of workers from 1929 through a part of 1933, but he lists the following factors that contributed to this staggering estimate:

"1. The cost of organized private charity which for all its moral and disciplinary implications did not meet the need.

"2. The cost to individuals who loaned money, made personal gifts, or gave board and rent to unemployed friends or relatives.

"3. The cost of local public relief or work relief defrayed out of tax funds of states and localities but later supplemented by Federal funds also paid from taxes.

"4. The negative costs reckoned in terms of the increase of crime, juvenile delinquency, vice, sickness, slum crowding, and other degrading accompaniments of social demoralization. Most of these costs have been unloaded on the children of the unemployed.

"5. The costs of working in sweatshops and of taking jobs at less than a living wage. Such costs bring about a lower standard of living and are passed on to all producers.

"6. The costs of not training the youth, resulting in lessened self-confidence and self-respect of workers who have learned no skills, a burden that all society must share."

A number of phases of the W P A program Anderson discusses in detail, showing broad familiarity with the far-reaching activities of the administration. His own background has furnished him with practical equipment for his present post. He worked at all kinds of jobs—railroad construction, harvesting, in an iron foundry, as a carpenter, ranch worker and timberman. After service in the war he took courses in social service and taught sociology.

All his experience has led him to a belief in the need for public works which "may be a way of salvaging labor that would otherwise waste in idleness." In behalf of this belief he has assembled an impressive array of facts and figures. He looks on mass unemployment as a menacing social waste, so serious that no society can long survive it.

The remedy, in the opinion of this man who has had a part in administering it, is a permanent work relief program.

Included will be a full-scale tire factory in operation and demonstrations of the part rubber has come to play in everyday life. There will also be a full-sized reproduction of the center of an American farm, livestock, farmhands, barns, silos, farm residence and all. Through the farmyard will flow a stream crossed by a covered bridge. This part of the display will demonstrate how farm work has been modernized through use of tractors and all manner of farm implements fitted with pneumatic tires. In the tire factory, a finished tire will be produced every four minutes, and every stage of tiremaking will be shown, from the preparation of the crude rubber on, in full view of spectators. Also, the gathering of latex rubber on the Firestone plantations in Liberia, Africa, will be portrayed, and dioramas, pageants and scientific demonstrations will illustrate the history of the rubber industry and the developing of rubber products. A decorative feature will be the Firestone singing color fountain, which will be set in a pool surrounded by landscaped lawns and will constantly change in color in accordance with the musical accompaniment. There will be all-day concerts and seats will be provided for thousands of listeners.

A LARGE DYNOMETER FOR testing rear axles more thoroughly and accurately than ever before has just been installed in the DeSoto factory. It puts strains beyond those of actual driving on all parts of an axle, and records results of every test.

BUICK HAS WON THIRD POSITION in the choice of space in the National Automobile Show in New York in the fall as a result of its sales showing. Based on dollar volume of sales for companies which are members of the Automobile Dealers' Association, Buick ranked third to Chevrolet and Plymouth, which were first and second, respectively, for the 12 months ending May 31. W. F. Hufstader, general sales manager for Buick, chose the exhibit space in Grand Central Palace to the left of the entrance and adjoining the Chevrolet space.

DIRECTIONAL COOLING IS A feature of the engine in Chrysler Royal cars, and is designed for efficient cooling in any temperature and uniform cylinder expansion. It combines full-length water jackets and a water distributing tube. The oil forced under pressure to the engine bearings passes the lower ends of the water jackets, and is additionally cooled thereby. A crankcase ventilator is another factor in the engine cooling.

DEVELOPMENT OF ELECTRIC welding possibly has been carried to a higher efficiency than almost another process in automobile manufacturing. Huge welding machines join sheet metal part sin seams that are as strong, or stronger, than the original steel. Among the car parts electrically welded in the Chevrolet's plants are the halves of gasoline tanks, in which strength and rigidity are as essential as their being leak-proof.

THE CLEVELAND POLICE DEpartment, Safety Council and Automobile Club recently co-operated in closing a downtown street for a demonstration of safe braking. The street was laid off in three lanes for speeds of 20, 30 and 40 miles per hour, and stops were made at each speed, using a Hudson "112" car. As a climax, the car's hydraulic braking system was put out of commission by the police and stops were made at the various speeds using only the reserve mechanical system which is standard on all Hudsons. This reserve system is actuated by the same pedal which operates the hydraulic brakes on a Hudson and goes into action only in the rare event that the hydraulic system becomes inoperative. The stop at 20 m. p. h. was made in 9 feet 11 inches, compared with 16 feet 6 inches designated by the police as excellent on the surface of the street. The stop at 30 m. p. h. was made in 33 feet 6 inches as against the police figure of 37 feet 5 inches, and that at 40 m. p. h. in 52 feet 5 inches, compared with the police figure of 66 feet 4 inches as excellent.

SIXTEEN OF THE CLOWNS who travel with the Cole Brothers' Circus ride in one Studebaker coupe. One of the sure-fire applause winning stunts in this circus' performances is when this car rolls into the ring and the clowns begin climbing out.

A TIRE SAID TO BE THE largest thus far built was turned out recently by the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. as one of a set for an exceptionally large dirt-moving unit constructed by a firm in Peoria, Ill. It stands 79 inches high, weighs 1304 pounds and is designed to carry a load of 25,000 pounds. It has a tread width of 20 inches and about 100 miles of Firestone gum-dipped cord was used in making it. The tire tube weighs 102 pounds and the protective flap 36 pounds. The tire pressure is 45 pounds.

THAT THERE IS NO GREATer menace for a motorist than driving on tires which may blow out at any minute or skid when pavements are wet is emphasized again by R. R. Cook of the General Tire Co., 3400 Washington. "Tires of that kind endanger not only the occupants of the car, but also all other persons in the vicinity," he says, noting that owners of smaller cars may now drive on the General squegee tread, designed for safe stopping under any conditions, as this tread is now available on the Dual 8 tires as well as on the Dual 10 tires.

THE CARRYING CAPACITY OF a tire diminishes steadily as car speed increases, Fisk tire engineers tell truck operators. A 10-ply truck tire driven at a speed not over 40 miles per hour has a 30 per cent greater carrying capacity than the same tire has at 55 m. p. h. Also, the engineers warn, tire carrying capacity cannot be increased by inflation beyond recommended pressures.

H. W. PREHN, PRESIDENT OF the Central Chevrolet Co., 3949 Lindell, has appointed I. J. Marting new car manager. Marting has retailed cars for 15 years, for the last 11 years as a Chevrolet dealer in Maplewood, associated with the Reller Chevrolet Co.

THE 40 SALESMEN IN THE St. Louis branch territory of the Ford Motor Co. who lead in new car and truck sales in July will be guests of the company at a "roundup" party Aug. 17, M. N. Johnson, manager, announces. The "roundup" party will start at 10 o'clock in the morning and last until midnight with every effort made to give the leading salesmen the largest day's entertainment they have ever known. The program will include taking over of the Hillcrest Country Club for the day where prizes will be given the best swimmers, golfers, horseshoe pitchers as well as prizes to the winning baseball team in a contest between Illinois and Missouri salesmen. The Hillcrest club adjoins the site where the new Ford plant will be built. A banquet will follow in the evening at the Park Plaza, after which the salesmen will attend the production "Showboat" at the Municipal Opera.

AN AUTO WORKER IN LANsing, Mich., whose hobby is long-distance radio reception with a 23-tube set, is acting as a link between civilization and the two-year expedition which the American Museum of Natural History is sending into a part of Dutch New Guiana never before penetrated by white men. He is John De Myer, vice-president of the International Dx-ers' Alliance and a general foreman of maintenance in the Oldsmobile factory. De Myer's verified reception of distant radio stations includes reception of transmitters in 123 countries and recent contact with the new station on Pitcairn Island, of mutineers of the Bounty fame. The expedition has established a headquarters radio station, PK6XX, at Hollandria, on the Dutch Guiana coast. The explorers will carry a portable transmitter into the jungle for reports to PK6XX, which will relay them for reception by De Myer.

THE SEASON'S LARGEST lake shipment of autos, which filled the holds of two liners, consisted of 160 Dodge and Plymouth cars and 13 Dodge commercial cars and trucks. The cargo, valued at more than a million dollars at retail, was consigned to a Dodge dealer in Philadelphia. Most of the Dodge cars in it were of the recently introduced Hollywood model, while the Plymouths were mainly Roadkings.

AN AUTO OWNER WHO GOES regularly to his dealer for chassis lubrication, and has his engine gone over at regular intervals for crankcase draining and cleaning before adding new oil, will be well repaid, according to Dean W. Walters, service manager for the Willys factory. Burned points on spark plugs, a carburetor out of adjustment, and an ignition system not properly set for best operation of the motor, lose money for a car owner as rapidly as a hole in his pocket, Walters says.

THE TYPICAL UNITED STATES motor vehicle operator used 6[illegible] gallons of gasoline in 1937, and traveled slightly less than 10,00[illegible] miles in the family car, the American Petroleum Industries Committee estimates. Although he used his automobile about 30 per cent more last year than he did in 1929, there are numerous indications that the American motorist would have used his car even more than he did if there had not been a 57 per cent jump in his tax bill in the past eight years, the committee says.

Records of this eight-year period indicate that the cost of operating a motor vehicle is an important factor in the extent to which the United States motorist uses his motor vehicle. When a substantial reduction in the price of gasoline occurred between 1929 and 193[illegible] without any appreciable increase in automotive taxes, automobile use increased 18 per cent. But with the increase in Federal and state automotive taxes, this rapid growth in automobile use stopped.

It is significant, the committee says, that the halting of the steady increase in the use of motor vehicles occurred at the same time that motor vehicle taxes were making their greatest impression on the cost of motoring.

In 1929, the price of gasoline on a national average was slightly less than 18 cents a gallon, exclusive of taxes. Today, the average price of motor fuel, exclusive of taxes, is slightly over 14½ cents.

"All Cars Must Have Brakes Like Hudson's BEFORE THEY CAN BE REALLY SAFE!"

"No 'Question-Mark' Brakes For Me," says E. B. Jay, Detroit

WHEN it comes to brakes, nobody can afford to take the slightest chance. You needn't . . . in a Hudson!

No one drives with finer brakes than good hydraulics. And no hydraulics are finer than Hudson's . . . self-energizing 4-wheel Bendix hydraulics.

But what if the hydraulic fluid should leak away, through some accident or carelessness? It can happen with hydraulics of any type! Yet with all the improvement that has been made in automobile braking, only Hudson has done the one thing necessary to make hydraulics the perfect brakes.

In a Hudson, the driver simply does the natural thing . . . presses the same foot pedal a little farther down. A separate mechanical reserve braking system takes hold automatically. He STOPS . . . safely, surely.

Double-Safe Brakes! The only brakes without a question mark! And with them, still a third braking application from the easy acting parking brake.

But Hudson's safety leadership doesn't stop there. It gives you single-unit bodies all of steel. Extra windshield width . . . clearest vision all around. Safety plate glass. Up front . . . massive forged radial arms for safer steering and extra strength.

Drive the cars that set the pace, not only in safety, but in roominess, performance and economy. Drive a Hudson Terraplane, Hudson Six, Hudson Eight, or the new "lowest priced car," Hudson 112. Compare Hudson values with any others on the market today.

$694 and up for Hudson 112 (3-passenger coupe), delivered in Detroit, fully equipped; including Federal taxes. Price does not include state and local taxes, if any. For delivered price in your locality, see your Hudson dealer. Attractively low time payment terms, with new Hudson-C. I. T. Plan.

First you want beauty. Every woman who has "Alumilite" aluminum blinds in her home has been delighted with their refined beauty. Any colored tapes may be used. Of course you must have durability and service. Everything about "Alumilite" blinds is lasting—the special electrolytic processed aluminum makes a permanent satin platinum finish that does not chip, flake, peel, corrode, tarnish, oxidize or pit. The streamlined slats will not warp, sag, split or break—all hardware is enclosed and concealed. But the biggest cheer comes when women see that dirt will not stick to the smooth surface—no scrubbing—an occasional dusting keeps the blinds always new. "Alumilite" blinds repel heat rays like a mirror throws back light making the interior degrees cooler than with wood blinds. Before reconditioning old blinds, buying or replacing awnings or buying any kind of blinds, see the modern advancement in Venetian blinds—"Alumilite." Do not confuse "Alumilite" with plain aluminum or painted metal blinds—there is a big difference. Yes, they're moderate in price.

H O L C FORECLOSURES ON HOMES DECLINE

Every Legal Leniency Is Being Shown Delinquent Borrowers Corporation Says.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Foreclosures on homes authorized by the Home Owners' Loan Corporation have declined rather than risen during the recent period of slack business. Every legal leniency is being shown delinquent borrowers.

John H. Fahey, chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank board, made these statements today in an answer to a letter he had received from Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan.

"In terms of foreclosures authorized, the record has been one of a marked decline since the summer of 1936, at which time authorizations to institute foreclosure proceedings were running at the rate of some 8000 monthly," wrote Fahey. "This decline has not been interrupted by the discouraging business and industrial trend that set in last fall. In fact, after deducting the number of cases per month where foreclosure, though once authorized, has since been withdrawn, net foreclosures authorized from January through April of this year have averaged less than 3500 monthly. More significant is not the number of properties acquired, but rather the trend in the number of cases where the corporation finds itself currently obliged to authorize that foreclosure proceedings be started."

Vandenberg's Letter.

Senator Vandenberg, in his letter to Fahey, which elicited Fahey's response, stated, "No one more than I realizes the fundamental importance of preserving the public credit and of protecting the public treasury (which must depend upon the integrity of H O L C mortgages as a sound asset)." Referring to the rate of H O L C foreclosures, he wrote, "I am wondering whether there is any middle ground. I want to deal constructively with this problem so far as my own thinking goes in connection with it. It is in this spirit that I am asking your views."

Fahey explained that, although 55,000 properties were acquired from April 30, 1937, to April 30, 1938, due to the interval that necessarily elapses between the time foreclosure proceedings are instituted and the time action can be brought to a conclusion, many of these property acquisitions represent the completion of foreclosures started back in 1936 and 1937, and cannot be thought of as having originated in the recent months of the business decline.

TERMINAL TO REPLACE O'BRIEN BOILER WORKS

Building to Be Wrecked and Remaining Departments Moved Across Street.

The John J. O'Brien Boiler Works, occupying most of the block bounded by Howard, Mullanphy, Eleventh and Hadley streets, is to be wrecked to make way for a truck terminal.

Building Commissioner Charles A. Welsch told reporters the one-story building, of steel and timber construction, had become unsafe. Welsch said he was informed by James McKeown, president of the O'Brien firm, that the company would move its maintenance and replacement departments into quarters across the street from the plant. The ground will be sold to the truck terminal company.

SPECULATOR ACQUIRES WEST END APARTMENTS

Matthew Bain Buys Three-Story Structures, With 18 Units, on Kingsbury.

Comprising a total of 18 units, three three-story apartment buildings at 5527-33-37 Kingsbury place, in Washington Heights, north of Delmar boulevard, have been sold, with Matthew Bain, a client of the Stanley Epstein Real Estate Co.

A. T. and Whitelaw Terry, realtors, made the sale for Dr. H. W. Soper, who had acquired the buildings 10 years ago. The purchase price was not disclosed.

Each unit has four rooms, bath and refrigerator, and other modern facilities. The lots have a total frontage on Kingsbury of 138 feet, with a uniform depth of 78 feet.

The purchase was made as a speculative investment.

Ascribed to prevailing prices, a noteworthy number of apartment buildings in this section has been acquired recently, principally by speculators.

BUYS PROPERTY ON HANLEY ROAD NEAR CLAYTON

The house is finished in hardwood and is on an elaborate scale.

There is a three-car attached garage with living quarters above. Driveways on both sides of the house lead to the garage.

Sought by Speculators.

Attractively situated, the site, by virtue of its extensive depth, has challenged attention as available for a large scale apartment group. It has been under negotiation several times during the last two or three years, with speculators as the prospective purchasers, according to real estate men. Under the zoning ordinance, apartment buildings are permissible in this block, but are restricted to 10 stories in height.

The abutting tract on the east, with a frontage of 218 feet on Westwood drive, Moorlands Addition, is owned by Mrs. Walter J. Hock of Grosse Pointe, Mich., a daughter of Mrs. E. H. Simmons. It has a depth of 280 feet. The three-story house at 816 South Hanley road, just north of that purchased by Dr. Will, is owned by Clifford W. Gaylord, who acquired it 10 years ago from George Simmons, through A. T. & Whitelaw Terry, realtors.

The E. H. Simmons estate formerly comprised the tract at the northeast corner of Clayton and Hanley roads, purchased by Daniel C. Kerckhoff, president of the Pevely Dairy Co., in October, 1933, for a reported price of $50,000. Dominating the main entrance to Lake Forest, this tract has a frontage of 716 feet on Clayton road, extending from Hanley road to Westwood drive. It has a depth of 212 feet on both Westwood and Hanley. Under the zoning ordinance, the entire Clayton road frontage of this tract is available for business purposes.

Divers Plans Submitted.

Divers plans have been submitted for the improvement of the Kerckhoff tract, the most ambitious of these contemplating a business block, with the Clayton and Hanley corner designed for a drug store.

Residential and apartment development on Clayton road, as exemplified in Lake Forest, Claverach Park, Blue Ridge Terrace and Davis Place, has enhanced speculative possibilities of available corners on this thoroughfare, not restricted against business. The demand for sites in Blue Ridge Terrace, as well as in Davis Place, looks to the early absorption of these additions. Lake Forest, placed on the market in 1928 by the Lake Forest Development Corporation, is a conspicuous success. All the lots, except two in this addition, have been sold to builders or to potential builders.

Sam Brown, builder, has started construction of a 10-unit apartment building on the west side of Hanley road, 135 feet north of the Clayton road, in Davis place. Two 15-unit apartment buildings are nearing completion on the east side of Hanley road, opposite the Central Presbyterian Church, in Davis place, south of Wydown boulevard.

Dr. Will recently sold his residence on the east side of Lindbergh boulevard in Huntleigh Village, in St. Louis County, to Edward S. Peters, associated with the Liggett & Myers Tobacco Co.

120 GOLFERS TO BEGIN PLAY IN P. G. A. EVENT

By the Associated Press.

SHAWNEE - ON - DELAWARE, Pa., July 9.—The nation's crack pros, from defending champion Denny Shute to sideline spectator Walter Hagen, were gathering here today for the $15,000 P. G. A. championship, whose week-long run opens tomorrow with the first of two 18-hole qualifying rounds.

Starting early in the morning, 40 threesomes will tee off at six-minute intervals, with Shute, Felix Serafin of Clark's Summit, Pa., and Levi Lynch of Dallas getting away at 9:30 a. m. (St. Louis time) and two-time U. S. Open Champion Ralph Guldahl, paired with Jimmy Demaret of Houston and James Noonan of Chicago, following 12 minutes later.

Shute, winner over Jimmy Thomson, Shawnee's blond blaster, in the 1936 final at Pinehurst and over Harold (Jug) McSpaden a year ago at Pittsburgh, will crash into select company if he is crowned champion for the third straight year at the end of next Saturday's 36-hole final.

Hagen Will Not Compete.

Only two players, both honorary members of anybody's all-time golf team, have been able to improve on Shute's record. They are Hagen, who decided three days ago that his game wasn't good enough to seek a sixth championship to add to his victories in 1921, 1924, 1925, 1926 and 1927, and Gene Sarazen, Connecticut gentleman farmer, who won in 1922, 1923 and 1933.

In addition to Shute and Sarazen, the field of 120 starters includes three other former champions—Leo Diegel, who beat Al Espinosa in 1928 and Johnny Farrell in 1929; Johnny Revolta, winner in 1935, and Paul Runyan, who had to go 38 holes to beat Craig Wood in the 1934 title round.

65 for Horton Smith.

One of the most impressive performers in practice this week was Horton Smith. In his first trip around the course, the Chicago stylist scored 65, one under the course record set by Ed Dudley in the 1936 Shawnee open and seven under par. His round included three birdies on the first nine and two birdies and an eagle coming home.

While Shute, automatically eligible for match play, is competing in the qualifying round only in quest of the Alex Smith Memorial trophy which is awarded the medalist, his rivals will be battling for the 63 other match-play berths. The hand-to-hand fighting will start next Tuesday, when two 18-hole rounds are scheduled. The rest of the competition will be at 36 holes.

Harry Cooper, second in the ranks of money winners; Ky Laffoon and Tony Manero, beaten by McSpaden and Shute, respectively, in last year's semi-finals; Henry Picard, Byron Nelson, 1937 medalist; Dick Metz, U. S. Open runner-up; Thomson, Home Club pro; Frank Moore, brother of St. Louis Cardinal outfielder Terry Moore, and Sam Snead, still the country's top money winner despite the fact he was such a bust in the national open, also are entered.

In addition to Hagen, four other players who qualified sectionally withdrew. They were Tommy Armour, Chicago's "Silver Scot," who was forced to drop out because his hands are in bad condition; Jim Turnesa of Providence, R. I., his brother Joe of Rockville Center, N. Y., and Ted Longworth of Portland, Ore.

Four Post 71's.

SHAWNEE - ON - DELAWARE, Pa., July 9.—Two top-flight contenders and two entrants not so well knowns today stole the show as the nation's crack golf pros played their final practice rounds before tomorrow's start of the seven-day P. G. A. championship.

Dick Metz, runner-up in the U. S. Open last month, and Gene Sarazen three time P. G. A. winner, played around together through a shower and posted one-under-par, 71; scores which were equalled by Johnny Kinder of Plainfield, N. J., and Andy Gibson of Baltimore, Md.

Defending Champion Denny Shute took 73, as did Levi Lynch of Dallas, with whom Shute will be paired tomorrow, and Ted Luther of Pittsburgh. Leo Diegel, Philmont, Pa., John Thoren, West Newton, Mass., Tony Butler, Beeville, Tex., and Clarence Doser, Ardmore, Pa., took 74 each. Paul Runyan, White Plains, N. Y., Alvin (Butch) Krueger, Beloit, Wis., Bob Shave, Willoughby, O., and Henry Picard, Hershey, Pa., had 75's.

SOUTH ENDS OPPOSE NEW IBERIA CLUB IN GAME HERE TONIGHT

The South Ends, local semi-professional baseball team, seeking their fifth consecutive victory, will meet the New Iberia, Mo., team in a game at South End Park, Kingshighway and Juniata, tonight, starting at 8:30 o'clock.

"Zip" Humphrey, who has won seven and lost four games this season, will pitch for New Iberia. He has allowed 80 hits, fanned 91 and walked only 19 batters according to information received here. He will be opposed by Kenny Hoge or Johnny Dobernic.

Struck Out 12 Batters in College Final.

Pittman Suggests Neutrality Act Changes in View of War in China

Nevada Senator Favors Widening Discretion Allowed President in Its Application.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—Senator Pittman (Dem.), Nevada, said in an interview today that a year of war in China had demonstrated that the Roosevelt administration must be granted wider latitude in its economic and commercial dealings with China and Japan.

Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, he said this probably would involve revision of the Neutrality Act to give additional discretion to the President as to when and what part of its terms would be invoked.

The present neutrality act bars shipments of arms to both sides in any foreign conflict recognized by the President as a state of war. It was drafted primarily to cope with a possible European war situation and no thought was given to Asiatic developments, Pittman said. President Roosevelt has not invoked the statute against China and Japan, which never have declared war formally.

The increasing Japanese purchases of war supplies from the United States might encourage efforts to revise the economic and commercial relations of America with the Orient, Pittman indicated.

Sales of war materials to China in the last year exceeded those to Japan by slightly less than $5,000,000, but Japan's share of the purchases increased substantially during the last six months. A total of about $20,000,000 of such supplies was purchased from this country by the belligerents. None could have been purchased had the Neutrality Act been invoked in the Chinese-Japanese conflict as it was in the Spanish civil war.

Pittman predicted that, as long as the law remained unchanged, Japanese purchases would continue to increase while those of China would decrease. He attributed this to the fact that the Japanese blockade of Chinese ports was making it increasingly difficult for China to import American products.

TWO BOND ELECTIONS IN COUNTY TUESDAY

Ritenour School and East Riverview Gardens Sewer Districts to Vote.

The Ritenour Consolidated School District will hold an election Tuesday on a proposal to issue $50,000 in school bonds, and the East Riverview Gardens Sewer District will hold an election the same day on a $17,500 sewer bond issue. An election on a $162,000 bond issue for the Jennings-West Walnut Manor Sewer District, originally scheduled for Tuesday, has been postponed until July 26 because of a technical error in posting notices. All three proposals require a two-thirds majority for passage.

The proposed building program in the Ritenour district contemplates a P W A grant of $40,000. Funds would be used for construction of a four-room grade school, to be known as the Ashby School, on Baltimore avenue, just east of Ashland avenue in Overland; a one-story addition to the Ritenour High School, 8740 Forest avenue, Overland, and two additional rooms in the Elmwood School on Elmwood avenue.

If the proposal for a $17,500 bond issue for East Riverview Gardens Sewer District is approved, a Federal grant of $42,105 will be sought. The district, comprising 190 acres, is bounded roughly by Diamond drive on the west, St. Louis city limits on the east, Lookout drive on the south and a line one-half mile north of Chambers road on the north.

The Jennings-West Walnut Manor sewer district would apply for a $328,000 Federal grant to augment bond issue funds. It contains about 1000 acres and is bounded roughly by Emma avenue on the south, Hord avenue on the north, St. Louis city limits on the east and Lucas and Hunt road on the west.

Trustees of the two sewer districts will be elected.

AUTO UNION'S BOARD EXPELS OFFICER WHO OPPOSED MARTIN

George Addes Out as Secretary Treasurer; Widening of Rift in Organization Indicated.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, July 9.—The International executive board of the United Automobile Workers of America stripped George Addes of his official title of secretary-treasurer today and expelled him from membership in the union.

The board charged Addes had diverted money from the international union, had refused to abide by union actions and decisions, and had refused to answer questions or submit evidence in his own defense at his trial.

The decision was regarded as a further widening of the split between the faction of Homer Martin, U A W A president, and opponents led by Richard Frankensteen, former assistant president o fthe union. Frankensteen was suspended at the same time as Addes, Martin charging them with promoting factionalism. Addes was the first to be tried.

Addes, one of five international officers suspended last month by Martin, walked out of the board meeting at which he was tried yesterday afternoon after every request made by his attorney, Maurice Sugar, was refused.

Five board members who have been aligned with the "unity" faction, which Addes represents, also left the meeting.

He had been confined there for a month for a minor ailment and a general checkup of his physical condition. The war-time Governor went to his Sinnissippi farm near Oregon, Ill. Lowden entered the hospital June 8, a few weeks after his return from Baden-Baden, Germany.

PARAGUAY AND BOLIVIA SIGN ACCORD ON CHACO

Mediators Seek Quick Ratification of Treaty to End Century-Old Dispute.

By the Associated Press.

BUENOS AIRES, July 9.—Neutral mediators redoubled peace efforts tonight to prevent wrecking of a preliminary arbitration accord signed early this morning to end the century-old Chaco dispute between Bolivia and Paraguay.

The mediators sought a quick ratification of the pact by Bolivia and Paraguay to prevent complications which might prevent its becoming final.

They were confident public opinion in both countries would welcome the accord, which was initialed by the Bolivian and Paraguayan Foreign Ministers at 2:55 a. m. after a three and a half hour session at the Argentine Foreign Ministry. They were on guard, however, against any signs of maneuvering by the "outs" in both countries who, for political reasons, might fight the pact.

The first step toward making the arbitration agreement effective must be ratification by the Bolivian and Paraguayan governments. Then will come the signing of a definite treaty in Buenos Aires, and finally ratification of that treaty by the constituent assembly in Bolivia and by a plebiscite in Paraguay.

The Paraguayan situation preoccupied the neutrals more than the Bolivian.

Although the Paraguayan Government and army apparently are supporting the machinery established in today's accord, the neutrals could not help recalling the Paraguayan regime is not constitutional but provisional, established by a revolution which succeeded another revolutionary government.

Furthermore, Geronimo Zubizarretta, a possible liberal candidate for the Paraguayan presidency, resigned his chairmanship of the Paraguayan Chaco arbitration delegation this week because the projected accord did not give Paraguay all her 1932-35 conquests in the war with Bolivia over the Chaco jungleland.

The neutral mediators represented six American countries—Argentina, Brazil, Chile, Peru, Uruguay and the United States. Spruille Braden of New York was the United States delegate.

Neutral sources described the initialed arbitration draft as a "complete peace treaty" which, onec ratified, would set up not only a permanent boundary for arbitration of the six neutral presidents but also would provide for non-aggression commitments, re-establishment of normal diplomatic relations between Asuncion and La Paz, the disputing cauitals, and pledges of mutual commercial transit facilities through and beyond the Chaco, a region about the size of Arizona.

The same sources said the accord, once ratified, would bind Bolivia and Paraguay to accept as final the arbitral decision boundary line, extending northward from the Pilcomayo River in the Western Chaco to Northwest Chaco, and eastward to Paraguay or to the Otuquis River before it empties into the Paraguay River. The width of the strip varies from 18 to 50 miles.

Details of the agreement were officially withheld pending its ratification.

The Buenos Aires mediators, who will perform the actual arbitration on behalf of the six presidents, may send a commission to the Chaco wastelands to draft the boundary line definitely. Under the accord, the neutrals expected, the definite line may be proclaimed two months after the Bolivian-Paraguayan ratification machinery completes its work.

THIS NEW YORK

By LUCIUS BEEBE

LUCIUS BEEBE.

NEW YORK, July 9.

BELATEDLY, but better than never, comes the report of last semester's encounter of the rival debating societies at Groton School. It appears that the lads of the upper forms have their own debating teams, pick their own subjects and conduct their oratorical tournaments without let or hindrance from their instructors. Their last jousting was due to fall a few weeks ago, just before close of school for the summer, and the preliminaries were carried through in their accustomed manner. It was only toward the end that the headmaster, the Rev. Endicott Peabody, learned the topic under discussion, descended with outraged screams and howls upon the entire program, called everything off and retired to his study mopping his clerical brow over the narrowest call of his career. The lads had selected as a subject: "Which of its graduates, Richard Whitney or Franklin D. Roosevelt, has brought more discredit to Groton?" Next week the Rev. Dr. Peabody officiated at the marriage of one of the Roosevelt boys at Nahant.

● YOU NEVER CAN TELL about those British. The story is going the rounds of the Mayfair youth who was expecting as a house guest for a fortnight or so a young honorable he had encountered in London last year, and against whose arrival he was making very social preparations indeed. His guest's boxes arrived from the pier a day or so ahead of their owner, and numbered 60-odd trunks, hat boxes, golf bags, shoe cases and miscellaneous pieces and the young man laughed them off: "You know the English, they never leave anything at home even when they just come for the week end."

The young honorable came and encamped, unpacked family pictures and his own sheets, his favorite smoking chair and his polo sticks, his winter overcoats and his tropical clothes, all the lares and penates, and the whole business had a horrid suggestion about it of permanency. This was augmented when, after a month, his host began getting the bills for lunches for 20 at the Colony, phone calls to Paris and other trivia of social existence. How long was this to keep up? He got some notion of the possible length of the siege one day when he had occasion to look through the desk which his house guest had brought and entirely equipped with his own writing tools and paper. In the top drawer were 20 dozen sheets of engraved stationery handsomely embossed with the legend: "The Honorable Somebody Something, 115 East Seventy-eighth street, New York City.

—o—o—

● FACES AROUND TOWN: At Jack and Charlie's at lunch: Alva Johnston commanding crabs Meuniere with Amon G. Carter, the Lorenzo the Magnificent of East Texas, whose life he is writing for "The Saturday Evening Post" . . . At the same locale, Bill Hearst and Phil Ammidown, Dick Barthelmess and Bob Rubin and Dorothy Mackaill in her latest and sixtieth addition to her collection of tailored suits built of heavy tan gabardine . . . Emerging from the Warwick, Roscoe Peacock, Nestor of North Cohocton, N. Y., and champion letter-to-the editor writer, en route to the Lafayette for a pail of Raymond Orteig's celebrated bouillabaisse . . . On a dead run across Rockefeller Plaza, Finis Farr, on the way to an N. B. C. broadcast . . . At Bleeck's: Wolcott Gibbs, Mrs. Gibbs and Anne Hunneycutt being denounced loudly by Dick Maney during a match game of Homeric proportions.

Drinking habits, like those of dress, are so infrequently subject to change among New Yorkers of account that any slightest seasonal variation seems worth mentioning. The shift in urban taste from American-type whiskies to Scotch, a change that even today is only discernible in the largest cities of the North and is unheard of in the South and the West, has taken three decades for its accomplishment. Two new manifestations, one a revival of an earlier American observance and the other a brand-new vogue, are making themselves felt in the bars almost over night. The first is a considerable revival of the popularity of Madeira as an aperitif instead of the vast assortment of sherries which importers attempted to fob off in the place of cocktails after repeal. For one thing, many of the sherries exploited widely were of the most mediocre order, and hadn't the merit as an appetizer that a good glass of gin and bitters possesses.

● THE OTHER ASPECT of the sherry vogue was that it assumed such a preciosity and chi-chi that robust drinkers and gourmets remarked succinctly: "Nuts," and went right back to their reasonable and accustomed Martinis. and Manhattans. Now it seems that Madeiras, particularly dry Sercials, which have a fine high flavor without the thin bitterness of sherry and the alcoholic content of which is comparable to that of a cocktail, are being hoisted on every hand. Just as a single example: at Jack Bleeck's saloon, as hard-cased a professional newspaper man's and press agent's hangout as there is in town, Madeira ranks sherry today by a considerable margin.

The other new drink seems to be gin and tonic which, while for years familiar to the lads who have been in the Far East, has never before caught on to the extent it has this year. It has a flock of selling points: it is a real hot-weather drink calculated not to make the consumer bust into a dripping sweat while his blood pressure achieves retired-colonel proportions; it is cheap because it is as good with native spirits as with the imported product, and it has the cachet of British colonial smartness about it. Several barkeeps in top-notch places have told us that during that last hot week in June they sold gin and tonic two for one against Scotch highballs.

—o—o—

THEODORE TITZE, most exquisite dresser of the town's waiter captains, with the possible exception of the immaculate Gigi at the Coq Rouge, is presiding these summer days as proprietor of the Monument Inn, Bennington, Vt. . . . The specialty of the house is Vermont peaches drowned in champagne . . . Two of the town's leading dress designers are at the law-suit stage over who really outfitted Gloria Etting with that blue veil at her wedding a few weeks since . . . Overheard at the Alpine Grill at the Gotham: "One double dry daiquiri to go!"

"... Tonight I mustn't think of him, Music, Maestro, Please! ..."

THUS goes a hit song of the moment on St. Louis' country club and hotel dance floors, and, to complete the charm of current dancing, you hear the swish of black marquisette over taffeta as the crowd moves about on the floor. With accents of color, the new gowns are provocatively alluring. There is a definite hint of autumn in them, too, as is shown in the sketches.

Yards and yards of pleated marquisette in the skirt emphasize the slim waistline and tailored bodice of the dress in the circle. White pique and black and white patent are used for trimming.

The camisole bodice of the dress on the figure dancing is tightly shirred and buttons down the front. Again there are yards and yards of marquisette in the skirt, which flares romantically on the dance floor. The entire dress is embroidered in brightly colored rows of petitpoint.

There is the black chiffon, too, draping suavely into a modern classic with its crisp accents done in white marquisette. The tiny bolero jacket is entirely ruffled and a white ruffle and flower trims the bodice.

MY OPINION

Martha Carr

My dear Mrs. Carr:

I ALWAYS read your column and enjoy it very much. This letter is intended for all boys and girls in their teens who are puzzled with love affairs; it is something of my own experiences. I want to say first, that I owe everything I have and am to my parents who carefully guided me through those 'teen years.

I am 30 years old and married now, have an adoring husband and a lovely baby boy. My husband takes good care of us and has an adequate salary. To begin with, I was in and out of love several times before I was sure of myself. And this was only after a serious meditation on marriage, through my parents, and the right kind of diversions. I was cured and directed, though it meant some tears at each separation.

At 18 I taught school and, at one time, changed schools to lose myself in work and found it the best cure; but I did not lack friends and diversions meanwhile, while I gained my freedom. By the time my husband-to-be came along, I was not so impulsively in love. I had learned to gauge myself. At 28 I married. And what I would have missed, had I married any one of my first sweethearts!

My 12 years of teaching helped my parents buy a home and educate my brother and sister. And I spent some time in traveling. I had pretty clothes and a good car, for this purpose, and bought my own furniture. Now no one could be happier than my husband and I.

So my advice to "Puzzled Girl" is to get all the education she can, get a job, work hard, take vacations regularly, read good books, magazines and the news of the day. Do a good deed every day and she'll find herself much happier. LEARNED BY EXPERIENCE.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

● MY PROBLEM may not seem like very much to you, but it has me worried. I am 15 and all of my girl friends have dates. I suppose I would, but, Mrs. Carr, I have to be in by 9:30 every night. The only time I go out is to a show and then I have to take my two younger brothers along and I get tired sitting at home all day and then every night; and I find that I am becoming cranky. I fight with my girl friends, and even with my mother, over the least little thing. Maybe I am wrong, but girls my age have to do something, besides clean house. Please help me, and thank you so much. I need something in my life besides housework and a show once a week. CRANKY.

Indeed, you do need something in your life besides "housework and a show." Why not go and get it? And I do not mean by that a "date" every evening. Outdoor games and sports and a hundred other things are right at your front door waiting for you. You are too young, entirely, to become cranky and difficult with your friends and at home, just because you cannot have "dates." Right now, you really have no time for "dates." Evidently, the letter printed above is a good answer, which you should ponder well.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

IN ANSWER to the woman who wrote asking if it is all right to use lye on her dark floors, I will say that she has a large undertaking, and, unless she owns the place, I would not advise her to try it. I had the same kind of floor and I will say that if she puts on a ground coat first and a light tan afterwards she will get good results.

EXPERIENCED.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

● WE LIVE NEXT DOOR to a public playground. The Board of Education erected seesaws directly beneath our bedroom window. These are slammed all day long and far into the night.

My husband works nights and this unnecessary noise is very disturbing. I have spoken to the instructor and have been told they could do nothing about this noise. But I have a letter in my possession in answer to my complaint in regard to the seesaws, dated June 9, 1931, in which the Board of Education promised to have some kind of protection made on the under side of these boards to deaden the noise. But up to the present time, nothing has been done.

As we are owners of this property, Mrs. Carr, it is impossible for us to move. What shall we do? A CONSTANT READER.

It does seem out of the question that a promise, made by the Board of Education in 1931, has not been kept. There must have been an oversight by someone. In your place or your husband's, I should go personally to the office of the Board of Education, 913 Locust street, taking the letter containing their promise with me, and register a new complaint. If this is not sufficient, register with the Police Department, a public nuisance complaint.

Dear Mrs. Carr:

SIX ANXIOUS girls are wondering if you would please give us information about some good camps in Missouri and at a reasonable price. Where we could enjoy swimming, tennis and dancing. US SIX.

Send me self-addressed, stamped envelope if you wish my list of camps. This list is, however, composed of those established by a fund or some organization, and not those run on an entirely business basis. Suggest you inquire of Post-Dispatch Travel Bureau. It has vacation guides.

Dear Martha Carr:

● ACROSS THE STREET from me lives a girl my own age, whose reputation is not of the best. But she seems to be very friendly and, as I am taught not to be snobbish, I must speak to her. But just as soon as I do speak or smile, she immediately wants to be better friends. I've tried to decide what to do and how I should treat her, but I haven't succeeded. She wouldn't hesitate to ask to go some place with me, and, as I don't like to be seen with her, I am, UNDECIDED.

If you have good reason and proof to KNOW that the girl deserves this reputation, then you are justified in keeping at a distance. But you would want to know that this is not just calumny brought about by idle gossip.

There are those who do not seem to know the difference between friendliness and familiarity and, in case the rumors are true, it will be a difficult matter for you to preserve a distance without incurring her enmity. And, of course, if you feel you must preserve this distance and still not behave in an unkindly manner and she resents, you will have to grow more and more reserved. If she still forces the issue, you will be obliged to ignore her entirely. Your family should help you make your decision. Selectiveness is not snobbishness.

It's Time To Do Something About Summer

So Assert Some of the Oracles, and Then Break Down With Helpful Hints on How to Keep Cool; Many of Their Ideas, However, May Burn You Up.

By CLARISSA START

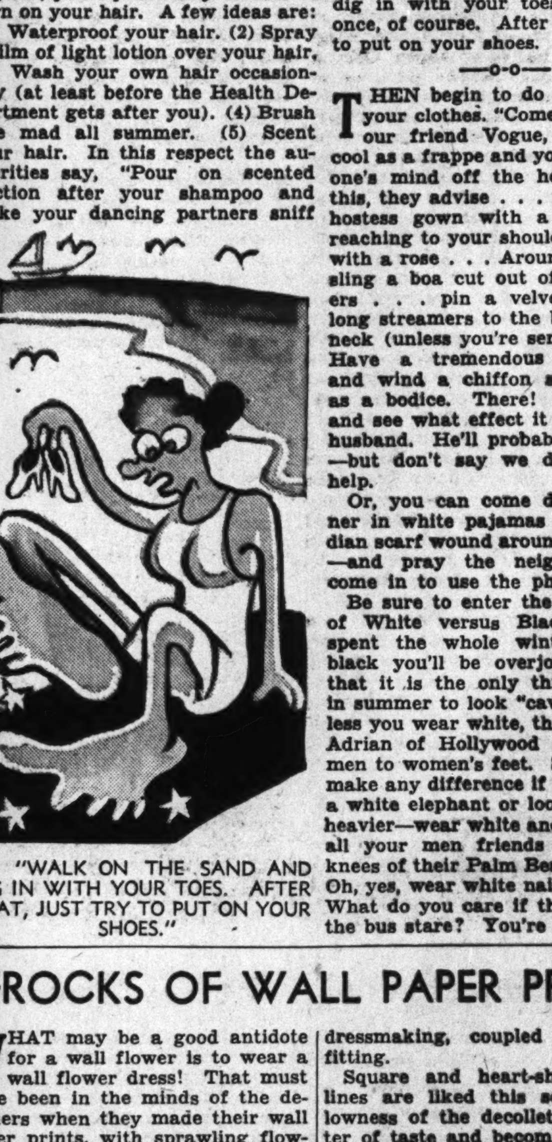
IF you've always been one of those slow, phlegmatic individuals who thinks summer is the time to crawl behind the Venetian blinds, hoist yourself on a block of ice and turn on the fans, it's high time that you perish the thought and decide to do something about summer. Maybe you thought that summer was something to do without rather than do things about. Maybe you're a pessimist and thought the only thing to do was grit your teeth and wait till the bitter end. If so you're wrong, too.

For, according to those two magazines of fashion and beauty, Vogue and Harper's Bazaar, you shouldn't give up in summer. You shouldn't even say "Phew," much less, "Well, it looks like another scorcher," or, "My, isn't it warm today." Even if you can't go to Maine or Nantucket, or out on the Meramec, you should be calm and cheerful and devote yourself to taking people's minds off the heat. And Vogue and Harper's are just chock full of ideas to help you forget the heat—or, at any rate, wear yourself out so thoroughly that you won't remember heat or anything else.

First of all, remember that summer is just a state of mind, and all you have to do is keep your mind off the heat. Above all, they warn, don't give in. Don't eye the thermometer—not even if it breaks. Never get in a temper. "If," says Vogue, "you find that the drawing room ceiling has fallen, invite your friends in the have a good laugh." That is, unless the drawing room ceiling's fallen in on your friends. Anyway, it's typical of what your attitude should be.

After the merriment has died down, you can begin to do things to relieve the heat situation—which, of course, you don't recognize. First of all, you can do things about your appearance. Your sunburn, for instance, is a simple problem. You either tan or you don't tan. Your only worry is not what to do about the 87 freckles that pop out annually on your nose, but whether you want to be gold, bronze, creamy tan, sun beige, warm toast, underdone or overdone. You can take your choice just by picking out one lotion. It's as easy as setting the automatic toaster.

When you finish your color problem, you can turn to your hair. In fact, if you follow all the advice on achieving coolness in the hirsute regions, you'll practically be able to turn on your hair. A few ideas are: (1) Waterproof your hair. (2) Spray a film of light lotion over your hair, (3) Wash your own hair occasionally (at least before the Health Department gets after you). (4) Brush like mad all summer. (5) Scent your hair. In this respect the authorities say, "Pour on scented friction after your shampoo and make your dancing partners sniff appreciatively." (Maybe.) Aside from that, you can give your hair dozens of treatments, guaranteed to bring down the temperature and bring up your appearance. Shampoo your hair with oil, with egg, with rum, with vinegar. Pour into a salad bowl and serve on a lettuce leaf.



"WALK ON THE SAND AND DIG IN WITH YOUR TOES. AFTER THAT, JUST TRY TO PUT ON YOUR SHOES."

If you're not dizzy by that time, you can turn your attentions to your feet. First of all, you simply must have soothing foot treatments at your local beauty salon—you're not civilized if you don't. If your salon doesn't soothe feet, you'll have to skip that. However you can—if you will—put your feet in alternate hot and cold water, sit with your feet elevated, walk on the sand and dig in with your toes—not all at once, of course. After that, just try to put on your shoes.

—o-o—

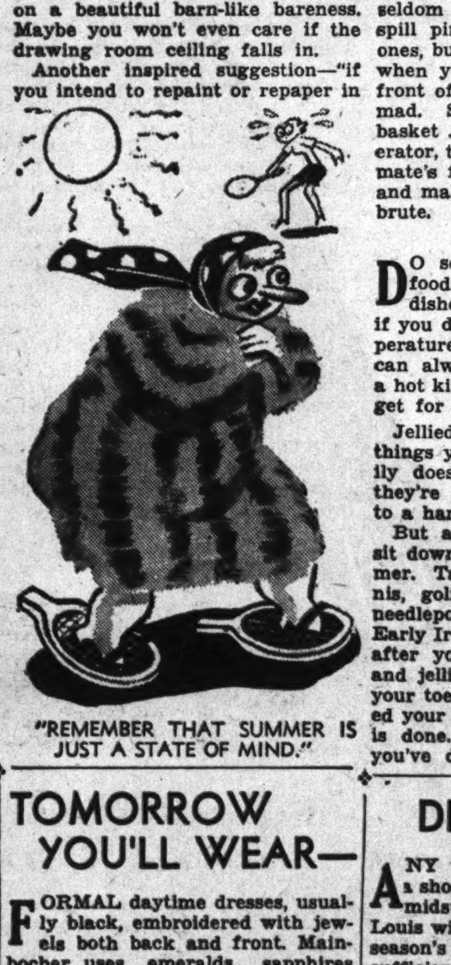
THEN begin to do things about your clothes. "Come down," says our friend Vogue, "looking as cool as a frappe and you'll take anyone's mind off the heat." To do this, they advise . . . wear a frilly hostess gown with a lace shawl, reaching to your shoulders, held on with a rose . . . Around your neck sling a boa cut out of print flowers . . . pin a velvet bow with long streamers to the back of your neck (unless you're sensitive) . . . Have a tremendous wide skirt and wind a chiffon scarf around as a bodice. There! Do all that and see what effect it has on your husband. He'll probably leave you —but don't say we didn't try to help.

Or, you can come down to dinner in white pajamas with an Indian scarf wound around your waist —and pray the neighbors don't come in to use the phone.

Be sure to enter the controversy of White versus Black. Having spent the whole winter loathing black you'll be overjoyed to find that it is the only thing to wear in summer to look "cave cool." Unless you wear white, that is. White, Adrian of Hollywood says, brings men to women's feet. So it doesn't make any difference if you feel like a white elephant or look 12 pounds heavier—wear white and you'll have all your men friends getting the knees of their Palm Beaches baggy. Oh, yes, wear white nail polish, too. What do you care if the people on the bus stare? You're in style and you're keeping cool. Or are you?

Here are other scintillating suggestions in case you run out of something to do and feel tempted to take a nap—"on a hot day, brush back your curls and pin on them a bandeau of spiky ears of wheat." "Have a really long black lace scarf to drop over your shoulders"—and into your soup. "Equip yourself with a huge perfumed chiffon hanky—as you go you will leave a delicate trailing wake of fragrance." "Over your head, wear a mesh snood, airy as a bird cage." (The analogy drawn here is a bit too vivid.)

After you've finished your Surrealistic disguise, do something about your house. Take up all the rugs and take down all the curtains. Sternly ignore anyone who asks you if you're moving. Pick up all extraneous matter and put it in a closet. Be careful not to open the closet door too suddenly. Warn your husband about this, too, when he goes looking for an ash tray. Your house or apartment will take on a beautiful barn-like bareness. Maybe you won't even care if the drawing room ceiling falls in.



"REMEMBER THAT SUMMER IS JUST A STATE OF MIND."

Another inspired suggestion—"if you intend to repaint or repaper in fall, you may find it fun to whitewash one wall of your living room for the summer." Well, it was only a suggestion. Anyway, its much more fun to make slipcovers. They seldom fit, of course, and you'll spill pink lemonade on the white ones, but anyway it passes the time when you could just be sitting in front of the fan. So slip cover like mad. Slip cover the dachshund's basket . . . the radiators, the incinerator, the andirons. Slip cover your mate's favorite chair in pink satin and make him sit on the floor, the brute.

—o-o—

DO something, too, about the food situation. Remember hot dishes are healthful and what if you do faint or the witchen temperature rises to 110 degrees. You can always say, "Here I slave in a hot kitchen and what thanks do I get for it?"

Jellied consomme is one of the things you must serve. If the family doesn't like jellied consomme, they're out of luck. They can go to a hamburger stand after dinner.

But above all don't let yourself sit down and do nothing this summer. Take some exercise, play tennis, golf, do calisthenics. Learn needlepoint, learn the habits of the Early Iroquois. Get education. Even after you've baked the macaroni, and jellied the consomme and dug your toes in the sand and marinated your hair, don't think your duty is done. Don't be satisfied that you've done all you can to keep cool until you wake up and they're packing you in ice.

And if you can't get enough suggestions for keeping cool from this list, you're probably an old crank anyway and you'd better go to an air-cooled movie, where you'll be seeing me.

GIRL ABOUT TOWN

By Dorothy Coleman

THE three-day holiday over the Fourth of July took its toll of small animals. In the St. Louis area alone, 30 cases involving death or injury were handled by the Humane Society of Missouri, maintaining 24-hour ambulance and emergency service at its headquarters and hospital, 1210 Macklind avenue. The number of dumb patients, victims of injuries caused by fireworks, showed a sharp decline from previous years, brought about, Humane Society officers believe, by education of mothers responsible for mischievous children, and also by the fact that fewer families with children remained in town to celebrate the long week end. Because many families got away, traffic on the highways and streets was heavier and the number of canine or feline victims of motorists rose correspondingly.

A list of the dead and injured, victims of fireworks, and the extent of their injuries follows: One dog, fits from the noise and shock of fireworks exploding near him, destroyed at hospital; seven dogs, nervous shock from explosion of fireworks, affecting especially the stomach, sedatives administered and patients discharged; two dogs, powder burns, treated and discharged. (One of these patients was minding his own business in his own back yard when someone threw a lighted firecracker over the fence onto his back).

A total of 19 cats and dogs was injured on the highways. Of these, six were dead on arrival at the hospital; seven were so severely injured that they had to be destroyed; six were successfully treated, three of them leaving with owners, three remaining overnight for further treatment.

—o-o—

WHEN ONE MEMBER of a sewing circle in town was going off to Europe, the rest of the crowd decided to fete her. They would send her a bottle of champagne, to be served, all iced, in her cabin, soon after the ship sailed. One of their number was elected to make the necessary arrangements at the steamship office downtown. Getting hold of the right man with whom to place the order, she stated her business. "But, madam," he protested, "let us serve it on the second night. NO one drinks champagne the first night out."

That's the tradition of the sea for you.

—o-o—

REVIEWERS of the first-night performance of "Penny Wise" at the Civic Theater wrote of sounds on the stage being blown away and lost to the audience by strong breezes in the tree tops. Members of the cast are indignantly denying that acoustics of the new outdoor theater are at fault. Once, they say, while a group of the actor-builders were painting seats at the rear of the amphitheater, somebody said "Whats that? Listen! What's that?" Tick tock, tick tock, was faintly audible. It was the tick of a clock on the stage, a big alarm clock brought out by two of the zealous actor-builders who had been camping in the under-stage dressing rooms and wanted to be early on the job.

THE SHOPKEEPING instinct gets them sooner or later. Now a quartet of society girls is setting up a Garden Shop, at 388 North Euclid. Those involved are Eloise Wells Polk, who's been doing fashionable landscape gardening around town for a number of years; her younger sister and occasional assistant, Eugenia Wells; onetime debutante, Marcella Berkley, and the much-traveled Marian Ewing. They speak of themselves now as "garden decorators." The shop, opening Aug. 1, will specialize in garden furniture and supplies, and a party service of cut-flower arrangements. They will also offer advice on whether calla lilies, or African daisies will do more for that dark corner of your living room. All very de luxe, and something new to St. Louis, although such services exist in New York, and even, lately, in Kansas City. The shop promises to be inviting, with a canopy at the front entrance, flanked by tubs of oleanders.

FROCKS OF WALL PAPER PRINTS

WHAT may be a good antidote for a wall flower is to wear a wall flower dress! That must have been in the minds of the designers when they made their wall paper prints, with sprawling flowers like an artist's pallet of colors splashed over dark grounds.

The fabric which we have just seen from a celanese collection is a crepe lidonese in morning glory pattern, and certainly an evening dress of this gay fabric would keep anyone out of the corner.

Unlike the majority of large evening prints, however, the wall paper print is not designed for a sophisticated type of dress. It is prettiest and smartest right now in the dirndl or full-skirted frock, and this goes for size 14 or 38. While modern in feeling and adaptation, the floral pattern has an old-fashioned flavor, and just like the chintz patterns, it is fascinating in old-fashioned dresses.

Practically all of the pattern books offer you attractive versions of the full-skirted dress that are easy to make. Don't try anything complicated. The simpler your pattern the better. The style details of neckline, sleeve and waistline are all matters that you adapt to your own particular figure, and that's the real secret of successful dressmaking, coupled with good fitting.

Square and heart-shaped necklines are liked this season. The lowness of the decollete is a matter of taste and becomingness, but fashion makes it as low as the bosom will stand. Sleeves are short and still puff in this kind of dress, but the new way is to make them puff up instead of out. That's Schiaparelli's idea, and it is a flattering and heightening feature.

While many dirndls are gathered at the beltline, this is not at all necessary, and for the figure that is at all full around the waist, it is much smarter to flatten the hipline with small tucks. They may be as deep as you like, so long as the fullness starts somewhere over, or just below the hipline. Take care not to carry the fullness too low or the proportion will be thrown out, and your style spoiled.

Crepe sandals in a color of your print and the same color repeated in a velvet bow in your hair, would complement your dress in a smart way.

Rattling Windows

Take an ordinary clothespin and split it in two and there are two fine wooden wedges for those rattling windows that bothered you so much during the last windstorm.

TOMORROW YOU'LL WEAR—

FORMAL daytime dresses, usually black, embroidered with jewels both back and front. Mainbocher uses emeralds, sapphires and rubies.

Crepe de chine. The French houses have made much of it in the past collections, and it is expected to stage a definite comeback to fashion.

Lace petticoats, three or four of them in different colors, under romantic chiffon or net evening dresses.

Beach Footwear.

Airplane wood is being used for high stilt-soled clogs worn with beach cosumes. The wood is very light of weight, so the wearer of the thick-soled sandals doesn't have to drag her feet. Cotton straps in bright color combinations twist about the ankles and are adjustable.

DRESSES FOR BUSINESS GIRLS

ANY woman who starts out on a shopping expedition during the midsummer fashion lull in St. Louis will find markdowns of early season's favorites on every side, but sufficient new styles in dresses and accessories to reward her for her efforts. Several interesting shirtwaist frocks developed in attractive patterns, dark-colored sheer dresses which will carry into the autumn and cool costumes that look more like fall than summer are among the high lights of the newest arrivals in St. Louis.

The shirt-waist dresses are the types that look trim for wear downtown in St. Louis, and therefore are especially liked by the business girl. Striped cottons, printed sheer rayone, natural-colored shantungs and old-fashioned challis prints in striking color alliances are among those being featured.

—o-o—

MANY of these dresses are designed with convertible collars, so that they may be turned low at the neckline for added comfort, and they have blouses with pleated backs to assure greater ease in wearing. Larger armholes also are noted as a concession to the heat of St. Louis summers.

A good-looking dark sheer dress is difficult to find, but St. Louis shops, realizing the demand for such a midsummer costume, have done their best to provide suitable models. Chiffon is undoubtedly the most satisfactory choice, because it does not muss easily and looks as cool as it actually is. One draped model which strikes a new note has elbow-length sleeves which may be pushed higher. There also is a pleated chiffon dress which will be flattering to most figures. Similarly designed frocks of rayon jersey and sheer crepe offer possibilities for early autumn, as well as late summer wear.

—o-o—

THE MAJORITY of these dark dresses are black, although navy blue continues to be popular. The complete absence of trimming is a striking point. The designers tell us that the addition of a handsome clip or of a cluster of seasonal flowers will be sufficient to relieve the somberness of the material and result in the frock being adapted to changing modes of accessories and accents.

Some interesting new frocks of diagonally striped jersey are on display and offer a variation from the usual midsummer modes. These are referred to as "zebra stripes," as the contrasts are so striking.

ON BROADWAY with Walter Winchell

Walter Winchell is on vacation.. His guest columnist today is Robert L. Ripley of "Believe It or Not" fame.

If W. W.'s "Girl Friday" Were Making Memos of "Believe It or Not."

DEAR MR. W.: You'll have to revise the divorce record figures again. Iman Abduhl Azis Ibn Sa'ud has just Reno-vated his marital affairs . . . for the 174th time. The new Mrs. Sa'ud is No. 178. Yes, I know there's a difference in the figures. He's allowed to have four wives at one time. Sa'ud is Sultan of Nejd, you know.

Speaking of marital matters, did you know that the road to the altar at Northfield, N. J., leads to the insane asylum? Mm-m-m! The registrar of vital statistics, the only person authorized to issue marriage licenses, has his office in the Atlantic County Hospital for the Insane. Now you know why young couples are crazy about each other.

If you think some of the matches made in Hollywood and Manhattan are a bit on the goofy side, how about these? Shebbatai Zebi, the famous psuedo-Messiah, Gretna-Greened it with the Bible at Salonika, Greece; it was a publicity stunt, aimed to build him up as the Messiah. Caligula, Emperor of Rome, one-ed it with the moon—he WAS crazy. And in India, a girl never can tell when her dad will marry her off to a tree. Talk about husbands who are "sticks"! Idea is, papa has to make the mango tree his son-in-law before he can enjoy the fruit off the family tree.

So you won't worry about it next time you're eating oysters, the chance of finding a pearl in one is less than 1 in 66,000,000. John Anderson opened that many oysters, didn't find a pearl, Believe It or Not! Took him 60 years to do it.

—o—o—

They've got the wrong man tagged with that Goliath killing. David is innocent, and they ought to get out a warrant for Elhanan, son of Jarre, if they want the guilty party. The evidence against David is framed. There's plenty of proof.

—o—o—

● YOU OUGHT to set the folks straight on that Manhattan deal—the Indians weren't cheated, even though they only got $24 for the whole thing. If they had been prudent and invested the proceeds at 7 per cent (legal rate was 10 per cent in those days), they'd have nearly $20,000,000,000! That's about twice the present assessed value of the whole place, skyscrapers and all.

Did you know that the United States had one Vice-President without knowing who he was? He was Henry Wilson, who served with Grant. Until he died no one knew that his real name was J. J. Colbaith. He changed his name because he was afraid his real one would keep him from being a success.

—o—o—

All your present child prodigies would have to take a back seat to Christian Heinecken of Lubeck, Germany. This Wunderkind could talk at eight weeks. He knew the Pentateuch at 12 months, the Bible at 13 months and by the time he was two years old he was conversant with all the ancient and modern history. By the time he was four he was conversant in French and Latin, as well as German. But he died while only five.

—o—o—

● TELL YOUR FISHERMEN FRIENDS who are too lazy to do anything except talk about the big ones they missed to go to Yoro, Honduras, where it rains fish every July. That's the tornado and waterspout season, and the opportunists wait for the fish sucked up from streams and ocean to fall to earth.

Things you really ought to know . . . a hippopotamus has a stomach 10 feet long, an albatross can scratch its head with its feet while flying (to ease the itch to go places), the koala has an appendix eight feet long, a tapir (ant-eater to you) doesn't swim when it wants to cross a river—it walks across on the bottom . . . There's a species of butterflies (in Florida) that only flies north! . . . The East wind is heavier than the West wind!

—o—o—

You heard about the fellow who could be arrested for his thoughts . . . Guiseppe Mazzini, the father of Italian Unity actually was . . . they threw him into jail when he refused to tell what he was thinking about on his long, solitary walks! That's a wrinkle modern dictators haven't though of yet . . . When you're passing out the medal for confidence in advertising, keep Al Nicoll of Scotia, N. Y., in mind. In the local Journal he ran the ad: "WANTED—Rain Thursday evening between 6 and 8 p. m." Why? I dunno!

● AROUND BROADWAY you won't run into any woman haters, but here's one who had no use for women dead or alive. Johann George Seelman of Vienna willed that he should be buried between two empty graves to make sure no woman ever would be buried near him! . . . R. R. Conley of Greenwood, Ark., has a new answer to that old one about "which came first, the hen or the egg?" . . . he gathered an egg that also is a hen—in shape, anyhow.

—o—o—

It's getting harder to do every year, what with thrones so scarce, but a really ambitious woman might get to be a king, yet . . . yes, I said king, not queen . . . England's famous Queen Bess also was King of France . . . and everybody ought to remember that Christiana (the one Greta Garbo made famous) was crowned King of Sweden . . . and they say history repeats itself . . .

—o—o—

● MAYBE THESE LITTLE NUGGETS will bowl them over at "21" . . . Eggs breathe (most of those you run into at the bar breathe easier when someone grabs the check) . . . the world's easiest reducing system is to go East; you weigh less going East than going West, Believe It or Not . . . the biggest boner is to say that a shark has bones; 'tain't so . . . You think some of this surrealist art is funny . . . it had nothing on that produced by some of the ancients . . . Zeuxis, the old Greek painter, laughed himself to death at the sight of one of his own pictures . . . these modernists don't have such a fatal sense of humor.

GET READY for a hard one to believe . . . there were no children born in January and February for more than 2000 years! . . . because there wasn't a January or February until about 700 B. C., when the calendar was reformed by King Numa Pompilius! That's one to collect some bets on. You can have a bit of fun with Prosecutor Dewey next time you run into him . . . tell him about the Chief Justice being a drunkard, gambler, gangster and highwayman, sticking up travelers at night . . . catch is, he's dead, thank goodness . . . name Sir John Popham, the same one who sentenced Sir Walter Raleigh to death!

Here's news for you . . . nitro-glycerine is not an explosive, Believe It or Not! . . . the dangerous stuff is glyceryl-trinitrate . . . no doubt you still won't want to carry it around with you.

Going Behind The Juvenile Crime Record

Neglectful Parents Should Share Children's Punishment, Says Columnist.

By Elsie Robinson

"ONE out of every six criminals arrested in 1937 was under 21 years old. Their crimes included murder, robbery, assault, burglary. The best remedy for such a situation is parental care—home environment."

So speaks Maj. W. H. Drane Lester of the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Did you ever watch a police "line-up"? Ever see lanky youngsters, still in the pin-feather stage, come shambling into the Kleig light glare . . . stand, shuddering or swaggering . . . blubbering or snarling, facing a darkness pin-pricked with watchful eyes? If you have, you'll never forget it. And you'll go away with a new horror and wonder in your heart.

Sure—you'd heard of bad youngsters. But you'd never have suspected they were like this. Why these are just kids. Babies!

Yet, grim as this sight is, there's another that's worse. And that's the army of unfit, neglectful or lawless parents who sent these youngsters into that line-up.

Why has America such an appalling rate of young criminals? Because it has such an appalling number of negligent parents—and viciously sentimental citizens who do nothing about it!

—o-o—

"MOTHER LOVE"—so-called—is responsible for endless juvenile delinquency. The cruelest, laziest, most nit-witted mother can blubber her way out of practically any juvenile mess. But 10 years later, you and I will have to pay her baby-bandit's bills in some penitentiary or reform school. Well, we asked for it. And, at worst, it only nicks our pocketbooks. But how about the youngster?

Should he alone be forced to pay the price for our selfishness, stupidity and spinelessness? We have stringent laws to protect our groves and orchards, our pigs and cows and sheep. But how much protection do we give children in their plastic years?

I am a mother. For 35 years I have worked with children, other mothers, and representatives of the law. And I'm telling you—

No union in America would accept a worker who had as little knowledge of his craft and was as negligent in its performance as many mothers.

—o-o—

NOR AM I now referring exclusively to obviously "bad" mothers. Many a leader in club and society is included in this indictment. Due to our cockeyed notion that a knowledge of child needs will arrive miraculously and simultaneously with birth—and that "mother intuition" is a substitute for scientific training—motherhood remains the most inept and unsuccessful profession on earth.

America's juvenile "line-up" is the most shameful indictment of womanhood ever seen in any nation.

For many years Mexico had a law which it ruthlessly enforced. If a minor child was caught in a crime or misdemeanor, its parents were also haled into court—and given the brunt of the punishment.

It's a pity we can't copy our southern neighbors. A police lineup for neglectful parents would do more to stop the juvenile crime wave than a thousand laws and sermons. It might, of course, be tough on the night clubs, bridge tables and golf courses where Mom and Dad now seek relief from their arduous duties—while their still small children develop into neighborhood pests—but it would certainly put a crimp in our penal budgets later on.

Summer Beach Coats

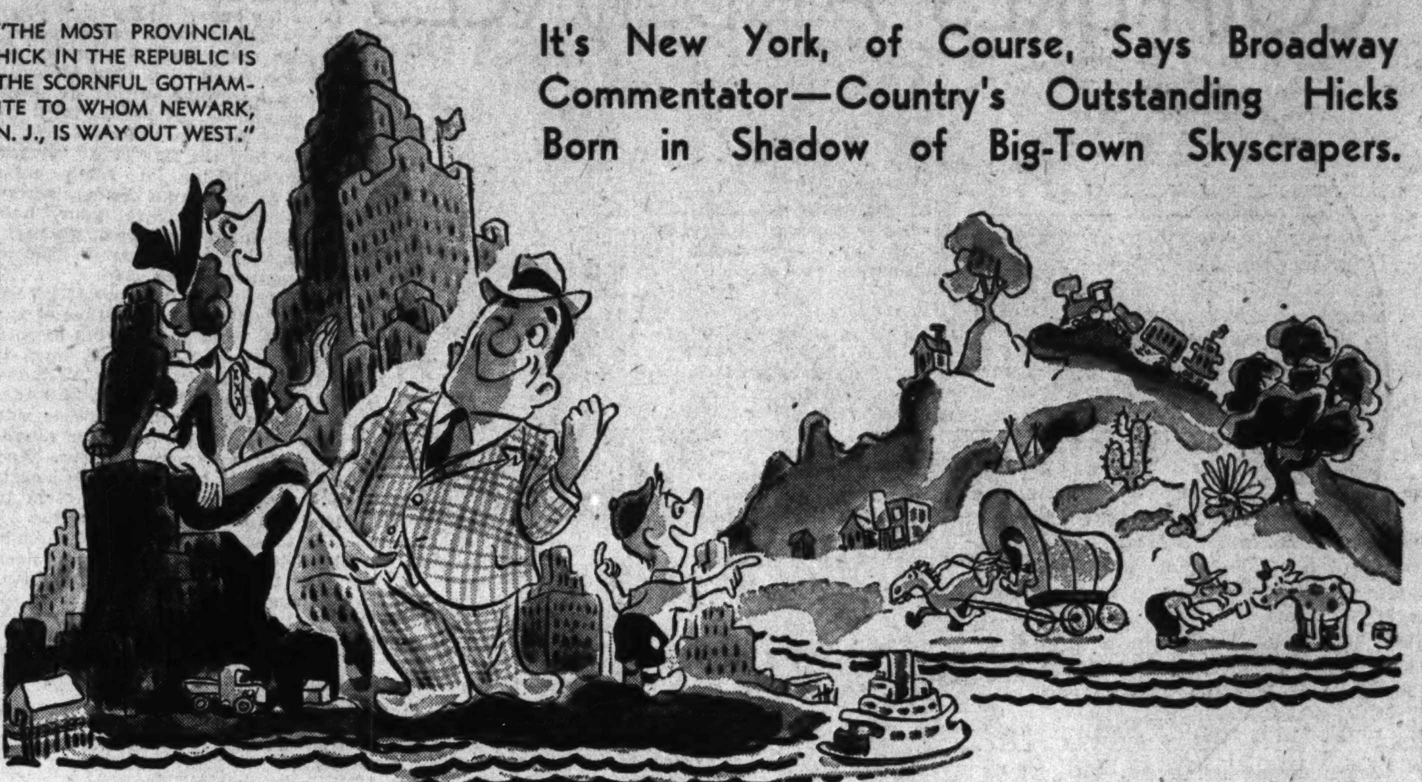
Some of the summer beach coats are as much at home on the roof gardens as they are by the water's edge. Penny-wise designers have created them with this extra-duty feature, so that they may be worn over evening dresses as well as over bathing suits. Three striking examples are: The full-length pique coat, either white or colored, which tubs beautifully and has tailored details; the white sharkskin coat cut with raglan shoulders, roomy pockets and a wide belt, and those loose-hanging shirt-coats that are created of novelty materials ranging from calico to brocaded satin.

Cushion-Soled Sandals.

An Egyptian princess never had any more luxurious sandals than those cushion-soled types which Schiaparelli contributes to the swankiest fashions of the season. One felt sole is piled on top of another and covered with a different shade of material until a cushion more than an inch thick is provided. Some additional padding is added at the back so that the heel rests higher than the rest of the foot. Delicately tinted georgette ties are used to bind the foot and tie at the ankle.

AMERICA'S NO. 1 YOKEL CENTER

It's New York, of Course, Says Broadway Commentator—Country's Outstanding Hicks Born in Shadow of Big-Town Skyscrapers.



"THE MOST PROVINCIAL HICK IN THE REPUBLIC IS THE SCORNFUL GOTHAMITE TO WHOM NEWARK, N. J., IS WAY OUT WEST."

By Leonard Hall

IT is widely believed throughout the United States, and even in the Big Town itself, that the native-born New Yorker is as rare as the purple-tufted ibex in Times Square. This fly-blown fallacy, in fact, has risen to the dignity of a national joke. Our seven and a half million, it is held, are all starry-eyed immigrants from Keokuk and Painted Post who roared into Gotham to bottle up Broadway, corner Wall street and drive the last Indian from Central Park!

Of course, this is unadulterated nonsense, for many thousands of our municipal inmates were born right here between the rivers and will stay just where they are until Providence deports them to a vastly inferior heaven. Even writing off the astonishing number of foreign-born residents, 2,293,400, discovered in the census of 1930, huge numbers of native-born remain. These humans find their greatest amusement, next to watching window hotcake-flippers, in calling the rest of the nation "hicks," "dopes" and "yokels." Whereas the actual truth is that the narrowest and most provincial bumpkin in the republic is the scornful Gothamite to whom Newark, N. J., is Way Out West. Of this odd phenomenon, more later.

The newest, though not, perhaps, the fairest, field of exploration for home-grown New Yorkers is the classy tome called "Who's Who in New York." The current edition lists 6846 names of the elect, of whom 2163 were actually born in the greater city, and have stayed here getting rich or famous, or both.

Fascinating dope is found in these statistics. All the states of the union have sent permanent delegations, as have practically all the lands beyond the sea. Pennsylvania dispatched the greatest number of who's who, 382, and the count ranges downward to Oklahoma and South Carolina, each represented by one. This proves either that the citizens of these honored commonwealths believe there's no place like home, or that their people have no devouring curiosity about the Topless Towers of the modern Ilium.

No fewer than 124 Canadians have slipped over the border from Canada to make the varsity, and Russia and England have each sent 103 men and women to be listed ultimately in the fame book, which is far harder to make than the Social Register.

Some of our ranking aces have come to us from the so-called "hinterland." "Little Flower" La Guardia himself, our explosive Mayor, is a native of an obscure army post in the Southwest, where his dad led the band. Lillian Wald, voted "New York's Outstanding Citizen" in 1936 for her settlement work, came to town from Cincinnati-am-Rhine.

EVERY wide place in the pike has contributed its immigrant. Henry Stanford Grooks, an executive of our telephone company, calls Chinese Camp, Cal., his home town, and Tom A. Burke, secretary of the noted Advertising Club, hails from the unbelievable, but true, What Cheer, Ia. Harold Ross, publisher of the sophisticated New Yorker magazine, is a native of Aspen, Colo. A writer whose word pictures of Broadway characters are known to millions is Damon Runyon of Pueblo, Colo. Two widely known New Yorkers, Assistant United States Attorney M. Z. Bungard and Johanna Colcord, author and social worker, were born at sea, and promptly decided to call New York home, since it was the nearest land to the scene of their happy advent.

So the outlanders contribute two-thirds of this list of the notable in New York! What accounts for this balance of power? Undoubtedly the fact that those who are dragged to New York by irresistible magnetic force, seek farther and fight harder for glory and money than those incalculably fortunate souls who are citizens by birth. The scope and magnificence of the metropolis seem to offer them the greatest and richest opportunity on earth for anything they choose to do. They dream, they come, they conquer!

But this group is obviously the meringue on the pie. Countless thousands of Americans are yanked New Yorkward, and have been since it became the center of national finance, business, the theater and general larceny. The irresistible and instinctive impulse of the American toward the biggest, richest, tallest, longest, fastest and funniest has accounted for the dash to New York. Few of the thousands of immigrants from other towns and the far-flung farms head in with any grandiose notions of extreme riches, or names that will ring down the centuries. To most of them it is just the most enormous bingo game in the world—a super-Irish Sweepstakes.

Naturally enough, an infinitesimal number win. The very bigness and richness of the place defeat the bulk of the transplanted citizens. Most of them, alas, are mediocrities and incompetents who are completely unfitted by nature and training to cope with the complexities of the greatest Civic Con Game in the world. And the drollest, and perhaps the most comforting, thing about such citizens is that they are vaguely happy. Be they ever so humble, they are New Yorkers!

But they are not yokels! The true yokel—the No. 1 Hick of the United States—is the native-born Gothamite whose world is bounded on the west by the Palisades and on the east by Coney Island! Almost literally, they know nothing about the great nation to which they nominally belong—and they are the ones who snort off the citizens of the United States as boobs and rubes!

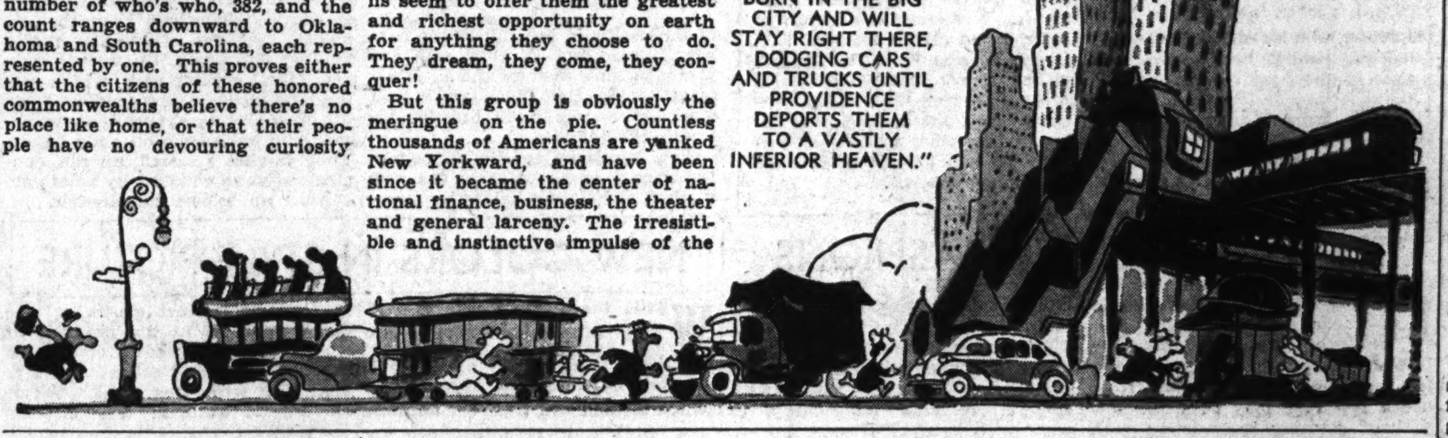
THESE simon-pure ignoramuses are to be pitied and scorned. Whereas the arrival from the interior aften knows a great deal about his native land—"its rocks and rills, its woods and templed hills"—the born New Yorker is aware of nothing but the sprawling metropolis, which actually is no more American than the Island of Bali. The firmly-lodged son of lower Manhattan Island has heard of Hollywood and its fabulous people, but the intervening 3000 miles might be an illimitable waste of rock and sand, peopled only by aborigines and giant pandas. Their ignorance of their country is incredible, and the resulting scorn for its people is utterly appalling!

Most tragic of all is the case of the two and a half million foreign-born and their progeny—who came here during the mad immigration scramble of 30 years ago, and just squatted and rooted where they landed. Their longest trek has been from the lower East Side to the distant Bronx. They cling fast to each other in self-centered racial, language and religious groups—often they speak freely only the tongue of their native country, and they know nothing of this mighty nation but what they see in an occasional bucolic movie.

Oh yes—there are plenty of native-born New Yorkers—probably millions. And they are the brashest and most boastful bumpkins the world has ever known. Anything west of Hoboken is merely worthy of contemptuous ignorance, and the sooner the United States of America sets up a consulate-general in Greater New York, the sooner amicable relations will be established, if that is desirable.

The lonely tractor-chauffeur in the rich fields of Iowa is no comparable rube. Of all the provincial people in the United States, the most abysmal are the sons and daughters of New York who have never even dared the rigors of the Staten Island ferry. Times Square to them is not just the "heart of the world"—it IS the world!



"MANY THOUSANDS OF OUR MUNICIPAL INMATES WERE BORN IN THE BIG CITY AND WILL STAY RIGHT THERE, DODGING CARS AND TRUCKS UNTIL PROVIDENCE DEPORTS THEM TO A VASTLY INFERIOR HEAVEN."

Black and White Jewelry Accent

FROSTY white and jet black costume jewelry in combination gives a black frock a cool, icy effect. With this season's black linens, it is striking in contrast, and in connection with linens and linen-like cottons or dull fabrics that are all black, don't hesitate to wear several pieces of this jewelry.

Try a necklace of black and white enemaled leaves, and then add a bracelet of the same leaves. A white belt, or a white flower, and a black and white ball hatpin thrust through your beret are other touch-up effect.

Black and white combinations in beads of varying size are also plentiful. Great clusters of them in a clip are very smart. Bead bracelets come in three or four strands, and of course, there are the black and white bead necklaces also made in the two-color strands.

Regarding hat pins, women are promised a revival of them again this fall. The idea began last November, and the pins were worn for ornamentation here and there through the winter millinery season and the early spring. By fall, you will see more of them in little hats, both singly and in crossed pairs.

Cotton Evening Dresses Popular

THE cotton evening dress is the one which St. Louis women prefer for midsummer wear and most of them choose it of pique. Some like it dark, some like it white and there are others who insist that it be very, very gay. Next to pique comes printed handkerchief linen, while flower-patterned white crepe, chiffon and point d'esprit are other cool-looking fabrics that are high in fashion's favor.

One of the smartest summer evening dresses for practical use is of widely corded black pique. At first glance the fabric looks like a faille, but it is light of weight and washable. Crisp white flowers adorn the bodice. These are, of course, removable so that they need not go into the wash tub. A bolero of white pique may be added if the low-cut back seems too formal for many summer needs or one of embroidered organdie will supply a dressier emphasis.

WHEN FLOWERED PIQUE is used for evening dresses, there is a tendency to stress the picturesque. One unusually attractive frock that illustrates the trend presents a trailing morning glory pattern on the white background. The bodice is cut as a fitted basque with a low, square neckline and wide, puffed sleeves coming half way between the shoulders and the elbows. The skirt is gathered very full at a rather low waistline and barely escapes the floor. Being so simple of design and devoid of trimming, this pique model may be easily laundered.

Another interesting idea in the way of a summer frock for evening wear combines black organdie with white pique. The bouffant skirt is piped at intervals of six inches from hip to hemline with cording of the white pique. An off-the-shoulder line is suggested by a corded bertha which swings low in the form of a cape. The waistline is tightly fitted and the black organdie belt ties with pique bows.

—o-o—

A DRESS made entirely of white waffle pique takes honors among the coolest models of the season. You can find it unadorned with trimming except for a gay old-fashioned flower cluster on the front of the bodice or you can get it trimmed with navy grosgrain ribbon. The ribbon outlines the hemline and gives it greater bouffancy as well as supplying straps at the shoulders. The bodice drops low at the shoulders and is finished with a fluted bertha.

White handkerchief linen that is patterned with field flowers in shades of bright blue, pink and yellow is a colorful example of the trend in washable evening frocks.

Frilly Petticoats Again in Vogue

LINGERIE makers have gone back to work since the romantic silhouette has become the vogue. Petticoats that are as frilly as those of grandmother's day are going into every smart woman's wardrobe.

One well-dressed woman who is noted for her original ideas in costume design has several petticoats made entirely of lace to wear under filmy chiffon frocks. These are fitted carefully at the waistline but billow into many yards at the hem. Each skirt is a different color and occasionally she wears one over the other to create a multicolored effect to her costume.

Slit skirts are heralded among the newcomers of the autumn season so petticoats will be needed to wear with these, and the gayer the underskirt, the more interesting is the costume. Embroidered silks, lace and pleated chiffons are among the handsome fabrics that will be peeping from the slashes in skirt hemlines.

Vacation Time; Romance and Rest for Girls

Young Women, Released From Desks, Storm Summer Resorts.

By Alice Hughes

NEW YORK, July 9.

THIS is the moment when countless thousands of our young women, released from their desks for the annual two weeks, storm the hills and beaches and forests, intent upon two things—rest, and, they wouldn't mind, romance. And who can blame them? Name one!

This is too late a date to say that for this brief, pungent summer interlude there are no rules. At least, axioms that work. The combination of boy, girl and climate produces unpredictable results, in spite of the tut-tuts of the moralists and the snickers of the cynics. Yet many men and women of long experience in the summer-resort business find it useful to promulgate a few thoughts on this matter at this time of year. For instance, Brother Frank Seiden, who heads a whole flock of resort hotels, delivers a few well-chosen chestnuts.

"Don't flirt," he suggests, to which I am tempted to say phooey. "Listen and don't try to out-talk the boy"—which is an instinctive rule with all smart women. "Don't talk about other boy friends"—gosh, does he think we are that stupid? "Be yourself"—which is sensible but difficult, under the circumstances. "Don't try to reform him"—who want to, anyway?

Thank you very much, Brother Seiden. Vacations are always the same, and will be until the earth spins sadly away into space. We shall go away on our two-week holidays according to the old system of trial-and-error. And if the latter wins, 10 times out of nine, it is only because that is the way the world works. And always has, yet we seem to get by, year after year!

—o-o—

IT SEEMED NICE to hear little Helen Hayes on the radio the other night, even in a "Jane Eyre" which didn't mean much to these aged ears. She'll be playing Portia near here any night, now, and will we be glad to see Helen again! . . . If you feel like attacking a ton of book these warm weeks, you might take a high dive into "House of All Nations," by Christina Stead. Reads to me like a mighty fine piece of work, but don't drop it on your toes if you want to waltz the summer out.

—o-o—

NEW YORK is as near a rebellion this summer as it is ever likely to be, and it is because most of the open-roofed Riverside Drive busses have been replaced by the closed type, and are the youngsters mad! That long chug up the drive with the lighted Hudson on one side and the real sky overhead was a 10-cent heaven to thousands here! Yep—the city's sweethearts are up in arms—around each other!

—o-o—

IT ISN'T ONLY the movie dream boy that is subjected to crushes. At this time of year the handsome big-league baseball players are also widely beloved by the merry maidens. One of the best-looking of the Yankees is the shortstop from San Francisco named Frankie Crosetti, and it is said about town that one of the prettiest of our blonde models is mighty mad for him. Probably both the heat and the humidity—not to mention the Crosetti!

—o-o—

I WAS MADE faintly icky by the story that Booful Jon Hall and Booful Frances Langford would undergo a second marriage ceremony while here in town. It all whiffed to me like the cheapest of press agent wheezes! . . . It is also said up and down the baking alleys that friends are trying to patch up the split between Luise Rainer and her author husband, Clifford Odets. Wonder how they'll make out? I have my doubts, for I fear those two temperaments just won't ever harness amiably.

—o-o—

NATURALLY ENOUGH, the state of Europe has much to do with the buying trips of our big store people this summer. For reasons I needn't state, the great majority of them are concentrating on Italy, the south of France and England this month. Most of my best girl friends in the business world are already overseas, but there's no sailing for me this year. Nose to the grindstone!

—o-o—

LITTLE SONJA HENIE looked as cute as could be as she passed through here on her way to the Norway vacation. Since it was raining and not snowing, the little Norse Knight of St. Olav wore a big black umbrella instead of her silver skates, but the feature of her costume was a big halo hat with a little gold appliqued figure of a skating girl on the front, or due north of her forehead. She's a darling, that Sonja, and as nice as she is pretty and clever.

Features of General Interest

LET ME SUGGEST

by Josephine Walter

BESIDES the heat, I always have two other indications that the summer is upon us. One is the annual argument with my spouse as to whether it is cooler with the windows closed or not, I being in favor of the closed cloister while he holds out for fresh air at any cost. The other is when I give up all other reading in favor of seed and garden ornament catalogues with an occasional glance at an ad telling me how I can buy a ducky little cottage in Connecticut with a swimming pool, stable and guest house accommodating 14 for the paltry sum of $72,000.

All of which is a very roundabout way of saying that if your house is completely in order for the warm days ahead, relax and enjoy it. Do nothing more strenuous than plan your garden for the coming year or dream about nonessentials that would add a touch of gaiety to summer living.

Personally, the non-essential that I am working on at the moment is some sort of a stool that can be pulled out from the wall when I'm taking a shower bath. For years I have been reading the dire statistics on bathroom fatalities as compared to those caused by airplane travel, until I am even afraid to reach down for the elusive soap. However, the soap problem has been solved by hanging it on a cord around my neck, but I still haven't figured out a way to get the bottom of my feet clean without risking my neck. I want some sort of a stool attached to the wall that may be lowered over the tub where I can sit down like a lady and wash my feet with dignity. And while we're on the subject of bathing, some day I'm going to have an extra soap dish set into the wall so that when I reach for my extra special attar of roses soap I won't find it completely covered by the germicidal concoction my lord favors.

● CHEERIO and a couple of huzzas to the Municipal Opera for bringing Williamsburg to St. Louis for the benefit of those who have always longed to see this historic spot. The sets for "Virginia," which was given this past week at the opera, were all replicas of places in Williamsburg, the most impressive being the gates before the Governor's palace. And as I sat watching the show, I thought how many possibilities there were of getting color schemes for entire rooms from many of the costumes that are used in these shows. I was particularly struck this time by the ballet costumes which were in tones of a yellowish chartreuse and a sort of periwinkle blue. A most unusual and lovely color combination which would, I believe, make a charming bedroom color scheme.

Having been to several luncheons lately, I have gleaned a number of effective ideas for informal summer entertaining. At one such affair, the main course was served from a huge wooden chopping bowl with each person having an individual, little wooden bowl placed before them, all of them purchased, my hostess assured me, at the dime store. A most charming method of obtaining an unusual effect at next to no cost.

● ANOTHER beautifully appointed lunch had the fruit theme carried throughout the table appointments. The dishes had the outer rim decorated in a fruit motif and the place mats on which they were placed also displayed the fruit design. The centerpiece was a straw cornucopia from which spilled a profusion of fruits and the first course was a fruit cup served in crystal pineapples. Nothing more delightful and refreshing could be imagined than the whole effect of this table.

Still another table, this time for a midnight supper, glorified the lowly hollyhock in a most delightful manner. The centerpiece was a simple flat plate of dark blue glass on which reposed three red hollyhocks on one side and two pink ones on the other in an asymmetric arrangement. A short stalk of hollyhocks in tones of the red and pink were tied to the front of each candlestick with dark blue ribbon to match the bowl.

—o-o—

RECENTLY I saw some pictures of garden furniture that was made entirely of barrels but, instead of giving the effect of a beer garden, it had a very sophisticated air that would suit it to the flossiest terrace. The table was very simply made of an up-ended barrel with a plyboard top set across it while the chairs were merely the barrels topped with fat leather cushions. Other barrels were placed on the side and had a cut-out portion filled with potted plants and blooming flowers. The thing that dressed the whole business up was the fact that the barrels were painted a gleaming white tone while the bands holding them together were in shiny black.

IF YOU WERE filled with ambition and have lots of time on your hands, try making a crocheted valance for your sheer summer curtains. They can be made in the same patterns as place mats or popcorn spreads and they will give a touch of character to the simplest summer window treatment.

NOTED BEAUTY NEWS AUTHORITY

HAIRDRESSERS dote on the oval face. It's their answer to a prayer at the end of a busy, torrid summer day. If the hair is at all pliable, they can usually create a becoming and personal coiffure even when almost done-in by the season's rush and tear. It appeals to their creative impulse. As a result, the woman whose face is oval or heart-shaped has a wide range of coiffure styles among which to choose. Nearly all of them are destined to be complimentary.

If you're either type, you can parade any number of unusual hairdos and you can wear them becomingly. So, some rainy Sunday afternoon when you have lots of time, take down not only your back hair, but all of it. Try out one hair style after another until you strike one you'll have your hairdresser perfect for you for a special party.

Go Madonna for a change—a center part but with the hair brushed up on either side. That upward lilt seems to lift the face, makes the wearer seem years younger. Or, shift your side-part from left to right or vice versa. To do this is good for the hair and it looks different (which is what you're striving for). Ever try a Psyche knot? An oval-faced New York debutante did recently—and started a new fashion.

She softly pulled her longish curly hair back from the forehead and up from the nape of the neck. Then she tied the drawn-back and drawn-up hair tightly just under the crown of the head and close to the scalp with a black velvet ribbon. It was a modernistic version of the Psyche knot—young, simple, charming. It was so becoming that many a curly headed youngster has followed suit. It's quite the fad now, this new Psyche knot—at country club summer dances.

If your face is oval but rather long, wear your above-the-forehead curls close to the head. It diminishes the length of the face. Such narrow faces look best when as much as possible of the facial area is shown—so, be sure to draw the hair back from your forehead and temples. This will call attention to the planes of your cheeks, increase your look of youth. Loose, but formed, curls clustered at the nape of the neck add breadth to the narrow faces. And—if your ears are pretty be sure to show them. It's a smart trick that does what you want—gives you more breadth between the temples.

Now to camouflage the opposite—the square or broad face: the new method of building height by massing the hair on top of the head was made for you. Wide faces profit by all hair devices to increase height above the brow. Group curls there or wear a peaked bouquet of posies. directly over the forehead line. Broader faces, too, may logically have a low wave cutting in below the cheekbone. It breaks their expanse of facial breadth.

To soften the line of a "strong character" chin, let small curls sweep forward from the ears across the cheeks; and have your hair dressed full at the nape of the neck. This double art seems to balance that well-developed chin.

Is your face too round? Very well. Part your hair, either at the center or on either side, but be sure that the part is especially long—it will give slimness. The Madonna coiffure, long center part, hair demurely drawn down at either side in a classical hair style for round-cheeked, round-eyed maidens. And on the other hand, high-piled curls add length to your face, seem to lend you that ideal oval outline.

But suppose that plus your chubby face you have also a short neck—don't worry, here's a prescription: If your hair is long, take it up off the back neckline and transform it into big soft curls high on the head. If your hair is short, swirl it off the nape, leaving a clean but slightly pointed back hairline. The moral behind this lifting up of the hair from about the back of the short neck is this: Any knot or curls or bunch of hair gathered at that point makes the neck seem thicker, shorter than ever. So, up with your back hair if your neck has even a suspicion of shortness plus plumpness.

If your neck is swanlike (overly long to your critics), wear a knot low on the neck; or mass softly waved curls there. Either gives a romantic fillip—and seems most perceptibily to rob the neck of unwanted inches.

Now for a few cautions: Never slavishly copy anyone else's hairdo. It shows a lack of imagination, of course, but worse than that, it means that you haven't really studied your own features, your own facial outline, your profile and the hair itself. Dress your hair for fun now this way, now that, whenever you have time on your hands. Then having reached certain conclusions as to what really suits you, consult an expert hairdresser.

TREND OF COMING FASHIONS

EVEN though the autumn season is weeks away, certain new trends of fashion are creeping into the midsummer mode and giving a hint of style changes. Here are a few that may be worn now without seeming inconsistent with hot weather clothes.

The little "cocked" hats of fabric or felt are distinctly striking and novel. The majority of these look as though they belong with travel clothes and not with fluffy summer frocks but occasionally a dressy type is noted. A bouquet of white flowers poses on the scooping forward brim of one little chapeau and gives it a summery aspect. The lacy straw of which the hat is made also adds to its cool qualities.

—o-o—

IT IS CONSIDERED very chic to wear matching gloves and hat of some odd shade with a sheer black dress, so a clever woman may introduce the idea for late summer wear. Pink is a favorite accent tone at present and is flattering for a hat that is either wide of brim or doll-size on the head. Gloves should exactly match the hat in shade and all of the rest of the costume be subdued by comparison.

Those little angora sweaters that are being worn with evening dresses have created such a stir that dressier types are being made of rayon jersey. They slip over the head and when selected in a bright shade provide an interesting contrast to a fragile white formal dress.

Embroidered themes are being talked about in fashion circles and at the present time it looks as though every other autumn costume will be enhanced by embroidery. Even now some embroidered jackets are arriving in the shops. There are yarn-embroidered models of linen for wear with vacation togs and some elegant crepe jackets with colorful metallic embroidery to wear with evening dresses.

THE LOUISE XIV trend in fashions promises to be a prominent one for autumn so luxurious fabrics, picturesque silhouettes and elaborately trimmed millinery are scheduled for popularity. Evening dresses for late summer wear are being influenced by this trend, many of them showing the full pannier type of skirt, the tight-fitting bodice with an off-the-shoulder neckline and the use of handsome materials.

Those bloused frocks that have been seen occasionally for summer but have not attained any great popularity are forerunners of a new mode so a woman may buy a dress with the bloused silhouette and be assured that it will stay in style for many months. This also is true of the dolman sleeve, another summer trend which many have looked upon with doubt because it seems a radical departure.

Folding Chairs.

Finding a place to sit on a crowded beach has no terrors for those foresighted vacationists who go equipped with their own folding chairs. There are plenty of different types to consider but one which is becoming the rage is made of striped canvas rimmed with metal and equipped with rope handles which become arm rests. The chair folds compactly and being light of weight, is easy to carry.

NEW COLORS IN STYLE PICTURE

WITH the fashion leaders of America gathered at the important style centers these summer days to pick the clothes which women will wear for autumn and winter, it is interesting to note that several new colors have been launched and that these undoubtedly will influence the buying habits of women during the coming months.

The three shades which are considered basic ones in that they are used for dresses, suits and coats are "Rural Autumn," "Lorenzo Brown" and "Cameo Gray." The first is described as a metallic rust shade that is rich in coloring and generally flattering. It is regarded as definitely a "young" shade that offers many possibilities for interesting color accents and much promise of distracting many women from conventional black.

The "Lorenzo Brown" shade is a coppery brown which has a decided reddish cast, the highlights presenting a richness that enhances the beauty of fabrics. "Cameo Gray" is a soft platinum tone that looks well against vivid accents or is enriched by accessories of a darker gray. These two are such opposites that there is much enthusiasm in fashion circles over the possibilities of ensembling footwear, gloves, hats and various accessories as a means of varying the style picture for fall.

Since co-ordination of the various parts of a costume has become an essential of perfect grooming, the allied interests in the creation of women's apparel have considered the possibilities of accent colors to ensemble with the three major choices for autumn. The two-color contrast theme is one which is being stressed with Dellia Robbia blue and Borgia red, two shades employed successfully with brown and gray.

Recent fashion shows in New York City have given prominence to the three basic shades and the hues to be combined with them, and in all of these exhibitions there has been emphasis upon matching accessories, the blending of accents to fur trimming or upon the two-color idea. Not more than two different shades are being used together. Where fabrics display a mixture of different tones with gray, brown or rust as the basic one there is a tendency to pick out a bright hue to emphasize in accessories. Thus plum and green are attractive in alliance with the rural autumn costume shade while bright blue is effective with brown and scarlet red looks striking in contrast to the soft gray. Where these bright colors are employed they appear usually as trimming on accessories rather than being selected for the entire bag, hat or shoe.

All of the shades that are being featured so extensively for autumn are regarded as renaissance colors and reflect the richness and beauty of an era which serves as an inspiration for many of the new themes of fashion. Calling for handsome materials and elaborate trimmings, the trend gives promise of beauty and intricate details of costuming.

Rector Tells Of Dish for Hot Weather

Boiled Beef Tongue, Along With Spinach, Makes a Satisfying Meal.

By George Rector.

IT'S a good idea during the hot weather to prepare foods that are not going to require too much time spent in the kitchen. I have in mind, particularly, a smoked beef tongue. Yesterday afternoon, I purchased a small tongue, which weighed exactly 3½ pounds. Of course, they come heavier and the size that you desire depends upon the number in your family.

Boiled beef tongue, along with the proverbial spinach, served hot, is a hearty and satisfying meal in itself. The whole tongue need not be consumed at this one meal alone. The idea is to make two meals out of it. Cold sliced tongue with a goodly bowl of salad is worth while sitting down to. Other cold cuts can be added, such as ham, corned beef and cheese.

On several occasions I have purchased in food stores sliced cold tongue and each time I have been disappointed. Invariably it's tough and it is usually cut too thin. A beef tongue should be very tender and the trick is in the cooking. Here's a food that must be boiled very, very slowly. Simmering is the better word for it.

Tongues, like hams, are lightly cured or smoked nowadays and do not require previous soaking in cold water. They can be started to cook at once in cold water to cover and when simmering point is reached, one can forget for several hours that a part of a swell dinner is well on the way. In other words it is a food that almost cooks itself, as it requires no attention whatsoever from the housewife. It is a good recipe to remember if you have occasion to absent yourself from home of an afternoon.

WHEN SMOKED BEEF TONGUE appeared on the menu of Rector's, it was always coupled with sauce piquante and white bean puree. This is the recipe I want to give you today.

Cover beef tongue with cold water. Add several sprigs of parsley, one medium sized onion, one bay leaf, a large piece of lemon rind, three whole cloves and about 10 peppercorns. Bring to boiling point and let boil five minutes. Then lower heat and let simmer (a point where there is the faintest ripple in the water) until cooked—about four hours. Remove tongue to cutting board; when cool enough to handle trim off thick skin and throat cords. Place tongue on large hot platter and pour sauce around tongue.

The foundation of sauce piquante calls for a cup of thick brown sauce. A restaurant kitchen, of course, has this sauce on hand at all times. You may have some on hand, too. If so, use it. If you have to make it, then the short cut is to use glaze de viande (beef extract) or a can of bouillon.

Two tablespoons butter.

Two tablespoons flour.

One tablespoon beef extract.

One cup boiling water.

One-half cup tongue water (strained).

Three tablespoons tarragon vinegar.

Two tablespoons vinegar pickel, finely chopped

One teaspoon shallot, finely chopped.

One teaspoon capers, finely chopped.

One teaspoon parsley, finely chopped.

Brown the butter; add browned flour and stir until blended. Add beef extract which has been dissolved in boiling hot water and stir until smooth and boiling point is reached. Now in another small saucepan put the tongue water and tarragon vinegar along with the finely chopped shallots or onions and let boil uncovered until reduced to one-half the quantity. Then stir it into the thick brown sauce along with the vinegar pickle, capers and parsley, all finely chopped. Sauce may be held for 15 or 20 minutes at warm part of range but do not allow to boil again. Serve half the sauce around tongue and balance in sauceboat.

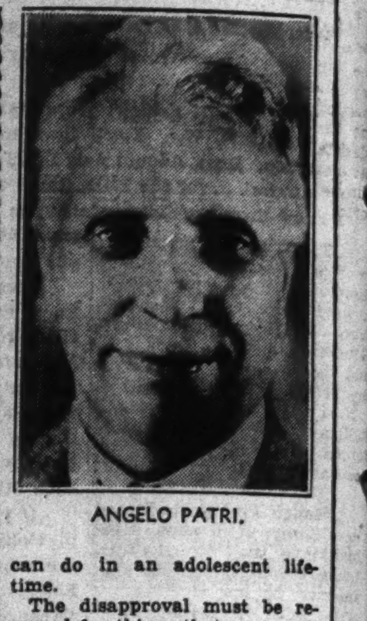
A PUREE of white beans and fresh spinach will make this dish complete. The bean puree is made from our dry white navy beans. The beans are covered with cold water and soaked for several hours. The water is then drained off and fresh cold water is poured over them. A medium-sized onion is added and they are slowly brought to simmering point. They are to be cooked at this low heat until the skins burst and the bean feels soft enough to mash easily.

When they are soft to the touch, drain off water and while they are hot force them through a fine sieve. To every cupful of bean puree add a tablespoon of butter with salt and pepper to taste and whip together over hot fire. This is a particularly nice puree to serve with boiled tongue or ham.

Expressing Parental Disapproval

By Angelo Patri



ANGELO PATRI.

THERE is always one powerful weapon that a parent can hold in reserve to fight off threatening habits and tendencies in their children. They can show their disapproval. If that makes you smile you can know that you have lost a great opportunity by not cultivating the power of your disapproval. That is easily done at the beginning, easily sustained by careful use and practice.

"Jackie is crazy about guns. He will find a toy pistol where none was known to be. I can take them from him as regularly as he produces them and he will keep on producing them. Deprived of a pistol for the time being he picks up a stick, a spoon, a toy automobile, points it at something or somebody and shouts, 'Bang! You're dead.' What can I do about it?"

It might be that Jackie, having few playmates, has found this to be an exciting game to play with his mother. Try out the possibilities of that idea. Let him have the toy pistol; let him shout "Bang! Bang!" until he is hoarse; encourage him to do it, in a place by himself, and let him know by your very absence and your grave silence, that you disapprove.

Voiced disapproval is not as effective as the silent one. "Guns are not funny. I don't like that game," and then silence, is going to be much more effective than the constant war against the things. Children like to be approved, and they must be noticed. Deprive them of approval and of notice, and the actions that were so exciting in the presence of your loud protest and dramatic opposition, lose all color and spirit, and die a natural death.

This is true of many of the childish demonstrations that annoy mothers and teachers. The girl who overdoes her hair and face and nails will be more affected by the lifted eyebrow, the cool disapproving glance, the silent turning away, than by all the scolding and preaching one can do in an adolescent lifetime.

The disapproval must be reserved for things that are worth it. If a parent or teacher is constantly disapproving, forever finding fault, the sound and sign of their discontent is like so much water on the duck's back. Children are experimenting with life and people, and it is very likely that they will make crude mistakes. Every child does. Few of their mistakes are worthwhile calling out the heavy artillery for. Most of them are exaggerations of a noble intent. The noisy, clumsy boy really wants to be useful and important in that usefulness. The overdressed girl wants to make herself as lovely as she can. Disapproval should be withheld as long as the limit can be stretched. Tolerance of youthful idiosyncrasies is far better than prohibition.

Learn to smile kindly, to look on with amusement, to laugh heartily at youth's gay gestures. Enjoy living with them. Reserve your grave disapproval, your stern silence for the occasions when it is needed. These are astonishingly few in the families where reserve, tolerance and a happy confidence exist between the children and their parents.

Velvet Jackets.

Velveteen jackets and sports coats are taking rank of importance in late summer fashions. One model which is only slightly fitted and ends abruptly at the hipline is featured in shades of green, yellow and brown. Advocated for wear now over pastel-colored summer frocks and for early autumn use with plaid skirts, this little coat promises to be a favorite among youthful styles.

Suede Hats, Footwear.

Matching suede hats and footwear offer a diversion for vacation wear and introduce striking colors into the wardrobe. A shade of bright blue is liked best because it harmonizes with most summer shades as well as looking smart when worn with white. Yellow, purple, wine red and a new green that has an olive cast are other tones being used with success for these striking sports accessories.

ON THE FLICKER FRONT

By H. H. Niemeyer

HOLLYWOOD, July 9.

IT seems that Isa Miranda's blowup with Paramount and her withdrawal from the cast of "Zaza," which was expected to launch her as another great foreign glamour girl, was caused by a green-eyed monster which made an appearance the very first day the picture got under way. Alla Nazimova, who has been out of films for a dozen years or more, had been retained by Paramount to act as technical adviser or something of the sort, in the making of the picture. She, a Russian who once played "Zaza" in her native language, and Miranda, an Italian who did the same role with great success in her own country, clashed about the time the cameras began grinding.

It had been reported, maybe incorrectly, that Nazimova was there to "coach" Miranda, which is said to have been more than the latest foreign importation could stand. "What," she wanted to know, "could a Russian actress teach an Italian star?" There wasn't any one handy with an answer and by the time an official statement was ready to the effect that Nazimova had not been hired as a coach but as a "production associate," whatever that is, Miranda was ready to quit—and quit she did.

NAZIMOVA . . . TRIED TO TEACH ISA MIRANDA.

Whether Paramount will find another vehicle for the lovely Italian actress has not yet been announced. Work on "Zaza" is going right along, however, with Claudette Colbert in the star role. And Nazimova is still the "production associate."

—o-o—

THE BIG Eastern colleges which conferred degrees upon Walt Disney got in their work just in time. In a few months more Disney would be able to buy a pretty big university of his own and confer all the degrees upon himself that he might wish for. He arrived back in Hollywood during the past week, fresh from Yale and Harvard, to learn from his auditors that "Snow White" was headed for $4,000,000 in this country before the year is out, with about the same sum in sight in Europe. Since there is hardly any time limit on the picture, "Snow White" will top the $10,000,000 record set by "Birth of a Nation" and do it in much quicker time, too.

At least a quarter of a million dollars of the "Snow White" profits were tossed to the winds when Disney looked over the work done so far on his next paint and brush feature "Pinocchio." What he saw had cost the quarter million but Walt didn't like it and tossed it out, ordering work to start all over again. Florenz Ziegfeld used to do things like that with his Follies. On a smaller scale of course for even the Follies were never in the money class of the films.

It was Gloria Swanson who actually topped the Disney gesture of brushing a lot of cash into the studio ash can. Gloria was at the height of her career with a million dollars in the bank when she decided to give the astute gentlemen in charge of the film business some real competition.

"Why," she asked, "should an actress like Gloria Swanson work for a paltry $15,000 a week and watch the rich men grow richer off her efforts?"

Why, indeed? So she drew her million out of the bank, all of it, and made a picture herself, a Gloria Swanson production with Gloria Swanson as the star and Gloria Swanson as the sole stockholder. The picture, called "Queen Kelly" was finished just at the same time the million was. It never reached the screens. Perhaps Miss Swanson knows where the only print made of the opus is gathering cobwebs now or, maybe, she doesn't care. She's never been the same, financially, since.

SOME FUNNY THINGS happen in Hollywood without the help of the publicity departments. Here is one which is strictly on the level and written into the official police records. The other night as Joe E. Brown left the Brown Derby on busy Vine street just a part of a block from Hollywood boulevard, a holdup man pressed a gun against his stomach and demanded his cash. Joe offered to settle for $5 and the highwayman accepted. Brown took out his roll, peeled off a five-spot off the top and handed it over. He was satisfied to let it go at that and so was the robber but a passerby, who had seen the holdup, brought a policeman on the run. He captured the holdup man, who still had his gun in one hand and the $5 take in the other. Joe E. thought it had been a pretty funny experience—he had more than $80 in the roll which he exposed to the robber in handing over the five—and didn't want to prosecute, but even Hollywood can't allow highwaymen to operate that close to the boulevard and the wide-mouthed comedian had to go to the jail house, along with the captive and a rapidly growing crowd, and sign a complaint.

IN OUR SET—The Charlie Chaplin-Paulette Goddard romance is really colder than a casting director's heart but the report that Barbara Stanwyck and Bob Taylor are seeing less of each other is all wrong . . . Zoe Akins, former St. Louis playwright, has made so much money out of pictures that 70 acres of her estate in Pasadena are planted in rare flowers . . . Clark Gable is going to Idaho for a fishing vacation just as soon as he finishes "Too Hot to Handle." When he returns he will go right into "Idiot's Delight' for M-G-M so it would appear that Selznick will not get started on "Gone With the Wind" before fall . . . And Hollywood is wondering if, after all, Norma Shearer WILL be Scarlett O'Hara. The announcement that she was to play the role came, everyone now realizes, on the eve of the opening of her "Marie Antoinette" and might very well be a publicity stunt for that picture.

ISA MIRANDA . . . PROMPTLY TURNED A COLD SHOULDER.

WOMAN to WOMAN

By Mary Morris

In no other business, it seems to me, is there such a following-in-the-father's-footsteps as there is among funeral directors. The father sets up ideals of service that through the years grow into fine traditions. The sons living in such an atmosphere become steeped in these traditions, as it were, and are moved to carry on.

We find this desirable situation in the C. R. Lupton & Sons institution, now located at 7233 Delmar Boulevard. Here the sons are following in their father's footsteps, building an even finer reputation for this firm, and carrying on the ideals and traditions in their turn.

Wide-Brimmed Hats Popular In Mid-Season

Being Worn With Garden-Party Type of Frocks, or for Dancing.

LARGE hats of lacy net or transparent straw are being worn with the garden-party type of summer frock or for mid-summer dancing. Many of these are almost of the Merry Widow type with rather straight brims and very flat crowns.

Chanel is among the leading Paris designers to indorse the vogue of these large hats for midsummer wear. She features black and pink, stressing pink for evening because it gives the face a soft glow under electric or candle light. Many of these hats are trimmed with a bow and one end of satin ribbon under the left side of the brim and on top of the brim at the right. This arrangement leaves a long loop of ribbon under the chin to be caught to the dress with a handsome pin. The big cartwheel of dark colored straw which has the crown draped with a lace scarf is a variation of the theme. One end of the scarf sweeps the shoulders and is caught at the front where it is held by a pin.

IN DIRECT CONTRAST to these large picture hats that are so striking with summer evening frocks are the little bonnets designed for the girl who doesn't look well in cartwheel types. These bonnet arrangements are made of horsehair and lace, net and other sheer materials. Salvation Army bonnets, hoods, pokes and peasant shapes all are smart this summer. There also are snug caps of heavy mesh net matching the hair in color. Often these are topped with flowers or feathers. The little beaded cap is another favorite of the summer.

The most tailored of the net models often are perched rather high on the hair and since they match the shade of the hair they give a most striking coiffure effect, especially when the headdress is a high one. Usually they are worn as an accompaniment to tailored lace or net evening suits, the skirts of which are floor length and the bodices are covered with trim little jackets.

THOSE WHO WISH to inject a hint of autumn into their midsummer wardrobes are wearing hats which are made partly of velvet or have velvet ribbon trimmings. A little white faille model, for example, has its visor brim of velvet and a white pique hat with very high crown and a tiny brim is banded with black velvet ribbon. Velvet crowns are combined with transparent straw brims, with net and with felt.

The wide-brimmed hat of light weight felt is another midsummer style which is generally accepted as of style importance. The majority of these hats have high crowns that are peaked and brims which droop slightly all around. Some Watteau berets of felt and belting ribbon also are appearing in the shops. These are designed primarily for travel wear and offer a suggestion of the trends for early autumn.

APPROPRIATE GIFTS FOR THE VACATION TRAVELER

BON voyage gifts are appropriate in July when every other person is starting on a vacation. Certain requisites go to make up the perfect gift and while flowers and fruit have their merits, there are useful little gifts that prove both lasting and practical.

Every woman who travels appreciates a travel iron because it saves countless pressing bills, and, too, it enables her to smooth out wrinkles in a hurry. The irons which are easiest to pack are the flat ones and they fit into compact little cases. Sewing kits also are invaluable, especially when they include small amounts of colored thread. Many of these kits that are quite inexpensive in price are available at the notions counter while others which have a jewelry emphasis are displayed among more expensive gift items.

A LITTLE silver traveling teaspoon is a useful gift as is a thermometer. They are packaged together in attractive cases and may be tucked beside a first-aid kit that also is a practical present for the person who may be many miles from home and the family physician.

Silver identification tags on slender chains are fashionable as well as practical. There also are large gold tags to be worn or carried in a bag. These may be engraved with the bearer's address as well as name. Tags for luggage also are included among gift merchandise, many of them assuming a swanky appearance with their silver frames.

For those who are particular about their silverware, someone has designed a little case that contains a silver knife, fork, spoon and bottle opener. In addition to being valuable to carry on a vacation they are nice for those slaves of work who often eat their luncheon in their office.

A traveling clock is another welcome gift especially if it is a small one encased in leather and equipped to stand on a bedside table. The clock which has white hands and a black face, and thus enables a restless sleeper to see the time in the dark, is the best to consider.

● Toilet kits containing beauty aids have become favorite gifts and never fail to please if several bottles with "no leak tops" are included. A compact case of brushes or a dressing case makes a gift which will be serviceable for many years as well as a good companion in traveling.

—o-o—

SINCE MATCHES are at a premium in Europe many thoughtful persons are giving handsome boxes of these as bon voyage remembrances. There is a little silver match box which is typical of the trend and may have several refills included.

Little gifts of jewelry are appreciated because they take up little space in one's luggage and add to a costume. Charm bracelets are acceptable as the owner will want to add charms as she goes along, each one of these a remembrance of a city she has visited. Hat pins have become fashionable and prove useful as well as ornamental. Clips, jeweled barrettes and ornaments for evening slippers are likewise popular.

Unusual Evening Dress.

An evening dress that is made entirely of bandana handkerchiefs sewed together is one of the fashion surprises of the summer. A clever designer is responsible for this unique creation and has placed the 'kerchiefs in a most flattering arrangement. A halter neckline makes the most of the borders.

Beauty Kits Taking Place Of Handbags

One Is Tweed-Patterned Case Designed With Boat-Shaped Base.

THE summer's most attractive beauty kits are created with so much attention to details of style that they take the place of handbags. Noted among those in the shops is a tweed-patterned case which is designed with a boat-shaped base and regulation handbag handles. Besides holding a generous supply of complexion aids, it has compartments to hold a purse and a handkerchief.

—o-o—

LITTLE TURBANS made of colored mesh are ingeniously used by many women while engaged in summer sports. They are cool and so easily adjusted that hair stays in place. One unusual type is designed as a stocking cap with a tassel end that swings in the breeze.

—o-o—

A SHADE of very deep blue which has been named "ink blue" because of its depth is being recommended for midsummer dresses. Schiaparelli is credited with the introduction of this tone that is regarded as exceptionally appropriate for town clothes. One-piece tailored frocks and two-piece suits for travel are seen in this shade.

DRAMA MOTION PICTURES MUSIC

'Lost Waltz,' From Popular Motion Picture, at Opera

Production of the Week in Forest Park Is Stage Adaptation of "Two Hearts in Waltz Time," Foreign Film Shown at American.

"LOST WALTZ," a stage adaptation of the successful Viennese screen operetta, "Two Hearts in Waltz Time," has its American premiere tomorrow in Forest Park, initiating the sixth week of Municipal Opera. The stage version has been shown in Europe and the film played at the American Theater here in January, 1931.

Robert Stolz, whose "Beloved Rogue" and "Wild Violets" have had American premieres at the opera, is composer of the score, which includes not only the now famous title song, but such other numbers as "The Pain of Love's First Kiss," "Lovely Little Sister," "Children of the Drama," "Give Your Bride a Kiss," "I Love Vienna," "Two Times Young and Twice in Love," "Tonight With You," "We Smiled, We Sighed," "What Does My Heart Keep Saying" and "When One Is Young."

The English book, by William Drake and Dailey Paskman, is based not only on the motion picture, which had book and lyrics by Walter Reisch and Franz Schulz, but also on Stolz's operetta, "The Lost Waltz," for which the librettists were Paul Knepler and J. M. Welliminsky.

"Lost Waltz" has a modern settng in gay Vienna, rather when Vienna was gay. Scenic Designer Raymond Sovey has designed sets in present-day style, even going to the extent of using real glass brick in one of the apartment dwellings depicted.

As in the motion picture, the action tells of a Viennese composer who cannot get sufficient inspiration to draft a waltz theme for a new show he is writing. Since the librettists, Nicki and Vicki Mahler, who are brothers, have their work well under way, and since no Viennese operetta can be produced without at least one good waltz, the show waits on Toni, the composer.

At about the same time, Nicki and Vicki are informed that Hedi, their kid sister, is arriving on the morrow. It will be her eighteenth birthday. Each brother egotistically boasts that if the beautiful Hedi hadn't been his sister he would have taken her as his wife. As usual, a quarrel ensues. When Hedi does finally arrive she is showered with many gifts.

Toni and Anny Lohmeyer have been sweethearts for a few years. Anny as a rule has appeared in the role of prima donna in the works created by the three collaborators. Now it seems that the affair between Toni and Anny is coming to an end. There are many quarrels between Toni and Anny and obviously Vicki and Nicki also take part.

The impatient producer of their current work decries the fact that the waltz theme is lacking. Poor Toni strives to write it, but fails utterly. Even Anny, turning considerate, cannot help him. Nicki and Vicki agree that what Toni needs is an angelic-looking woman to inspire him.

They prevail upon Mitzi, a soubrette, to appear at Toni's party in a white gown. Hedi overhears the plans made by her brothers and phones all the guests stating that the dinner has been postponed 24 hours. Later Hedi, clad in a white gown, makes her appearance at Toni's house. Her entrance seems mysterious. Toni, astonished and immediately infatuated, asks her who she is. She merely replies that she is a fairy. As in a trance, he plays the waltz he has been wanting to write. Inspiration in the form of a beautiful woman has entered his life at last! Hedi sings as he plays. Suddenly she disappears.

Toni is asked to play the waltz for collaborators, but he failed to set it down on paper and can no longer remember the beautiful melody that the "angel" sang. Later at the rehearsal, the composer is once more a disillusioned man. His inspiration has disappeared and he cannot remember the masterpiece that came to him. When all seems hopeless, Hedi appears. She sings the waltz and Toni plays it and all ends well.

FOR its cast, Municipal Opera has assembled a group of its most dependable performers of the last several seasons. Nancy McCord and Gladys Baxter have leading feminine roles, Miss McCord as Hedi Mahler and Miss Baxter as Anny Lohmeyer, the prima donna.

The roles of the wisecracking and comical brothers, Nicki and Vicki Mahler, librettists, will be played by Jack Sheehan and Jack Good. Good, a favorite singing and dancing juvenile of the 1931 and 1934 Municipal Opera seasons, will be making his first appearance of the summer. Since his last appearance here he has been featured in Broadway musical shows, including "The Show Is On." Sheehan played in "Of Thee I Sing" and "White Horse Inn" at the Municipal Theater this summer.

Eric Mattson, tenor of "Roberta," will be seen in the "Lost Waltz" as the operetta composer, Toni. William Lynn, who was the vice-president in "Of Thee I Sing," returns for the part of the comical servant, Weigl, in "Lost Waltz."

The only newcomer of the week will be the stage character comedienne, Carrie Reynolds. She will be seen as the housekeepr, Brigitte. When "Tobacco Road" played at the American Theater here for the first time, Miss Reynolds had the role of Sister Bessie. Later she returned with Jane Cowl in the "First Lady" in the character comedy part of Belle Hardwick.

Joseph Macaulay will be seen as the theatrical producer, Blaustingl; Frederic Persson as Count Hardenberg; Lori Trivers as Mitzi Reitmeyer; Earle MacVeigh as Lothar; Al Downing as Otto and Jerry Sloane as Maitre. The Three Olympics, an international acrobatic group, will make their Municipal Opera debut. The trio appears in a skating act on a table 8 feet by 4 feet.

Municipal Opera will next revive the ever-popular comic opera, "Chimes of Normandy," with a singing cast comparable to that of "The Bartered Bride" last summer. The principal singers are George Rasely, Lucille Browning and Ruby Mercer, all members of the New York Metropolitan Opera; Frank Moulan, veteran comedian; Eugene Loewenthal, and Frederick Schweppe. Rasely and Lowenthal sang leading roles in "The Bartered Bride."

"Virginia," current operetta, completes its run tonight.

NANCY M'CORD HAS THE TASK OF INSPIRING THE "LOST WALTZ" IN MUNICIPAL OPERA'S PRODUCTION OF THE ROBERT STOLZ OPERETTA.

Booth Tarkington Returns To Writing for the Stage

Noted Indiana Author Reshapes His Drama on Life of Aaron Burr for Production by Summer Theater Players in New England.

By the Associated Press.

KENNEBUNKPORT, Me., July 9.

THIRTEEN years ago Booth Tarkington, becoming angered at dramatic critics, said he would never again write for the stage. In 1931 this noted novelist-playwright forgave them and wrote the drama about Aaron Burr, "Colonel Satan," which was presented on Broadway to a lukewarm though friendly welcome from the critics.

Today Tarkington, recovering from an eye ailment which almost left him blind, is busily working in his boathouse studio on the Maine shores, rewriting "Colonel Satan" into a revised play called "Aromatic Aaron," to be presented by the Garrick Players here Aug. 1 under the direction of Robert Currier, who will play the Burr role.

"I still think it is an excellent play," he said, "but I am changing it some from the manuscript that was played on Broadway because I had written it then with George Arliss especially in mind to play the part. When we were ready to begin production, however, Arliss was unavailable and there wasn't time to make changes to fit the actor who did play the part.

"Despite the fact that he was a traitor, Burr to me is one of the most intriguing figures in our history. After fleeing from the United States he lived for a long time in France, where he was frequently without money. But, even when he managed to get hold of a little money, he immediately went out and gave it away."

In 1929 and for several years after that, the Indiana writer, who will be 69 years old on July 29, underwent several serious operations on his eyes in Baltimore. Today the sight in one eye is gone, but is improved in the other.

"I can still see everything I want to see," he said, "and it gives me a good excuse any time there is anything I don't want to see."

Where he once did his prodigious writings with pencil in longhand, he now dictates to a secretary. He still works with the enthusiastic energy that he showed in his earlier years, when he would frequently write for an average of 18 hours a day while turning out such books as "Penrod," and "The Magnificent Ambersons," which won a Pulitzer prize in 1919, and "Alice Adams," which received the same award in 1922.

Just as he wrote "Colonel Satan," especially for George Arliss, so he has written most of his plays with a particular actor or actress in mind for the leading role. He wrote "The Intimate Strangers" especially for Maude Adams, but it was Billie Burke who finally played it on Broadway.

One of his greatest hits, "The Man From Home," he wrote especially for William Hodge, who played this role of an amiable, small-town Hoosier who rushed to Sorrento to save his pretty ward, the Simpson girl, from paying a million dollars for a husband merely because he had a title.

The Hoosier's most triumphant moment came when he had thwarted the fortune-hunting nobleman and he could sit on the balcony of his Sorrento villa, look across the bay toward Vesuvius and listen to the Simpson girl singing "Sweet Genevieve."

Along with his "Gentleman From Indiana" of 1899 and "Monsieur Beaucaire" of 1900, "The Man From Home" became one of his most successful works after it had had an epic stage premiere at McCauley's Theater in Louisville, Ky., in 1907.

TOO, his plays in several instances have been the starting pegs for some of the theater's best known stars. Alfred Lunt made his first big hit in "Clarence" and Helen Hayes won much of her early fame for her performances in both his "Clarence" and "Penrod." Glenn Hunter first won renown in the leading role of Tarkington's "Seventeen" in 1918.

Tarkington, a philosophic and gently humorous man, still divides his time mostly between his Indianapolis home and the one he has had for years here in Kennebunkport.

Also, he still has an avid interest in travel. Foreign ports fascinate him and cluttered about him in the rambling boathouse he uses for a studio here are trophies from many strange lands which he has collected from various New England sea captains.

Banked against the walls are half a dozen strange canoes brought from tropical islands. Books, fine paintings and antiques are there in a setting of anchors, fish nets, boat oars, sails and other sailing equipment.

Docked against the boathouse is an ancient three-masted coastal trading schooner that is so old it never can put to sea again. It is painted a bright green with golden scroll work at the edge of the deck and now is chiefly used as a lounging place by Tarkington, his seagoing cronies and fellow writers.

There, between sessions of dictating his books and plays, he likes to sit with them and talk of foreign travels, of Indiana politics and of triumphant nights in the theater.

Actresses, New and Reclaimed

By Colvin McPherson

WHEN the records of 1938 are written, the return to the screen of a young actress named Margaret Sullavan will be set down as a major event in the film world. Miss Sullavan right now is a candidate for next year's Academy prize and a strong one, no matter how many papers Katharine Hepburn has filed on her performance in "Holiday."

Following up the brilliant work she did in "Three Comrades," Miss Sullavan makes "The Shopworn Angel," at Loew's, something more than just a touching romance of World War days, a great deal more than it was in 1929, when Nancy Carroll played the same role.

Dana Burnet's story of the Texas greenhorn who fell in love with a Broadway musical comedy star and presumed to think she was in love with him has, under the direction of H. C. Potter, a substance far beyond its surface indications. James Stewart, as the cowboy, surpasses his previous work, Walter Pidgeon as Miss Sullavan's business manager and her real love interest, has scenes of strong impression that plainly show the work of the director. A little girl named Eleanor Lynn stands out in a bit part. But Miss Sullavan has a range of understanding that is all her own.

With a good deal of experience as a Broadway actress herself, she knows the character of Daisy Heath, "The Shopworn Angel," from close view. To each scene she gives the proper temperament, boredom, curiosity, cynicism, warmth, gentleness or pity. Pity is a large item in "The Shopworn Angel," since the Broadway star gives herself up in marriage to the Texas soldier in order to save his one illusion for him while he fights in France.

Called upon to sing war songs, Miss Sullavan does them stirringly enough to make us start exporting trouble all over again. "Pack Up Your Troubles" has the punch that it had in war days. The whole production, moreover, is kept faithful to that time, which gives it additional charm.

Story construction may raise some objections. The soldier and the actress meet when her car knocks him down—probably the origin of the term "knockdown," to mean an introduction—and the complications have been used at least since 1906, so far as I remember. Performance, direction and the montage treatment of war scenes by Slavko Vorkapich are all accomplishments worthy of a great picture, however, and "The Shopworn Angel" does not miss that mark far.

"Who Killed Gail Preston?" the title of Loew's second picture asks, and then points out that Gail deserved killing many times over and that at least half a dozen people were glad when somebody shot the night club singer. Several other people lose their lives, too, which is a shame, but that is the way mysteries go since S. S. Van Dine laid down his principles of detective-story writing.

Keen enjoyment may be had by seeing the trailer on one of next week's features, "Fast Company," which makes much fun of screen mysteries.

The Rage of Paris.

A TRULY new personality for the American screen appears at the Ambassador Theater. One Danielle Darrieux, whom the gasping public has been led to expect for months, is to be seen and heard in "The Rage of Paris" a hand-tailored Hollywood creation.

Danielle Darrieux, who may be safely called "Dan-yell Dar-yuh," although that isn't quite the French of it, has been seen in St. Louis twice before in French pictures. In "Mayerling," she was the innocent, soulful Baroness Vetsera. In "Club de Femmes," she was a lively, mischievous chorus girl. Her ability ranges between the extremes and "The Rage of Paris" is careful to point that out.

She is cast as a professional model who tries to get a job by a ruse, goes to the wrong office and makes an unfortunate first impression on Douglas Fairbanks Jr. Later, with the help of Helen Broderick and Mischa Auer, she goes into deception on a bigger scale. With Auer's money, she and Miss Broderick put up at an expensive hotel and decide to get Danielle a rich husband.

The first candidate, Louis Hayward, is easy enough but Fairbanks is a friend of his and for the remainder of the time, Fairbanks uses one method and another to break up a match, eventually marrying the girl himself. P. S. He has even more money than Hayward, which is just ducky.

Attempting nothing sensational, Miss Darrieux's Hollywood employers have exercised much shrewdness in presenting her, nevertheless. The mood is, gay, the pace fast, the dialogue well above average.

Knowing quite well that Miss Darrieux can speak English almost as well as you and I and the next fellow, the studio has taken pains to make French accent a part of the fun. Danielle appears to get slang expressions mixed up and that makes her cute, in the American way of speaking. Clever people, when they want to be, these Californians.

"The Rage of Paris" will be liked by everybody and Danielle will go farther in American pictures than any foreigner since Garbo, if as carefully guarded in the future. She hasn't glamour. She's a kind of pretty tomboy with every kind of emotion ready for the exercising. Innocence, fury, deviltry, frankness, gayety and tears—such lovely tears—all are hers.

The sulky Mr. Herbert Marshall and the hard-boiled Miss Barbara Stanwyck meet at the jumping-off place in "Always Good-bye" and turn back on the path that leads to respectability and the higher income brackets. Barbara gives her fatherless child away for adoption and finds a career in a dress shop. Herbert goes around the world and comes back to business at a microscope. But Barbara wants her baby and there's much to do before she can carry the laddie up to bed in her own home. It's pretty mawkish. The child selected for the part, moreover, is just too, too precious to be normal.

An outline of the question of socialized medicine is contained in the current "March of Time" on the Ambassador program.

Maid's Night Out.

OF THE two pictures at the St. Louis Theater, the comedy, "Maid's Night Out," is the better bet. Allan Lane and Joan Fontaine, as two members of the idle rich pretending to be honest wage-earners, have a merry time. Dialogue offers a dozen hearty laughs and the chase finish is a fine example of the movies' traditional sport.

"Wives Under Suspicion" is based on a big coincidence. Warren William, a heartless District Attorney, is prosecuting a man for the kind of murder that he himself wants to commit. He is reformed, starts staying home nights and all is well.

Samuel Mayes in Little Symphony's Closing Concert

SAMUEL MAYES, former St. Louisan who is now violoncellist with the Philadelphia Orchestra, will be soloist at the final Little Symphony concert of the season, in the Washington University Quadrangle, at 8:30 o'clock Friday evening. Max Steindel will conduct.

Mayes will play the Schubert Concerto in A Minor for Violoncello and orchestra, as arranged by Gaspar Cassado, noted Spanish 'cellist. Cassado himself presented the work here last winter, with the St. Louis Symphony. The concerto is characterized by brilliant technical passages and the composer's usual talent for melody.

A Beethoven symphony for small orchestra—the Jenaer Symphony in C Major—will have its first St. Louis performance. This work, written for a small orchestra, was played for the first time anywhere in 1739 in Jena, Germany, from which town it received its name. The score was lost after the initial concert but the various orchestral parts were found years later. It was one of Beethoven's earliest works and in style and form similar to the symphonies of Haydn and Mozart. The symphony is lively and melodious and the last movement is particularly gay.

The concert will open with Mozart's "Eine Kleine Nachtmusik," which is being given by popular request. The complete program:

Studios Devise New Orchestra Recording Idea

MUSIC has gone into the great open spaces, in Hollywood. No longer are great orchestras recorded in sound-proof recording rooms similar to radio broadcast stations. Now great sound stages are taking their place.

The result, technicians say, will be not only the erection of huge hangar-like structures for orchestral recordings, but eventually radio broadcasts will adopt the same idea.

"The recording rooms we have always used are sound-proofed rooms with no echoes or reverberations," explains Recording Director Douglas Shearer of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, where the new principle was discovered. "These are perfect for dramatic scoring, or where the audience is supposed to hear intimately.

"But in a great auditorium there is a reverberation that lends color to a big orchestra. To obtain this a room of similar dimensions must be used."

The new idea had its inception in the recordings for "The Great Waltz," in which Johann Strauss' music was played with a 90-piece orchestra, with a chorus of 100 mixed voices, and with Miliza Korjus, Viennese opera star, as soloist. The music was supposed to originate in the Imperial Opera of Vienna, in the Dommayer Casino, and similar great structures.

The studio's largest sound stage was used, six microphones installed to register different sections of instrumentations, such as the strings, brasses, basses, and woodwinds, and nine separate sound tracks were blended and balanced to assemble the recorded orchestration as theaters will hear it.

The result was so striking that the same technique is being used throughout in "Sweethearts," Victor Herbert musical romance with Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy. Herbert Stothart, composer-conductor, has adopted the "open space" system for all future recordings.

Abraham Lincoln Becomes Popular With Playwrights

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, July 9.

FOLLOWING the success of "Prologue to Glory" of past season, Broadway promises to be overflowing in the fall with new plays about Abraham Lincoln. The story of Lincoln when he was a young rail-splitter in Illinois, "Prologue to Glory" proved to be a hit.

The first production in the fall by the new playwright-producers group will be Robert E. Sherwood's new drama, "Lincoln," which concentrates on Lincoln as a mature man and his married life with Mary Todd.

Elmer Rice will direct the production of this new drama by the author of "Reunion in Vienna" and "The Petrified Forest" with Raymond Massey, a Canadian actor, in the role of Lincoln.

Brock Pemberton will also present a new play about Lincoln, probably arriving on Broadway about mid-September. This is "Follow Me Ever," first called "Death, Mr. President," in which its author, Paul Horgan, dramatizes the story of Lincoln in Washington during the Civil War days.

An operetta in which both Lincoln and Gen. Robert E. Lee figure is scheduled for Broadway in the fall, after having had its world premiere last month in the Municipal Theater at St. Louis. This is "Gentlemen Unafraid" with book and music by Jerome Kern, Oscar Hammerstein II and Otto Harbach. The plot has a West Point setting in the 1860's and deals with the struggle to hold the Union together. Kern has written a score that not only includes somber music to fit the mood of those trying days, but also gay dance numbers suggestive of southern songs.

These Lincoln plays will arrive on Broadway to a cheering precedent for historical plays have contributed some of the most exciting first nights the theater has seen. Of modern playwrights, Maxwell Anderson perhaps stands out as the No. 1 writer of historical dramas. His "Elizabeth the Queen," "Mary of Scotland" and "Valley Forge" were distinguished creations.

Jaffe as "Gunga Din"

Sam Jaffe, remembered as the Grand Lama of "Lost Horizon," will play the title role in the picturization of "Gunga Din," based on the Kipling ballad. "Gunga Din" will be Jaffe's third screen appearance. His debut was in "The Scarlet Empress." With his selection, and the naming of Joan Fontaine for feminine lead, "Gunga Din" is ready for the cameras.

Civic Theater to Do "Russet Mantle" Next

The next Civic Theater play, for July 20-23, will be Lynn Riggs' comedy, "Russet Mantle," originally scheduled to end the season in August. "Russet Mantle" replaces "Volpone," which was rejected for rehearsal period and therefore has been returned to its original place as third play of the season. "Quito and Back" will be the closing production.

"Russet Mantle," which ran on Broadway from January to April, 1936, has not been played in St. Louis. Set on a ranch near Santa Fe, N. M., it concerns the life of an Eastern family living there and the love affairs of a reckless daughter, Kay. Kay will be played by Sydney Busch; her mother, Effie, by Adelaide Tarrant Strong; her aunt and uncle, owners of the ranch, by Gordon Sommers and Mathilde Leimkuehler. Julian Lucas, Robert Karnes and Katharine Maze are others in the cast. Gordon Carter is directing.

TINY broadcasting stations weighing less than two pounds each will soon replace airplanes at six Government weather stations for the recording of weather in the upper air. The automatic weather prognosticators, which are carried as high above the earth by means of small helium balloons, are expected to revolutionize the forecasting of weather on the basis of conditions in the upper air.

Each little transmitter contains several strands of human hair and a little glass tube filled with sulphuric acid. The hairs tighten or loosen as the air becomes drier or more moist, and the acid responds to temperature changes. When humidity or temperature changes occur in the balloon while it is in the upper air, the radio circuit is put into operation automatically. The pitch of sound signals is affected by electrical resistance in the circuit, and the instrument sends out two sets of signals which actuate automatic pens on weather observatory charts. After a while the balloon bursts and a parachute breaks the fall of the radiometerograph, as it is called. In nine out of 10 cases in populated regions the instruments are returned by the finders. Cities to have the devices are Nashville, Sault Sainte Marie, Mich., Omaha, Oklahoma City, Fargo and Oakland, Cal.

TRY FOR A Free ART COURSE

Copy this girl and send us your drawing — perhaps you'll win a COMPLETE FEDERAL COURSE FREE! This contest is for amateurs, so if you like to draw do not hesitate to enter.

Prizes for Five Best Drawings — FIVE COMPLETE ART COURSES FREE, including drawing outfits. (Value of each course, $215.00.)

FREE! Each contestant whose drawing shows sufficient merit will receive a grading and advice as to whether he or she has, in our estimation, artistic talent worth developing.

Today design, color and illustrating influence the sale of most merchandise. Trained commercial artists have, therefore, become important in industry. They are in demand, — well paid — machines can never displace them. Artistic talent is comparatively scarce. If you can draw, why waste this rare gift? Train yourself to do work for which nature has fitted you and which few people can do. Success nowadays comes easier to those who develop natural ability. We have trained many young men and women now capable of earning up to $5,000 yearly as artists. Use this opportunity to test your talent. Read the rules and send us your drawing.

RULES: This contest open only to amateurs, 16 years old or more. Professional commercial artists and Federal students are not eligible. 1. Make drawing of girl 5½ inches high, on paper 7 inches high. Draw only the girl, no lettering. 2. Use only pencil or pen. 3. We return no drawings. 4. Print your name, address, age, occupation on back of drawing. 5. All drawings must be received by July 30th, 1938. Prizes will be awarded for drawings best in proportion and neatness by Federal Schools Faculty.

SWIMMING CARNIVAL AT BOY SCOUT CAMP

A swimming carnival, with races, stunts and aquatic clowning, is scheduled today for the entertainment of parents and friends visiting 254 Boy Scouts attending the second two-week session at Camp Irondale. The camp, which opened June 19, will continue to Aug. 13.

Last Wednesday, a party of senior scouts, under the direction of Bill Hollister, left the reservation for a 10-day hike to Deer Run State Park. The scouts continued their journey today after camping overnight at Round Spring State Park.

This week's program for campers at Irondale includes a swimming class for beginners, nature study hikes, a barbecue, and a farewell camp fire Saturday night. Fourteen troops, camping as units, are directed in their activities by Campmaster S. C. Reaves and a staff of specialists in scouting and campcraft.

The third six-day section at Lion's Den, the other St. Louis Boy Scout summer camp, came to a close last night following a council fire. Eighty boys from four troops attended.

Advance reservations for the remaining five sessions indicate a record enrollment of 600 campers as compared with 245 last year. The camp, which is near Seckman, Mo., is under the direction of H. Max Nusser.

As a result of the first two weeks of camping, a total of 33 scouts, 26 from Irondale and seven from Lion's Den, were elected to the Order of the Arrow, scouting's honorary camping society, for proficiency in campcraft.

As in previous years, 20 local scout units will maintain separate troop camps, with 85 members of Troop 98, St. Roch's Church, camping for two weeks at Steeleville, Mo., beginning next Sunday. Troop 168, St. Pius Church, will also open its troop camp at Fenton, Mo., next week.

2500 TO TAKE PART IN ENTERTAINMENT

Many Special Features for Tuberculosis Day Ball Game Wednesday.

Seven feature attractions in which more than 2500 persons will participate are on the program for Wednesday's Tuberculosis day baseball game at Sportsman's Park between the Cardinals and the Boston Bees.

The program will start at 1:30 p. m. with a six-mile walking race sponsored by the National A. A. U. Twenty-three drum and bugle corps and 11 bands will play in the entertainment before the baseball game, concluding with a grand march by 1800 musicians.

Twenty Boy Scout troops and a Cub Pack will take part in the entertainment. As a feature of their entertainment, scouts will race in 12 home-made chariots. A team of tumblers from the South Side Y. M. C. A. will perform with 40 members of the Southwest Gymnastic Society.

Programs containing entry blanks for the health slogan contest, substituted this year for the usual drawing of prizes, will be distributed by 60 young women. An automobile and 10 other awards will be given to winners in the contest.

Tickets may be bought up to Wednesday noon at the Cardinal ticket office in the Arcade Building. The net proceeds will be used by the Tuberculosis Society for its work. Last year the society received $30,415.

MUNICIPAL MEAT CONTROL EXPLAINED BY SUPERVISOR

Regulations Virtually Like Federal Ones, Says Paper Read on Radio.

Municipal meat inspection and regulation of packing plants were described by Dr. O. W. Noyes, supervisor of meat control in the city health department in a paper, read yesterday on Station KWK. The city regulations are virtually the same as those exercised by the Federal Government over interstate shipments, he pointed out.

The St. Louis meat inspection staff has 11 veterinarians and 20 lay inspectors, the former examining animals before and after they are slaughtered, the latter supervising the processing operations and the sanitary conditions of the plants, Dr. Noyes said. Chemical analysis of the products is made at irregular intervals. The entire program, he said, assures St. Louisans of a sound, healthful and wholesome meat supply.

Olive Sewall Is Married to R. H. Charles

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
BATH, Me., July 9.

MISS ELIZABETH OLIVE SEWALL, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Sewall of Bath, was married at noon today to Robert Horne Charles, son of Mrs. Benjamin H. Charles, 8 Clermont lane, St. Louis.

It was an all-white wedding at Grace Episcopal Church, where the Rev. Charles Myron Tubbs performed the single ring ceremony. White lilies against a background of greenery decorated the chancel and altar, and the bride and her attendants wore white gowns.

Miss Jennie R. Melcher of Bath played the wedding music as Mrs. Sewall and Mrs. Charles were ushered to their seats before the start of the bridal procession. The bride's mother wore a daffodil yellow gown with a yellow turban trimmed with pansies, and a corsage of lavender orchids. Mrs. Charles was in French blue chiffon, with which she wore a large straw hat combining French and navy blue.

Miss Margaret F. Prentis of New York was maid of honor, and Mrs. Philip Dechert of Philadelphia matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Mary Sewall of Bath, Miss Eloise K. Green of Cedarhurst, L. I.; Miss Frances A. Vaughan of Southbridge, Mass.; Miss Elizabeth Ann Campbell of Pasadena, Cal.; Miss Cynthia E. Elmslie of Colorado Springs, Colo., and Miss Barbara Thompson of Honolulu. Their gowns, made of white mousseline trimmed with white velvet ribbon, were bouffant models made with full skirts, short puffed sleeves and square necklines. White velvet coronets, trimmed with forget-me-nots and pink roses, held short tulle veils in place.

Two flower girls, Alexandra Sewall, the bride's sister, and Pamelia Sewall Jayne of New Canaan, Conn., wore long white marquisette frocks trimmed with old-fashioned kerchiefs knotted with nosegays of roses and forget-me-nots, and wreaths of the flowers in their hair.

White satin fashioned the gown of the bride, who was escorted to the altar by her father. A train fell from the waist of the long flowing skirt, and the close-fitting bodice had long tight sleeves. She wore a veil of old lace over a second tulle veil edged with satin, arranged from orange blossoms of spun glass. Instead of a bouquet she carried a white prayer book marked by orchids and lilies of the valley.

William Hamill Charles, the bridegroom's twin brother, was best man. Ushers were Dr. Benjamin H. Charles, another brother; John R. Caulk Jr. and Brooke Payne, all of St. Louis; John Tilney, James A. Hetherington II and Lewis Hyde of New York; Henry Clay McCormack of Williamsport, Pa.; Thomas E. Clough of Salem, N. J.; Lucien Sichel of Stamford, Conn., and Howard Kellogg of Peoria, Ill.

After the ceremony a reception was held at York Hall, the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. William D. Sewall, which was decorated with summer flowers. The hostess, who headed the receiving line, wore a pale green gown with a cape and a large black straw hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles will sail on the Westernland tomorrow from Boston for a honeymoon in Europe. They will take their own automobile and spend much of their time touring, returning to St. Louis Oct. 1to reside. Mr. Charles will practice law with the firm of Thompson, Mitchell, Thompson & Young.

St. Louis guests at the wedding, in addition to members of the bridal party, included Mrs. Philip E. Baugh and her daughter, Virginia. They will motor in Canada with Mrs. Charles, Dr. Charles and the best man before returning.

The bride is a graduate of Ethel Walker School, Simsbury, Conn., and Vassar College, and spent her junior year at the Sorbonne in Paris. Later she studied music at the Julliard Foundation in New York. She is a member of the Junior League.

Mrs. Sewall, the former Helen Ellena Evans, was born in Kovno Russia, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Sigismund Embach. Her first marriage was to Count Markareviz. She fled from Russia in December of 1918, and a year later came to the United States. Mr. Sewall, member of one of the oldest families of Bath, was credited with bringing down seven enemy planes and observation balloons during the World War.

The bridegroom was graduated in 1935 from Yale University, where he became a member of Beta Theta Pi fraternity and Berzelius, senior honorary society. Last month he and his twin brother were graduated from Yale Law School.

Resorters at Pointe Aux Barques, Mich., Entertained at Parties at Club House

POINTE AUX BARQUES, Mich., July 9.

FOURTH OF JULY found the summer colony here well established and ready for celebrating. Many guests accompanied Detroit resorters and they, with others who filled the clubhouse, enjoyed swimming, fishing and golf in the day time and the opening dance the night of July 2.

The long week-end really started Friday with a succession of small parties to welcome husbands and guests. The first big party was a cocktail party given by Mr. and Mrs. Carter Sales of Grosse Pointe for their guest, Miss Virginia Paddock. St. Louisans who attended included Mr. and Mrs. John Brodhead, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Knapp and their guest, Mrs. Richard Riefling. Afterward the entire party attended a buffet supper at the clubhouse and stayed for dancing. A younger group, including Mrs. Joseph O. Toberman, Miss Barbara Brodhead and John Brodhead Jr., had a Dutch treat table. Robert Knapp Jr. and Miss Janet Brodhead were at a sub-debutante table. Mrs. George Horton of Webster Groves also was at the club with her son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Alton Horton.

Sunday noon Mr. and Mrs. Robert Knapp entertained for Mrs. L. S. Trowbridge of Grosse Pointe. Mrs. Trowbridge has visited in St. Louis and is planning to stop there on her way home from Hawaii, where she is to spend the summer. She opened her cottage at the Pointe for the week-end only and returned to Detroit July 4. Mrs. Trowbridge and her son Stephen entertained a group of St. Louisans at a porch supper, Sunday night, including among her guests Mr. and Mrs. Brodhead and their daughter, Miss Barbara, and Mr. and Mrs. Knapp and Mrs. Riefling. Before the supper Murray W. Sales of Gosse Pointe Farms gave a cocktail party, inviting most of the elder members of the resort.

At noon on the Fourth, Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Parker of Detroit gave a buffet luncheon for the young married set, after which the guests dispersed for an afternoon of golf, tennis or swimming, to meet later in the afternoon at a cocktail party given by Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Johnson of Bay City for their brother, Edward Johnson, managing director of the Metropolitan Opera Company. Mr. Johnson, after hs successful season, came out to visit in Michigan and Ontario for a rest before he sails for a summer in Stockholm.

At about 9:30 the night of the Fourth there was a display of fireworks on the long dock before the club house. Robert Knapp, assisted by Alton Horton, organized and exhibited the display.

Edward Johnson remained until Thursday. He was entertained Tuesday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Knapp, and Wednesday at noon by Mrs. C. W. Toles.

Mrs. Cornelius Tompkins of St. Louis arrived at Pointe Aux Barques Thursday. She was accompanied by Mrs. Julia Smith Crosby of the Monticello Hotel, who will be her guest for the summer. Mrs. Tompkins traveled from St. Louis to the Pointe by way of Detroit, where she met her niece, Mrs. George Worthington, and her daughter, Miss Mimi, who have come from their home in Washington, to visit Mrs. Tompkins until July 24. Benoist Tampkins, who usually accompanies his mother to the Pointe, remained in St. Louis and may not be here until fall.

Thursday, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Platt Smith of the Upper Ladue Road, Clayton, Mo., arrived to occupy the Sheppard Smith cottage for the season. With them were their two children, Philip Jr., and Carolyn Wright. Mr. Smith's parents, Dr. and Mrs. Elsworth Smith, who have spent their summers here for many years, expect to be here the latter part of July. Mrs. Philip Smith's mother, Mrs. John Wright of Cincinnati, is travelling in Europe, but will be the guest of her daughter late in the summer.

Harbor Beach, Mich.

DUE to the late opening of the club house at Harbor Beach, the resorters spent a fairly quiet Fourth except for those who were interested in watching the parade and display of fireworks in the town. Small groups gathered to celebrate in the various cottages, but no dance or formal festivity was held. One interesting event was a supper party Monday night, given by Dr. and Mrs. J. J. Prendergast of Detroit, on the yacht of some friends who had sailed up for the week-end and were anchored in the harbor near the beach. Among Dr. Prendergast's guests were Mrs. Robert Mudd of St. Louis and her sister, Miss Marian Peters. Mrs. Mudd and Miss Marian are visiting their mother, Mrs. F. R. Peters.

Mrs. A. B. Thrasher of Cincinnati inviteda group of older women to tea at the Beach Club, July 2. Among them were Mrs. Ernest R. Kroeger, Mrs. F. R. Peters and Mrs. William N. Claggett.

Mrs. Marshall McCarthy and her daughter, Miss Eleanor, who have been visiting friends in Hyannisport, Mass., are occupying their cottage at Harbor Beach. With them for the summer is Mrs. McCarthy's nephew, Peter Clark, son of Walter Clark of St. Louis, and a student at Deerfield Preparatory Academy.

Donald Danforth, who accompanied his family North and spent the holiday week-end with them, left for St. Louis Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Crawford Ward have rented a cottage here and will arrive shortly with their four children.

Mrs. Ernest Kroeger has secured the services of Miss Betty Fitzgerald of St. Louis as girls' councillor. Miss Fitzgerald is arranging a studio in the Tom Allen cottage, and will teach arts and crafts to the younger girls. She will also organize camp activities and supervise games during the summer season.

WASHINGTON SCENE

By the POE SISTERS

WASHINGTON, July 9.

ONE of the happy international romances in the history of this country closed in Budapest this week in the death there of former Hungarian Minister to the United States Count Laszlo Szechenyi whose wife was the former Gladys Vanderbilt, of New York.

Count and Countess Szechenyi have been absent from Washington for three or four years and the Count's latest diplomatic post was as Hungarian envoy to London.

Count Szechenyi had great faith in the future of this country and was pleased when his daughter, Cornelia, married Eugene Roberts Jr. of Washington.

The Szechenyi home on upper Massachusetts avenue was a center of diplomatic hospitality. The Count's five young daughters were the first here to wear long party frocks even when quite young, a fashion which was quickly followed by the sub debutantes of the capital.

After Shirley Temple visited the President at the White House her chief report of her chat with Mr. Roosevelt concerned the 100 donkeys more or less she had seen on his desk. Shirley was unaware of it, perhaps, but she had been in the presence of the No. 1 collector of the United States. Since his boyhood the President has collected special articles assiduously from lead pencils belonging to famous personages to marine prints and pictures and stamps.

In her book, "This Is My Story," Mrs. Roosevelt gives amusing testimony in this regard. "When I was first married I discovered that my husband was a collector. I had never before come in contact with a collector in every other aspect he was careful and economical. I never knew him in those early days to take a cab when he could take a street car. I have often seen him carry his bag down the street and board a car at the corner. He took great care of his clothes, never spent a great deal on himself.

"As a collector he was careful, too, and much of his collection was acquired at most reasonable prices, because of the fact that not many people were in his field when he began to collect, and his interest extended over so many years. I have often wondered why he never handed down this love of collecting to any of our children."

While not a collector herself, Mrs. Roosevelt has managed to assemble a valuable assortment of photographs of relatives, friends and celebrities she has met. They hang on the walls of her private apartment. It is probably one of the best collections of its kind in Washington.

President Roosevelt is not the only President to enjoy stamp collections. President Hoover had a valuable one which he began at the start of his journeys around the world. Mrs. Hoover and their sons had the habit also, and the Hoover boys made frequent forays through their father's mail when he was Food Administrator and Secretary of Commerce, to find stamps on envelopes he tossed into his trash baskets.

Several First Ladies have been collectors, notably Dolly Madison, who hoarded autographs of famous personages before it was a general practice. All who visited her were asked to sign her album, and many wrote verses or painted water-color sketches in it. Once Mistress Dolly acknowledged that she often wrote letters to persons she considered to be famous, in order to get their replies, which, of course, meant she got their autographs as well.

Senator Hattie Caraway is a collector of autographs, too. Her album is filled with names of her fellow statesmen. President Harding was a collector of rare pipes. His friends brought them to him from odd corners of the world.

Speaker of the House Champ Clark collected both pipes and gavels. At his luncheons in the Speaker's dining room he always presented clay pipes made in Missouri to his men guests.

The late Mrs. John R. McLean had one of the best collections of china animals in the country. Mrs. Evalyn Walsh McLean, her daughter-in-law, has added to it from time to time, and it is kept intact in what is known as "The Cat Room" at Friendly, their country home on the outskirts of Washington.

Miss Evalyn Washington McLean, sub-debutante daughter of Mrs. McLean, has a collector's fad of her own. She collects tiny figures and objects in gold and silver.

John Burroughs Group To Give Two Plays

Rye Beach Season Opens for Summer

Rye Beach, N. H., July 9.

THE summer season here and at nearby Little Boar's Head was ushered in as usual with Fourth of July festivities last week-end.

The first of the many parties was a dinner dance at the Beach Club at Rye Beach Saturday night, July 2. Considerable change has been made in the clubhouse since last summer. A new lounge and dance floor, a new dining room and a wide veranda along the water front add much to the comfort of the club, which already boasts a fine bathing beach and a salt-water pool lined with brightly painted bathhouses. The club's house committee, under the chairmanship of Edward V. Papin, a former St. Louisan, has promised a varied entertainment program for the summer season.

Monday morning, children at the resort celebrated the anniversary of Independence day on the lawn of the summer home of Miss Marion and Miss Edith Stott of Boston, who have given a similar party annually for 25 years. A fife and drum parade was followed by refreshments. A guest each of the last few years has been little Eleanor Roosevelt, granddaughter of the President.

Monday night the Beach Club gave a buffet supper and fireworks display. Among those who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Haarstick Whittemore of St. Louis, who are here with their children, Billy and Gail. Other St. Louisans at Rye Beach are Mr. and Mrs. E. Lansing Ray, who arrived July 2, and Mrs. Karl Morgan Block, her daughter, Miss Virginia, and her son, Karl Morgan Jr. Mr. and Mrs. Elzey G. Burkham are expected soon, as are Miss Elise Pettus and her brother, Morrison Pettus.

Every Wednesday, beginning July 6 and continuing through Aug. 24, the Abenaqui Golf and Tennis Club sponsors four tennis parties devoted almost entirely to instruction and improving the games of those who attend. There also will be two tennis tournaments there this summer, the New Hampshire Shore Championship from Aug. 3 to 7, and a series of club championships which began Tuesday and will continue to Sept. 1. Several golf tournaments will be held at Abenaqui, the dates to be announced later.

The Little Boar's Head Garden Club held its first meeting late in June under the leadership of Mrs. Karl Morgan Block, the new president. A flower show for members was held at the home of Mrs. Cord Meyer of New York. Tea was served and plans made for the summer season.

Notices have been issued for the forthcoming annual New Hampshire Seacoast Music Festival in Little Boar's Head, July 30 and 31. The festival this year will be held on the spacious lawn of Mrs. Arthur Lambert Hobson's home, and will feature the New Hampshire State Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Earl Clay, the United New Hampshire Chorus and such musicians as Royal Dadmun, American baritone. Ted Shawn and his ensemble of men dancers also will appear.

The Farragut Players of Rye Beach opened their summer theatrical season Tuesday with the continental "French Without Tears." Associated with the company for the second year is Miss Mimi Francis of California, daughter of Sidney Francis of New York and related to the Francis families of St. Louis.

Macatawa, Mich., July 9.

ABOUT 300 persons gathered on the lawn of the hotel here Monday night to witness a parade and patriotic pageant given by the children at the resort. A young girl, as Betty Ross carrying the first flag, headed the long procession which was concluded by a young woman, in white robes and silver stars, representing Peace. After the singing of the national anthem, the party went to a spot south of the beach where there was a display of fireworks. Several St. Louis children participated in the pageant.

Among the guests of St. Louisans at Macatawa last week-end were Arthur and Miss Ida Schmid and Mr. and Mrs. David Ward of St. Louis, who visited Mrs. Ward's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin A. Schmid, at their cottage, Up Again. Accompanied by Mr. Schmid, they returned to St. Louis Tuesday.

FOUR HISTORIC SITES IN CITY GET MARKERS

Brandt Mansion, Dimmick Rifle Shop and Slave Mart Among Them.

Temporary markers for four more historic sites in St. Louis have been erected by the Historic Sites Committee of the Young Men's Division of the Chamber of Commerce, it was announced yesterday by Dr. E. A. Hotfelder, committee chairman.

They mark the sites of the old Territorial Bank of St. Louis, 214 South Main street; the Brant mansion, headquarters of Gen. John C. Fremont in 1861, southwest corner of Eighth street and Chouteau avenue; the H. E. Dimick & Co. rifle factory, 115 North Main street, and the Lynch Slave Market, Broadway and Clark avenue.

It was the failure in 1816 of the Territorial Bank, established three year before by the Territorial Legislature, that caused Moses Austin, one of its founders, to go to Texas and plan its colonization. His plan was carried out by his son, Stephen Fuller Austin, "the father of Texas," for whom the State capital is named. Moses Austin was buried at Potosi, Mo., which he founded. Town officials recently refused to permit the removal of his body for burial in the Texas State Cemetery.

Elaborate headquarters were established at the Brant mansion for Gen. Fremont when he came to St. Louis on July 26, 1861, shortly after he was named commander of the Western division of the United States army. He remained in St. Louis until November of that year.

So well known were the Dimick firearms that frontier literature frequently makes use of "Dimick" as a synonym for rifle. Dimick rifles were prized in the days of prairie schooners. The shop was operated from 1849 to 1873.

The Lynch Slave Market, at the place now occupied by the Meyer Bros. Drug Co., was the scene of Great activity until it was taken over by military authorities in 1861 for a temporary military prison.

The pair carried a five-day food supply and they plan to sleep in the boat. Stops are scheduled at Cape Girardeau, Blytheville, Ark., and Memphis, Tenn., to replenish supplies.

$193,500 U. S. GRANT IS MADE TO ST. LOUIS

The first grant to the city under the new Federal public works fund —$193,500 for structures at Koch Hospital and St. Louis Training School for the Feeble Minded—was announced yesterday. Notice of the allotment was received from the P W A by President Baxter L. Brown of the Board of Public Service.

It was planned to start construction in about three months and to have the buildings completed about a year from now.

For Koch Hospital, the municipal institution for the tubercular, south of Jefferson Barracks, there will be two wings of three stories each added to an employes' dormitory at a cost of $250,000. The hospital has 138 employes.

At the training school, on Bellefontaine road in Northern St. Louis County, an additonal two-story bulding for patients, with 41-bed capacity, will be erected.

The difference between the grant and the total cost will be paid from 1934 hospital bond funds. The announced grant was almost exactly 50 per cent of the stated estimate of cost, although the public works act fixed 45 per cent as the limit for grants.

MINNESOTA LAKES HAVE OWN NAMES

Duplication Eliminated—State Conservation Department Stocks Fish and Game.

There must be something in a name after all, for a process to rename some 730 lakes of the 11,007 in the State of Minnesota because of duplication has been underway. There have been 69 Long lakes, 91 Mud lakes, 76 Rice lakes, 43 Bass lakes, 40 Twin lakes and a host of other similar duplications.

A State Geographical Board has been created to remedy matters and vacationers who return to favorite lakes may find that they have been changed, however, in name only.

Excellent hunting and fishing is promised as a result of the extensive conservation and propagation program which has been under way in the State.

More than 150 game wardens have been given a course in fish propagation and millions of small pike, bass and pan fish have been planted in lakes throughout the State. A lake survey has been made to determine the kind of fish each lake would support.

Pheasant Hatchery.

An extensive trapping campaign to rid southern and western counties of the gray fox has been inaugurated and the pheasant population is to be increased by nearly 25,000. Another conservation work is the damming of outlets on nearly 400 lakes to maintain water levels through dry weather. By doing this, fish spawning grounds are kept intact and fish life remains undisturbed.

Reforestation is going forward in Minnesota with the Conservation Department raising young trees for sale to farmers at cost in order that farm woodlots may be restored to the State and the ground water level maintained through seasonal dry weather. Millions of trees have also been planted in cut-over areas in a re-forestation project.

An effort is being made to bring back the muskellunge, a fresh water game fish, to the lakes of Minnesota through artificial means. A fish hatchery has recently been completed at Nevis near Itaska State Park where muskellunge are raised artificially and until they reach the point where they can fend for themselves.

OZARKS OFFER CHOICE OF WELL-STOCKED STREAMS AND HISTORICAL DATA

Old-timers have it that there was a legend among the Indian tribes concerning displeasure of the Great Spirit with those braves who tarried too long in the Ozark region because they would learn too soon the secrets of the happy hunting grounds. These same old-timers report now that the clear water streams in this section have never been in better condition for fishing.

During the past months the Conservation Commission of Missouri has been planting fry and fingerling bass and trout in the lakes hereabout. These plantings are to offset the record catches which many fishermen have been reporting this season.

The fighting qualities of the black bass and the mountain trout have been a source of argument wherever men have slung costly fishing tackle over their shoulders or have simply dropped a baited hook in the water and waited for a "bite." In the Ozarks they'll tell you that a black bass weighing a pound and a half will put up more fight than a mountain trout twice the size, offering to prove their contention "here and now."

The vacationer who is not particularly interested in a strenuous holiday will find, upon research, that Missouri has historical spots which, while not numerous, are important to this section. The Confederate state capitol during the Civil War was located at Cassville in Barry County. In the fall of 1861 the Legislature met at Neosho but anxiety over the chance that they might be found by the Federal army before articles of secession could be signed resulted in adjournment to an old court house at Cassville, where the articles were signed.

Archeologists have found artifacts consisting of arrow flints, perforated shells, bones and minor objects pointing to the existence of man in the prehistoric ages in the overhanging bluffs in MacDonald County. These cliffs of weathered shale and limestone which bordered on the larger streams served as shelter for primitive man.

LAKE MEAD AT BOULDER DAM SHOWS RISE IN WATER LEVEL

Lake Mead, said to be the greatest man-made body of water in the world and stretching from Boulder Dam eastward into the gorge of the canyon of the Colorado, now stands at the highest level in its history. Airplane pilots who fly over this section have reported changes in the contour of the shore line every two or three days.

In May more than 16,000,000 acre-feet of water had accumulated in the reservoir. It is expected that by the end of the present period of maximum runoff impounded water will stand in excess of 20,000,000 acre feet. When the lake is full the 30,500,000 acre feet of water will cover an area of 227 square miles.

GLACIER PARK IS CAMPER'S PARADISE

Vacationer May Pitch Own Tent and "Rassle Grub" or Use Guide.

The "Far West" is no longer the remote place it once was, and with vacationers going west to see as much as possible, train schedules have been arranged to span long distances at night. Consequenty the scenic spots of the West are only an "over-night" distance apart. Rocky Mountain National Park, Glacier, Yellowstone and the parks in Utah are no longer day's journeys apart.

Camper's Paradise.

Of the parks, the camper's paradise is undoubtedly Glacier. More than 900 miles of foot and horseback trails connect hotels and tent camps. These roads also lead to the wild sections where camping is a matter of pitching one's own tent, cooking over an open fire and sleeping in blankets.

If you don't want to "rassle" your own pack and grub, you may hire a guide who will perform all these duties for you. If you happen to be a dyed-in-the-wool camper, you will find that supply stations are spotted all through the park, where you may pick up provisions which will supplement your catches from the trout streams. Equipment may be rented in the park.

The question of what to wear arises on any vacation. For a Western vacation the first principle is to travel with only enough to make you comfortable. In the mountain parks cool nights call for medium-weight wraps, sweaters or wind and weather proof outer coats. Knickers and outing suits are worn throughout the mountain territory.

Shoes for Hiking.

Be sure to include stout shoes or boots if you plan to do any hiking or walking. Lack of suitable shoes has spoiled many an otherwise successful vacation. Don't forget cold cream and the usual sunburn lotions. These are advisable for changes in climate and mountain altitudes. Colored glasses also should be included.

If you are stopping at hotels, it is desirable to carry informal dinner clothes. On the Pacific Coast, where the weather is universally warm, lightweight sports outfits plus comfortable walking shoes are appropriate for day wear.

A medium-sized suitcase or traveling bag should hold sufficient clothing for a two-weeks' vacation. The free allowance of baggage which may be carried in the national parks is one piece weighing 25 pounds. This is in addition to a small overnight bag which passengers may carry with them.

A camera is always in order. Film for still cameras may be obtained at almost every stopping point. Last but not least, do not spoil your trip by carrying an excessive amount of clothing. Take only what you reasonably expect to use and remember that you can always buy a few incidentals in the towns through which you pass.

GREAT INDIAN MINT ONCE LOCATED ON SHELTER ISLAND

What is generally supposed to have been the largest Indian "mint" in Eastern North America flourished centuries ago along the shores of Gardiner's Bay on historic Shelter Island. For the benefit of those who may not have looked at their maps recently, Shelter Island lies midway between the two pincers that make up the lobster-like claws that are the eastern end of Long Island.

Here on the bay's sandy shores more genuine wampum is believed to have been made than anywhere else in the Colonies. Filled with a varied sea life, the flats and marshes supplied an abundance of shells which the Indians made into wampum beads and used for exchange among themselves and later with the colonists.

The Narragansett tribe originated the wampum industry, according to some historians, while others aver that it was the Red Man's currency for countless ages. During recent explorations on Shelter Island large quantities of wampum were discovered in some of the ancient mounds that dot the interior. Remains of two Indian canals may still be seen on the island, one across West Neck and another extending from Tuthill's Creek to Fresh Pond, where the Indians kept their canoes safe from the waves and gales of the Atlantic.

Floating Gardens.

Xochimilco, the Venice of Mexico, with its floating gardens, is about 15 miles south of Mexico City. Originally an open lake, the Aztecs made long rafts of interlacing twigs which they covered with earth, seeded and erected their dwellings. The conquistadores carried back the incredible tale of the city of the floating gardens. The rafts have long since become made land with tall trees intersected by canals on which float native gondolas decked with flowers.

New Bus Schedule.

A new daily schedule has been added to the run between Dallas and St. Louis on the Southwestern Greyhound Lines. The addition of this new schedule makes a total of five daily bus schedules between St. Louis and this point.

SURVEY HERE OF YOUTH AND DEPRESSION JOBS

Check to Determine How 10,000 Persons Have Fared Since 1929.

A survey of 10,000 St. Louisans who were graduated from grammar schools in 1929, just before the depression began, and in 1931 and 1933, as business dropped to the bottom ofthescale,willbestarted|1ma bottom of the scale, will be started by the Government this week as part of a national inquiry to determine how young persons of both sexes have adjusted themselves to present economic conditions.

The experience of these young people in getting and keeping jobs will be carefully tabulated and analyzed, with the hope that it will be useful to civic and governmental agencies in future efforts to find employment for them and their fellows.

This is the S Y L M, or Survey of Youth in the Labor Market, usually referred to as the Youth Survey, under auspices of the division of social research of the W P A.

Co-Operation of Schools.

With the co-operation of the Board of Education and the Catholic and Lutheran parochial schools, the survey has listed the 30,000 graduates of January and June classes of the three years noted, the period being spaced in order to obtain a fair grouping of persons now between 17 and 24 years old. It was arranged to make inquiries of only 10,000, so every third name on the alphabetized list of each class was selected for inquiry. In this way individuals from all social levels and parts of the city will be reached.

A similar survey is being made in seven other urban industrial centers—Seattle, Wash.; San Francisco, Cal.; Denver, Colo.; Duluth, Minn.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Binghamton, N. Y., and Birmingham, Ala.

Twenty or 25 experienced interviewers, not chosen from relief rolls, will enter a training course Tuesday and will start questioning the youths, usually at their homes, Thursday or Friday. Fourteen of them have been employed already. Like the census, the information as to individuals will be held in strict confidence, only mass data being made public.

Filing of Infomation.

Information will be entered on a large card for each person. It will include a full account of the subject's experience since finishing the eighth grade. Completion of any vocational training courses in high school, college or professional school will be noted, together with the extent of schooling and reasons for terminating it.

Each job the young man or woman has held thereafter will be listed and described, with the hours of weekly work, wages and other points. How the individual learned of the opening in each job will be set down, as will pans for the future and special difficulties encountered in finding work. As to the latter, generalities, such as "the depression," will not be accepted, but in this and other matters, specific, detailed answers will be sought.

W. F. Daugherty, a research supervisor from the Washington office, is here as local sopervisor, with headquarters in the old Douglass School, Eleventh and Howard streets.

To find present addresses of the youths, telephone and city directories and other sources will be consulted by a staff of WPA clerks. Each interviewer will attempt to find those who have moved.

Analysis at Washington.

The findings will be analyzed at Washington, disclosing problems of the young people of the depression, recovery and recession in attempting to adjust themselves to modern life, and ways in which they met the problems, said Daugherty to a Post-Dispatch reporter.

"The survey," said a WPA pamphlet, "is designed to study the experiences of the new labor supply during the period of transition from school to productive activity. It is believed that a full account of the experiences of youth after leaving school, in terms of employment and attempts to obtain employment, will throw new and valuable light on the economic and social problems of the new labor supply.

"By the device of following youths from the time they leave school it will be possible to explain to some extent why some are forced to enter the labor market before completion of schooling; why some complete their schooling and make the transition to the labor market with little or no difficulty, and why others fail to make an adjustment and turn to public agencies."

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

July 10, 1938

A blond, 3-year-old celebrant watches tearfully as a physician bandages his burned fingers at City Hospital.

JULY 4—CLINICAL HISTORY

The Wounded Get Emergency Treatment at City Hospital

THROUGH the receiving room doors at City Hospital last Monday came a steady stream of fireworks victims—frightened children and adults embarrassed, angered. A special staff of interns, physicians and nurses was kept busy in the clinic and receiving room all day and far into the night cleaning the wounds, applying salves and giving anti-tetanus shots. When it was all over, the list of Fourth of July victims at the hospital had reached 241 persons.

Throughout the city more than 353 persons got hospital treatment for powder burns during the holiday period. It appeared likely that St. Louis again would be a contender for the dubious distinction of leading the nation in fireworks cases. A bill which would forbid the sale and discharge of fireworks was laid over by the Board of Aldermen for consideration Friday. Advocates of the proposed ordinance point to Belleville, which reported no powder burn cases. The city strictly enforced its anti-fireworks ordinance.

There were no fireworks deaths in St. Louis and only four throughout the nation. But at least 517 persons died celebrating the holiday, half of them in auto accidents.

FIREWORKS accidents in St. Louis, shown on this and the preceding page, were typical of those throughout the United States. Jane Withers, child movie star, who posed for a series of pictures recently showing "What Not to Do With Fireworks," herself was burned when on the Fourth she lighted a string of firecrackers. In New York, a boy chasing a rocket flag was killed by shock when he touched a third rail. A Kansas City man put a firecracker between his teeth, thinking it was a cigarette. When he lighted it, the blast blew out several teeth and cut his mouth. In Chicago 20 were injured in a premature explosion.

A Stunt Man Does A Fall

IN A recently-completed movie, Stuart Erwin appears to jump 50 feet from a burning building. Actually a stunt man does it for him. The scene takes but a few seconds on the screen, but required four hours' continuous work before the results were satisfactory. Woody had to jump into a fire net five times to earn his $100.

Stuart Erwin poised for the jump which the stunt man took for him. Stars are not permitted to take dangerous chances.

2. Woody somersaults as he dives out the window. The stunt is not as simple as it looks. A slight misjudgment might mean a broken neck.

3. For this fall Woody received $100. But he and other stunt men dislike this "easy" type of assignment because of the temptation to become careless and miss the net.

4. Making the last turn before hitting the net. Superstitious stunt men say that if they think about disaster they will fail.

MISS ELISABETH EGAN, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. The bride is a graduate of John Burroughs School, attended the Madeira School in Washington, D. C., and graduated from Vassar College in 1936. She made her debut in 1937 and was a maid of honor at the Veiled Prophet ball last year. She is a member of the Junior League. Mr. Starkloff is a student in the Medical School of Washington University; he took his undergraduate work also at Washington. The couple will live in St. Louis.

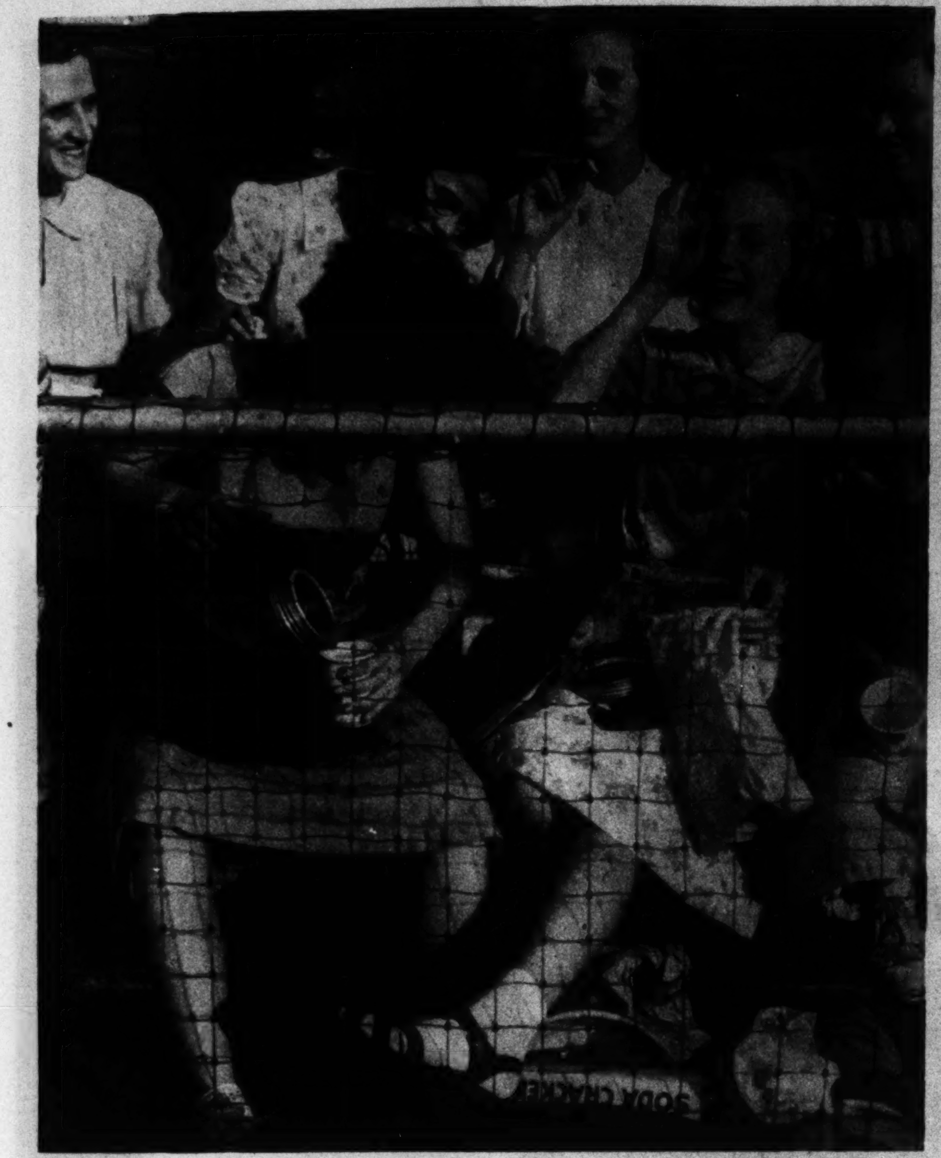
The Early Birds Get the Free Seats

By 6 o'clock most of the seats in the free section at the rear of the theater are filled.



Free seat patrons at the Municipal Opera arrive as early as 4:30 p. m. These girls have brought a light lunch and a jug of water. That helps pass the time until the start of the performance at 8:15 o'clock.

FIRST to be filled each night at the Municipal Theater in Forest Park are the 1700 free seats in the rear. Amplifiers make it possible to hear well. As for vision, many free seat occupants come with opera glasses.

In addition to these seats for those who cannot or do not wish to pay, the Municipal Theater provides 30,000 tickets to the underprivileged. Thus in a year a total of about 175,000 free seats are available.

GOLDEN hair and golden voice are two of the reasons that Ilona Hajmassey passed quickly in her youthful career from seamstress in a Budapest, Hungary, clothing shop, to the front row of the chorus, to the Viennese opera, to featured player of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's Hollywood studio. There, after concentrated tutoring in English, she was co-starred in her first picture, "Rosalie." Her name, like her speech, has been Anglicized. She is Ilona Massey.

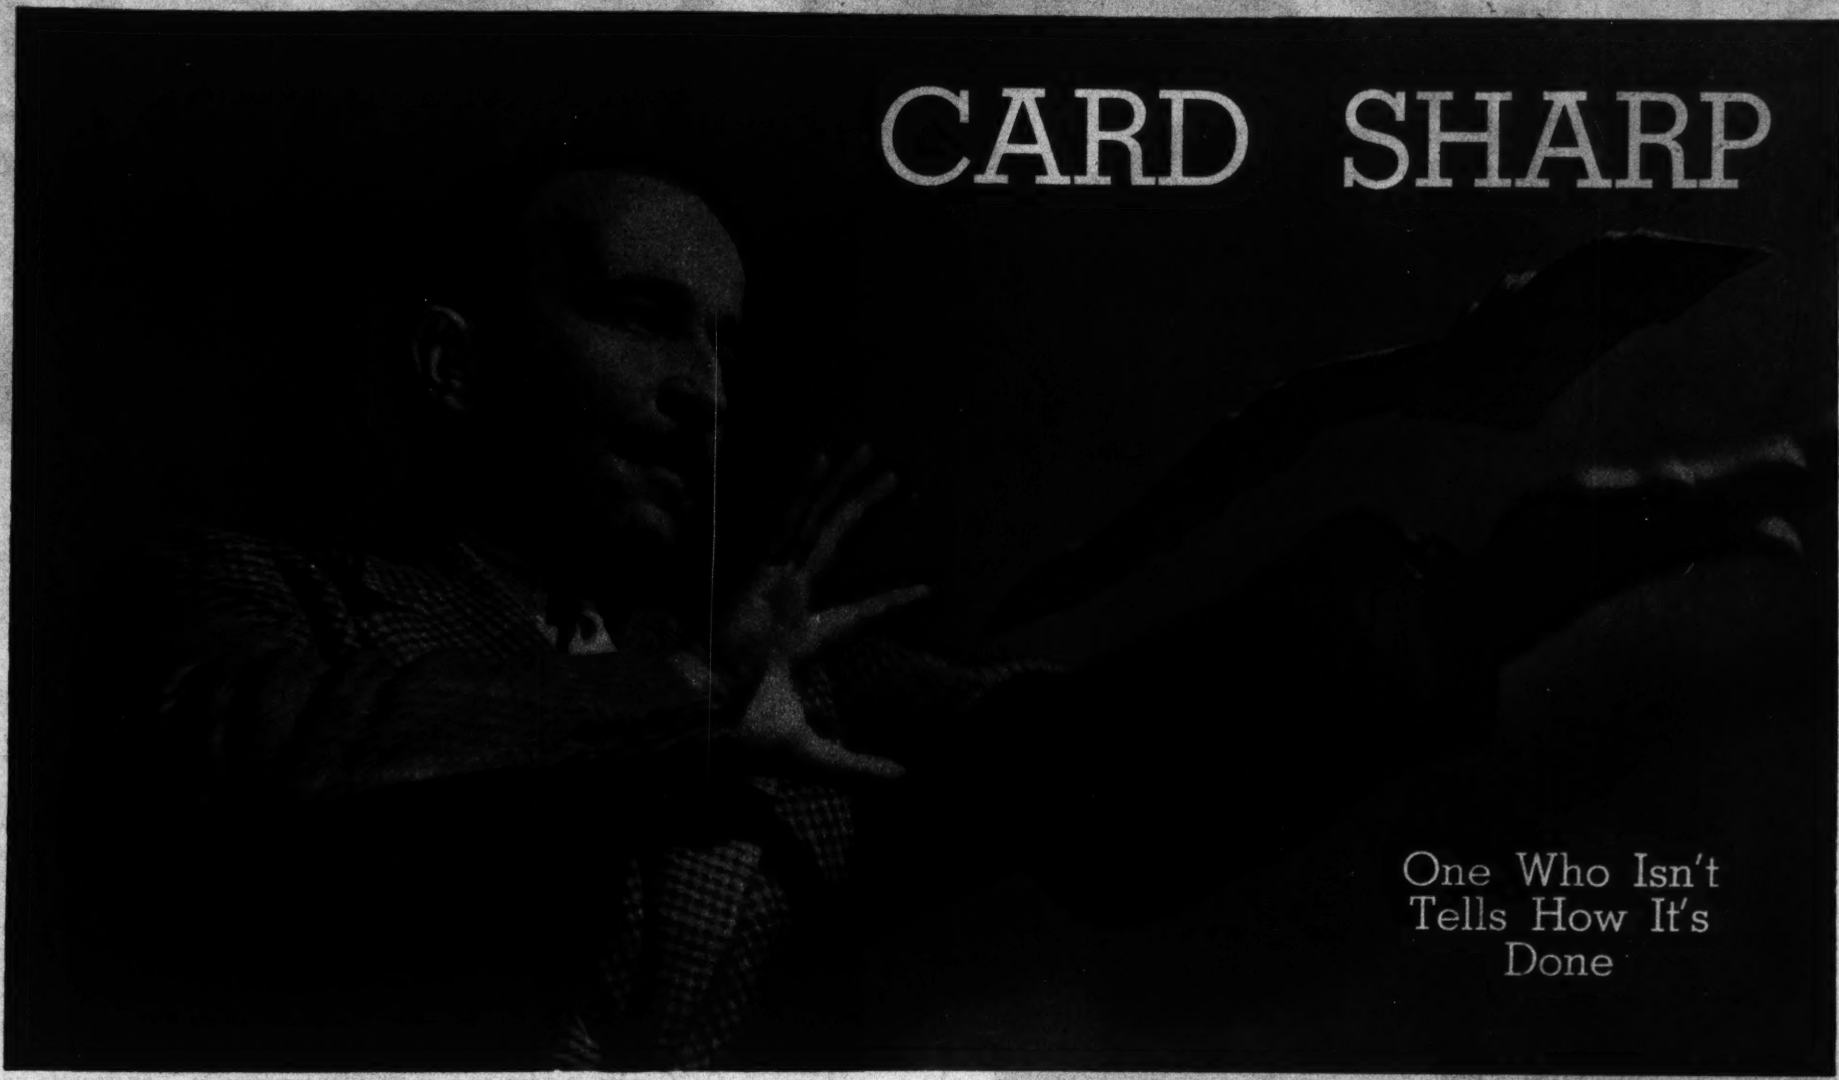
CARD SHARP

One Who Isn't Tells How It's Done

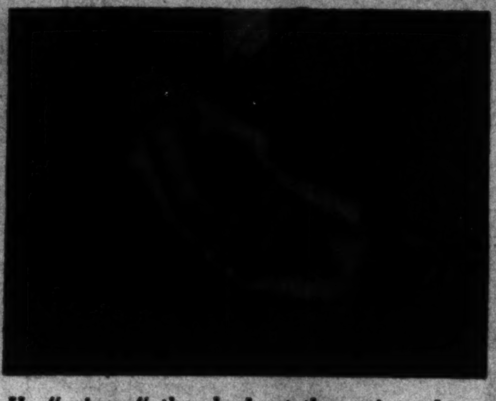


JERRY KAHLER, an entertainer appearing in St. Louis, has made a profession of exposing the hundreds of tricks of crooked gamblers. There are scores of manufactured devices for cheating—one company brazenly publishes a "blue book" catalogue listing everything from loaded and shaped dice and skillfully marked cards to dice switches, roulette balls that can be magnetized, "shiners," "controlled" chuck-luck cages, sleeve card "holdouts," magnifying eyeglasses, and roulette table and cigar-counter magnets. But Kahler, who once dealt in a number of gambling houses throughout the country, here shows how the sharp can "take" a sucker simply by sleight-of-hand.

—By a Post-Dispatch PICTURES Staff Photographer.

Gathering up the discards preparatory to dealing, the sharp sees three clubs in a hand, so he casually puts them on the bottom with two clubs from another hand.

He shuffles each to the top in turn, and places over it cards equal to the number of players minus one.



He "crimps" the deck at the point where the player on his right usually cuts. The clubs are now at the top of the lower part of the deck.

So the sharp deals himself this flush.

There are eight standard methods of controlling dice, three by hand and five in cups. Here, the crooked gambler, scooping up the dice——

"Sets" the cubes so that the six and the one are up.

Ready for the "Hudson" shot. The top cube is rattled on the bottom one without changing the position of either.

The dice are spun from the hand so that the six and one remain uppermost. They twirl sideways, giving the appearance of tumbling end over end, but the six and one are still up when they land. This won't work on a hard surface. Gambling houses guard against it by having a string or rubberband in the center of the craps table to "trip" the dice, and by forcing the player to shoot off a rubber bank which turns over the dice.

A caliper which most professional gamblers carry to detect "capped" or "flat" dice — dice with certain sides either added to or shaved. This caliper only measures down to one sixty-fourth of an inch, however, and most gambling houses "shape" the dice even less than that, Kahler says. Loaded dice wobble when spun in the balancer, at right.

Bridge cheating is more complicated. First and third cards down on a trick average higher than second and fourth. But the sharp, if he takes a trick while playing fourth hand, increases that average by scooping up the trick with his high card underneath instead of on top. His crooked partner fakes a shuffle of the deck, leaves the high cards in the same position. The sharp himself fakes the cut, and the opponent deals them the high first and third cards.

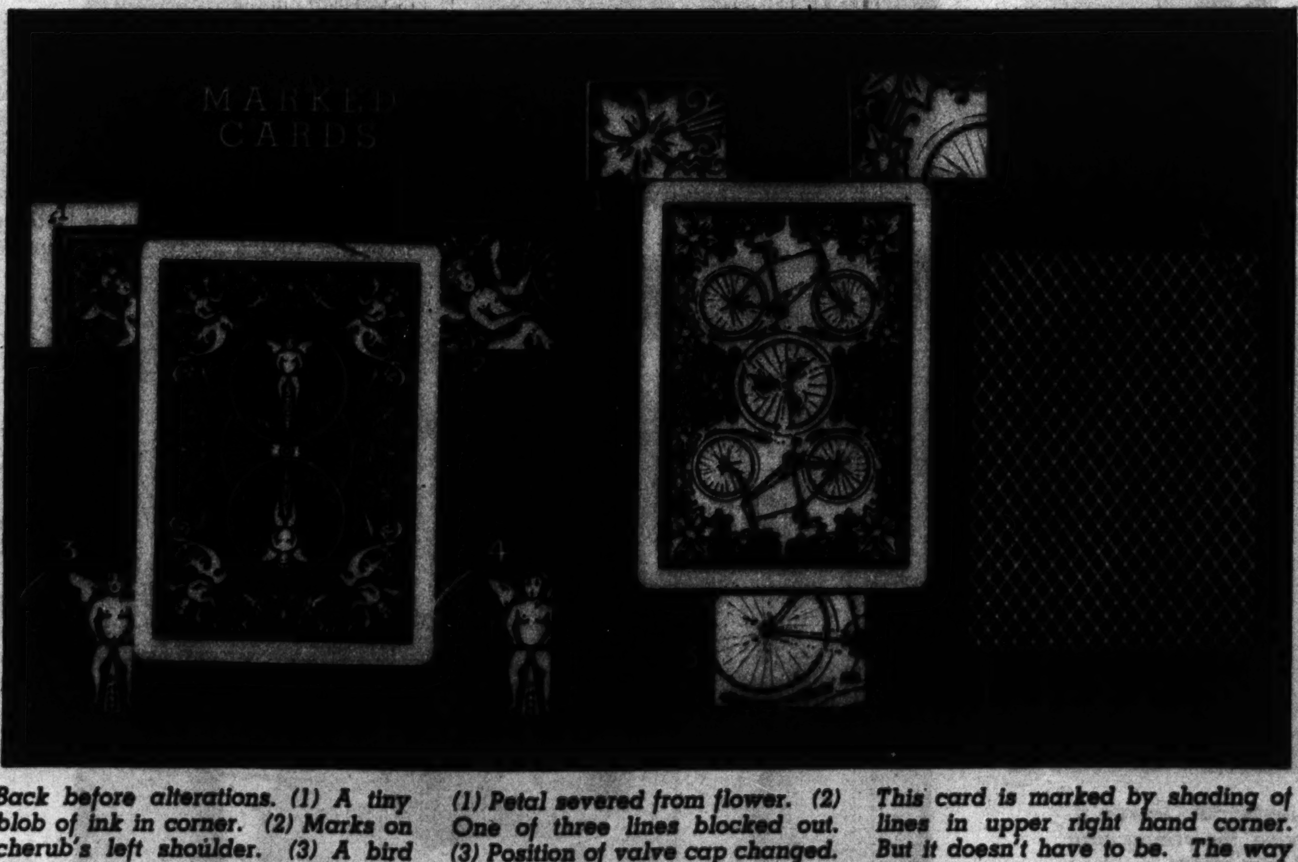
He "shifts" the ace to the top of the deck.

Because there are five players, he shuffles four miscellaneous cards over the ace. Then he pulls out two more aces the same way, and deals himself three aces, good enough to win most draw poker hands.



Back before alterations. (1) A tiny blob of ink in corner. (2) Marks on cherub's left shoulder. (3) A bird painted out of the sky. (4) Shape of cherub's wing altered.

(1) Petal severed from flower. (2) One of three lines blocked out. (3) Position of valve cap changed. The cap may be moved to any position to denote a certain card.

This card is marked by shading of lines in upper right hand corner. But it doesn't have to be. The way the diamonds touch the edges can be used to show what card it is.

A not difficult trick, even for an amateur, but this mirror photograph shows how hard it is for another player to see the sharp palming a card.

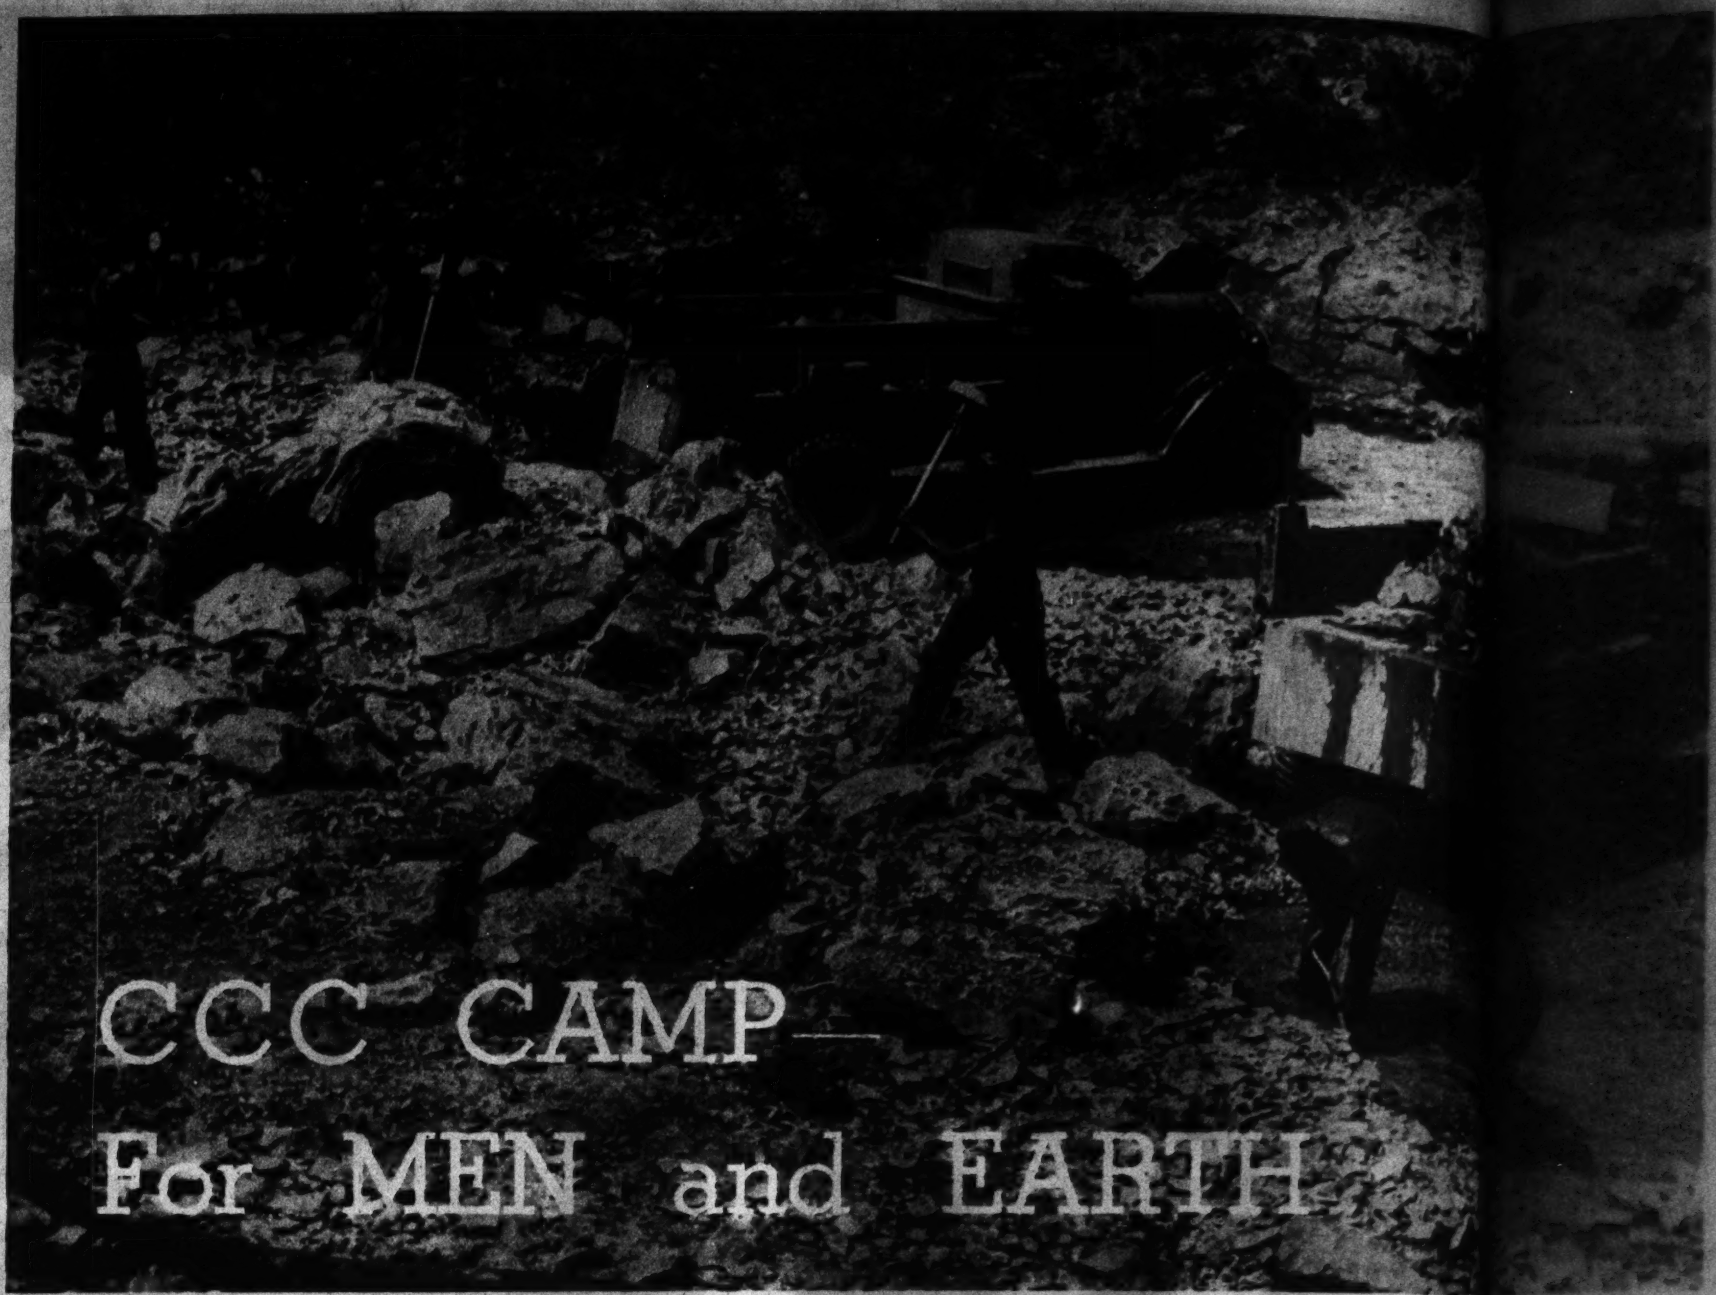
Faust's enrollment application. He graduated from Edwardsville High School a year ago and spent three months looking for a job before he obtained clerical work with the National Youth Administration.



CCC CAMP— For MEN and EARTH

ONE HUNDRED AND FIVE young men of Madison County, Illinois, were enrolled during the last three days at the CCC camp at Edwardsville, 26 miles northeast of St. Louis, bringing the camp back to its full quota of 210 men. They are all unmarried, range in age from 17 to 24 and all were unemployed. They came from non-relief as well as relief families.

On this page is shown the procedure Fred Faust Jr. went through in enrolling in the CCC. He is now one of 300,000 workers in camps throughout the United States. Having entered a camp operated jointly by the Army and the Soil Conservation Service, he may be assigned to a dam-building job, a terracing project, a fence-building job, tree planting, pond construction or other types of work being done near the camp on lands owned by co-operating farmers. They supply materials and agree to rotate crops as well as follow suggestions of the Conservation Service in obtaining better use of their lands. At first skeptical, farmers now in increasing numbers offer to co-operate with the CCC and the Soil Conservation Service.

John Jacob Astor's Father-in-Law Asks for Relief

Francis O. French, doing home work till he finds something better.

The Newport villa of French's son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John Jacob Astor III.

The John Jacob Astors and their son, William Henry.

FRANCIS ORMOND FRENCH'S determination to stand on his own feet, as he expressed it—even if that occasionally gives some of his rich relatives a pain in the neck—apparently has weakened. He is still adamant about accepting financial help from Daughter Ellen, Son-in-law John and such kinfolk, but he is now willing to lean a bit on benevolent old Uncle Sam. Mr. French, formerly of Wall Street and the Social Register and at present the father-in-law of one of the wealthiest young men in America, John Jacob Astor III, applied for relief the other day in the village of Middletown, Rhode Island. He expressed a desire for a W P A job, even at pick-and-shovel work; to get such a job a man must first get on a relief roll. He was down, said Mr. French, to his last $15. While awaiting action on his application, he got a job on a golf driving range.

Less than a year ago French went into bankruptcy, listing liabilities of more than $4900, including 30 cents to a telegraph company and $5 to a florist. A year before that he relinquished a chance to make some money out of a book of memoirs, reported to be something of an expose of life among the wealthy, which he had tentatively entitled "The Cesspool"; even after he changed the title to "Yankee Shield Bearers," members of his family objected so strenuously to its publication that he abandoned the project.

In 1923 French lost a fortune—$500,000, he said—in the stock market and a wife in divorce court; the wife, the former Eleanor Livingston Burrill, got custody of their two daughters, Ellen and Virginia, along with her freedom. He then sought to rehabilitate his finances by toiling as a taxicab driver in New York. After five days of it, in which he found a good deal of time to pose for news cameras and give interviews, he gave up this career.

Graduate of Harvard, son of Banker Amos Tuck French of New York, Tuxedo Park and Paris, cousin of William H. Vanderbilt, French, in his late 40s, has been living lately in a two-room flat at Middletown with his second wife, the former Mrs. Mary Galvin, Boston divorcee, whom he married in 1930. About three miles away is Chetwode, luxurious Newport home of his daughter Ellen and John Jacob Astor III, who were married in 1934. The Astors are reported to wish that French did not prefer public funds to theirs.

DESIGN FOR A FOREST PARK FOUNTAIN

Miss Daisy Taake.

BACK in 1916 Miss Daisy Taake, young St. Louis sculptress, won a prize in a competition of the St. Louis Art League with a fountain design whose principal figure was inspired by Wordsworth's "Ode on the Intimations of Immortality from Recollections of Early Childhood." A few days ago Miss Taake submitted to the Municipal Art Commission a scale model of a fountain which represents a development of that original idea—four dancing figures symbolizing some of the "common sights" of childhood. The commission approved the design as suitable for a public fountain, which leaves the city free to have the fountain constructed if it should ever decide to do so. At present no funds are available for the purpose. The new garden east of the Jewel Box in Forest Park has been suggested as a fitting site for the sculpture.

The Wordsworth ode begins:

There was a time when meadow, grove and stream,
The earth, and every common sight,
To me did seem
Appareled in celestial light . . .

The four figures in Miss Taake's group, a boy and three girls, represent earth, meadow, grove and stream. The boy, representing earth, wears skins of animals. Meadow is adorned with flowers and grasses, grove with leaves and a bird; stream, to whom mosses cling, holds a fish in her hand. Full size, the fountain would be 20 feet in diameter, and the figures would be seven feet tall. In granite with bronze figures, the work would cost, it is estimated, about $25,000.

Miss Taake, who lives at 5514 Pershing avenue, is a native of St. Louis. She attended the St. Louis School of Fine Arts and the Art Institute of Chicago, and studied with and worked for the noted sculptor Lorado Taft. She has executed commissions for clients in New York and Chicago as well as St. Louis, and has exhibited in these three cities. She also does water-color painting, and has been teaching evening classes in art at the Soldan High School for the last 10 years. She was a pioneer teacher of commercial art in the St. Louis public schools.

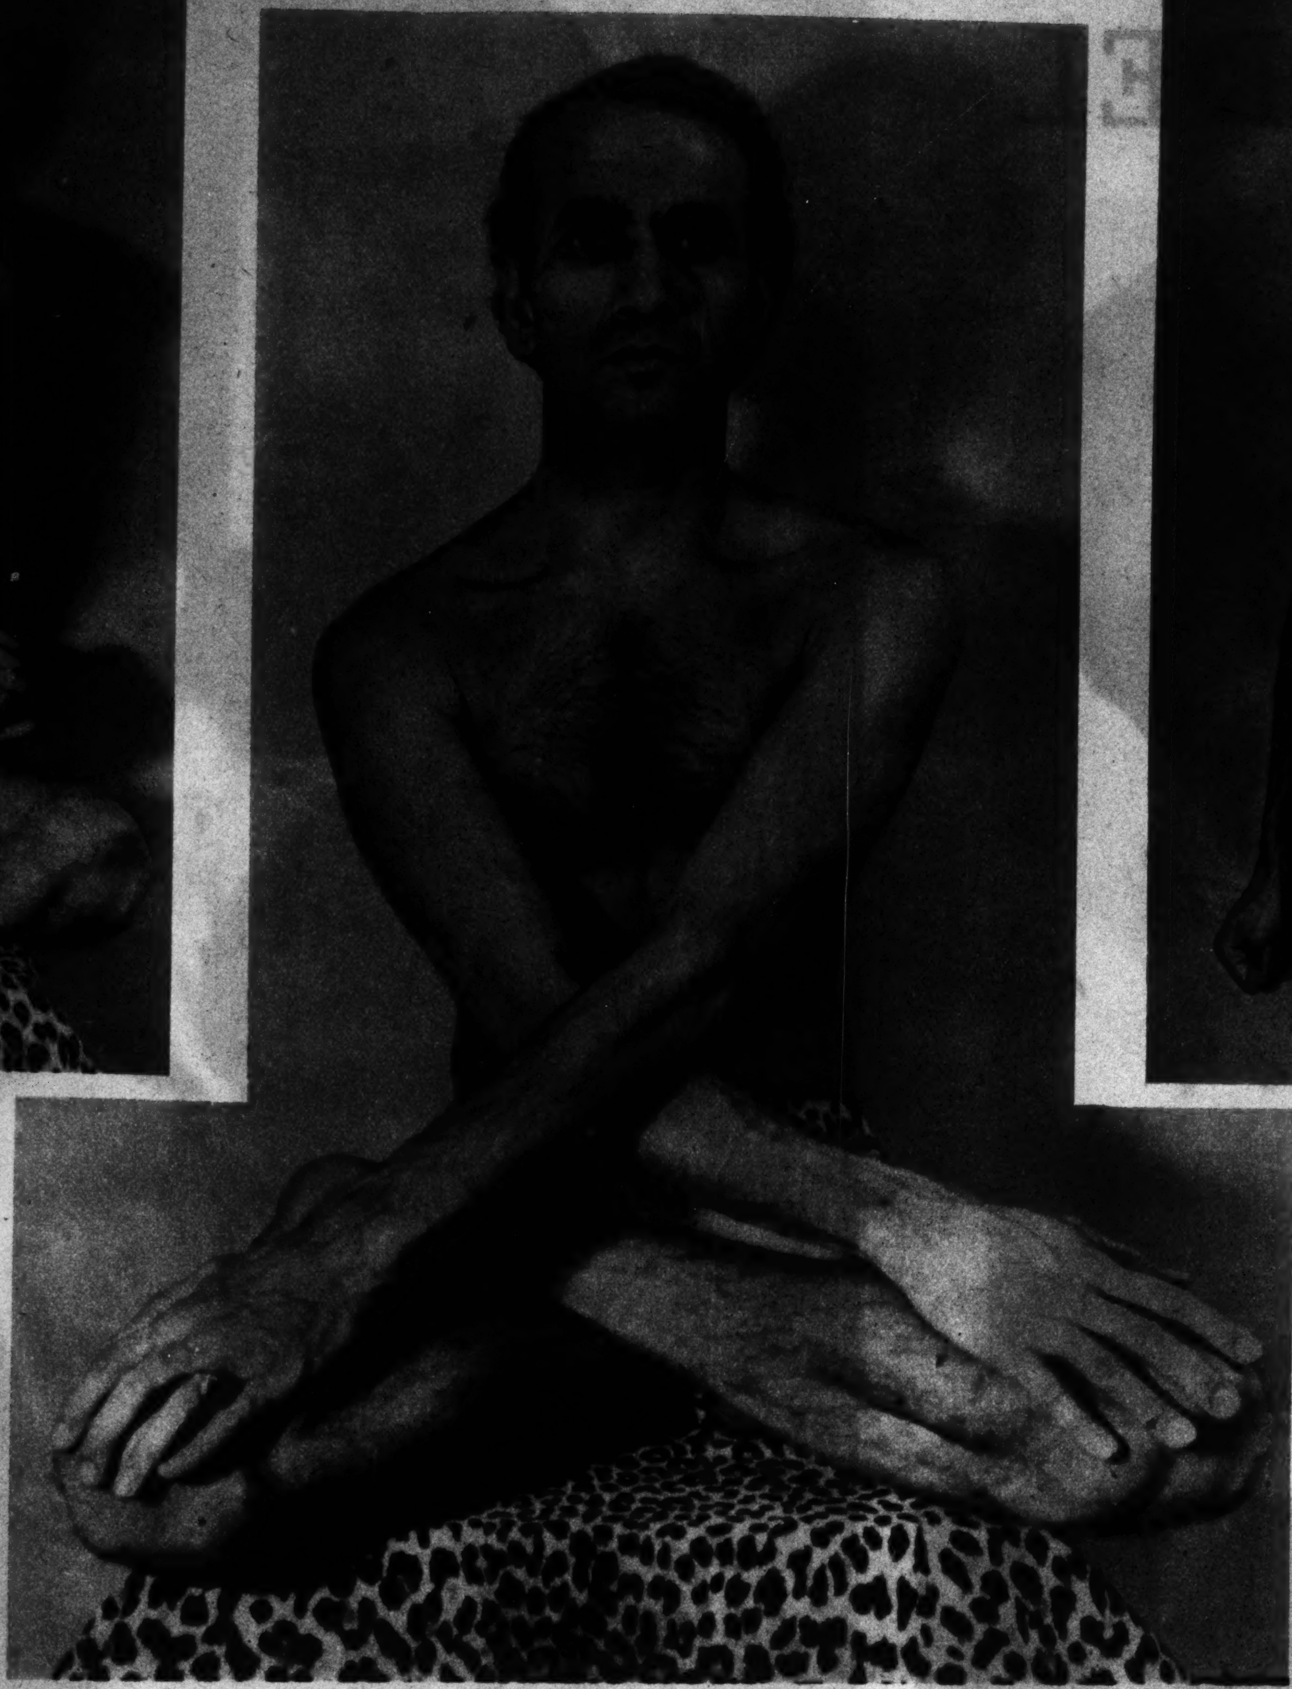
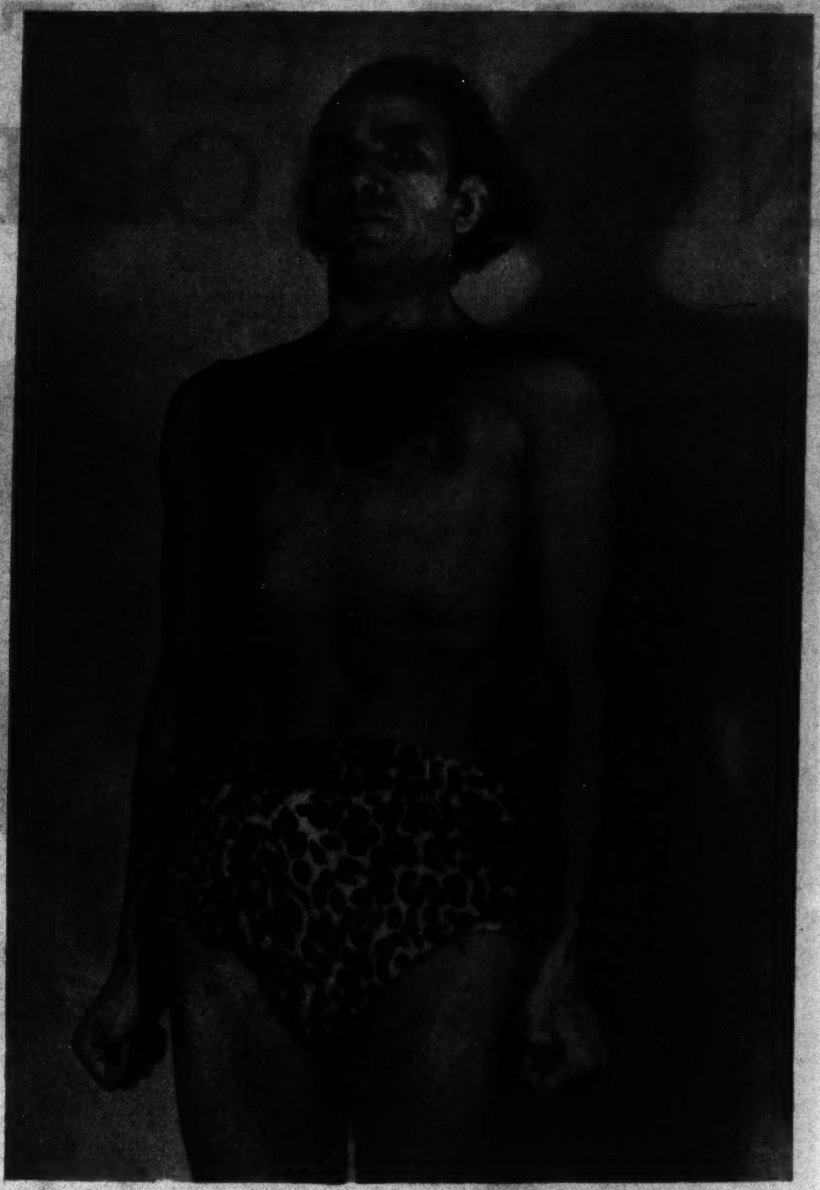
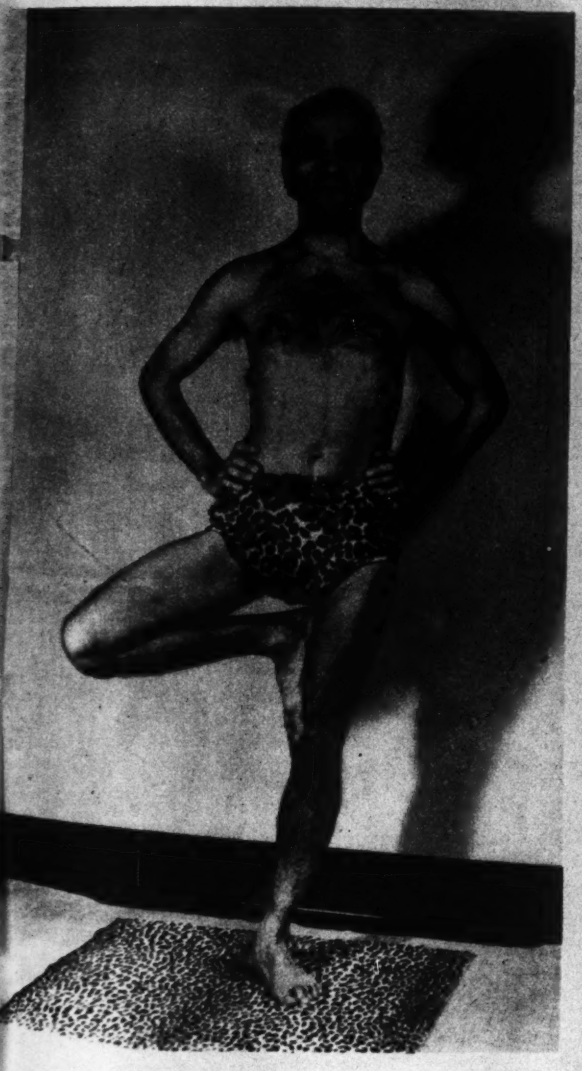
This rather tangled looking position, to be held at least 10 minutes, is said to purify the nerves. It is called the Padma Asana.



The Sidh Asana, designed to cause pressure on certain nerve centers and aid the yogi in gaining control of his body.



The Prana-Shudha. The breath is expelled suddenly, and the abdomen is then drawn in and raised. The position is held as long as possible without breathing.



While maintaining this stance the yogi meditates on holy things until he loses consciousness of his position.

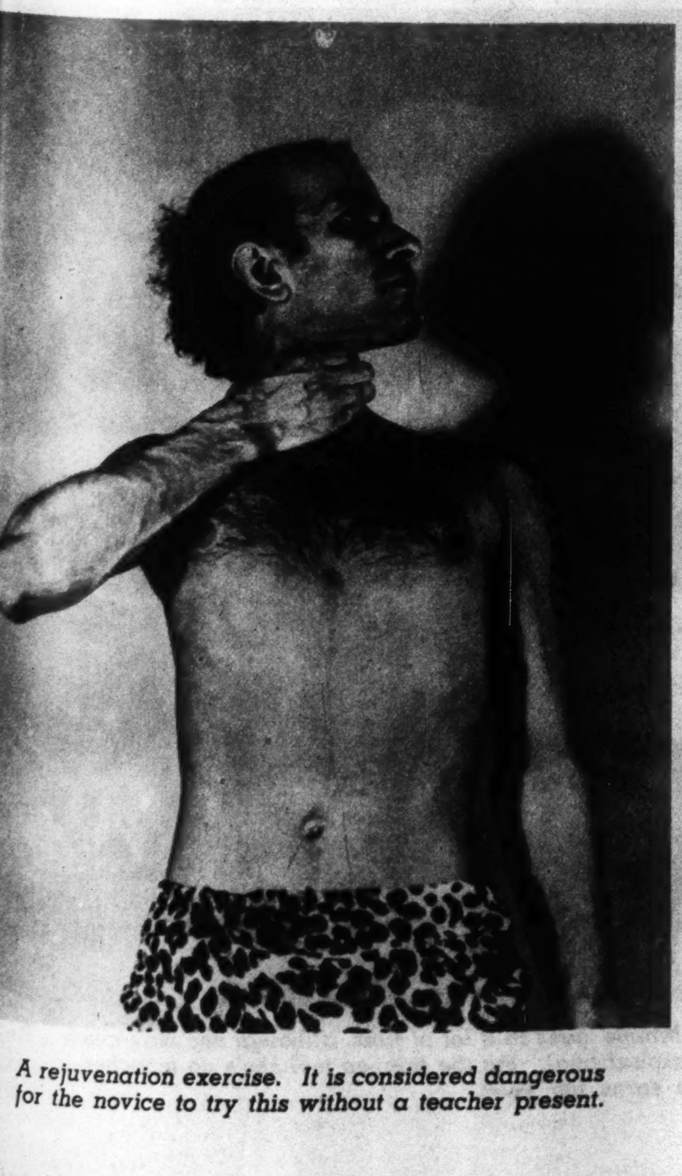
REACHING 'PERFECTION' BY YOGA

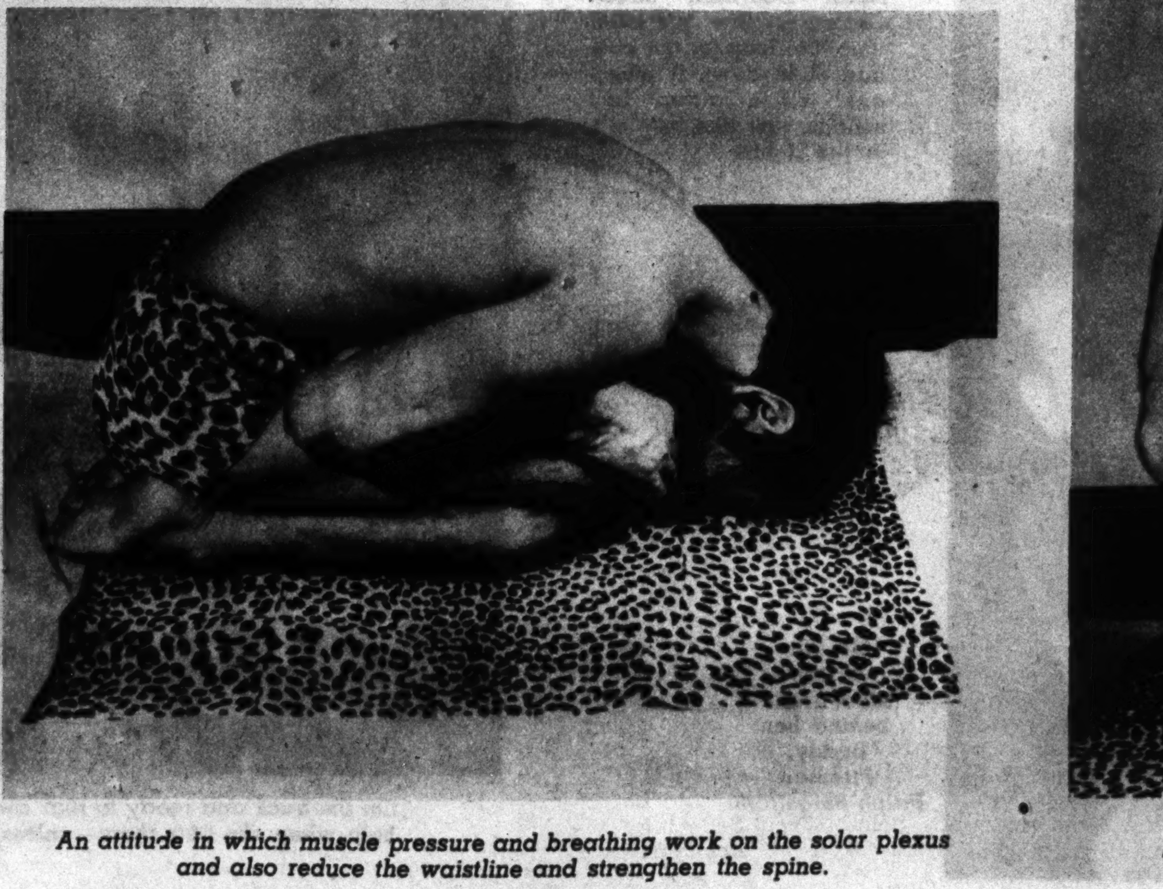
STRANGE stories are told of Yoga, the Hindu system of personal development which embraces a religious philosophy, a mental discipline and a method of physical culture. Many instances have been reported in which yogis, expert practitioners of the system, have shown a mastery over their own bodies and over natural forces that seemed miraculous. More than one Occidental observer of such things has been convinced that modern science could learn a good deal from this ancient wisdom, which goes back more than 6000 years.

Vital elements in Yoga are certain bodily postures, ways of breathing and mental concentration. The postures, called asanas, some of which can be assumed only after years of practice, are supposed to be beneficial to the body, and, in conjunction with the breathing, to aid concentration. In the upper reaches of Yoga the devotee seeks, with the help of postures and breath control, to induce a trance which he believes unites him with deity.

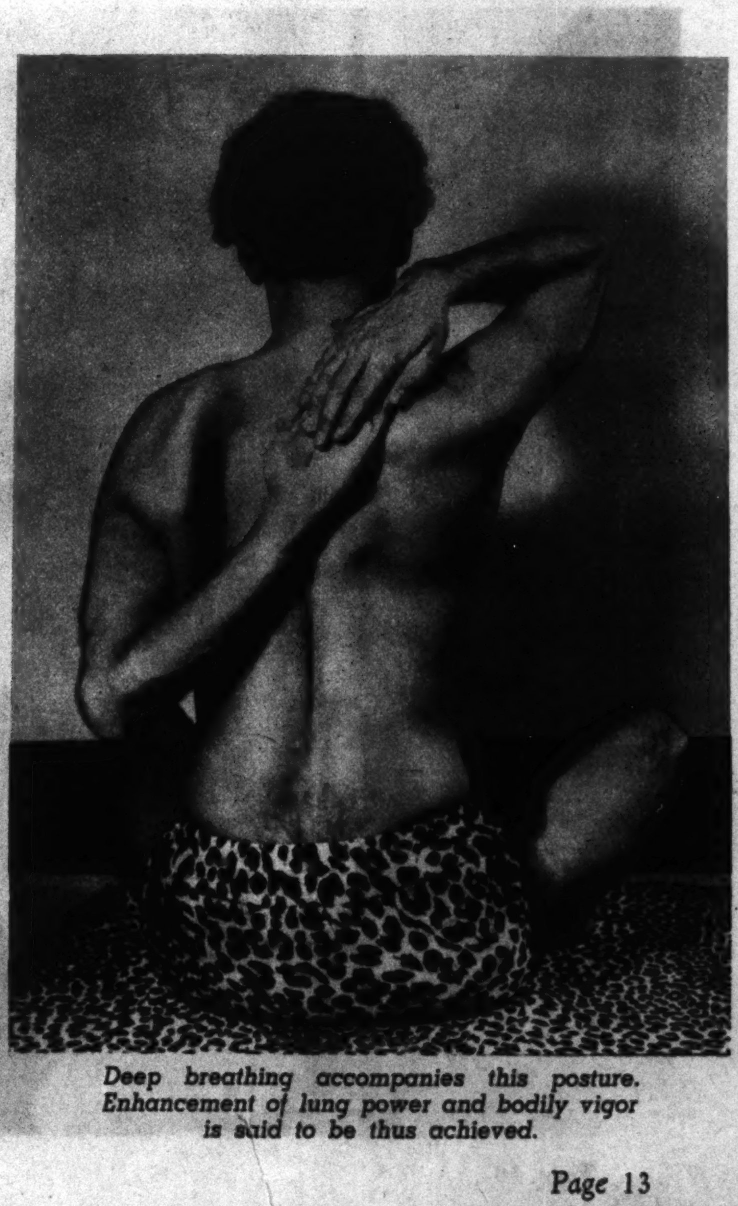
A few of the Yoga postures are here shown by Yogi Sant Ram Mandal of New York, Hindu scholar, author and lecturer.



A rejuvenation exercise. It is considered dangerous for the novice to try this without a teacher present.



An attitude in which muscle pressure and breathing work on the solar plexus and also reduce the waistline and strengthen the spine.



Deep breathing accompanies this posture. Enhancement of lung power and bodily vigor is said to be thus achieved.

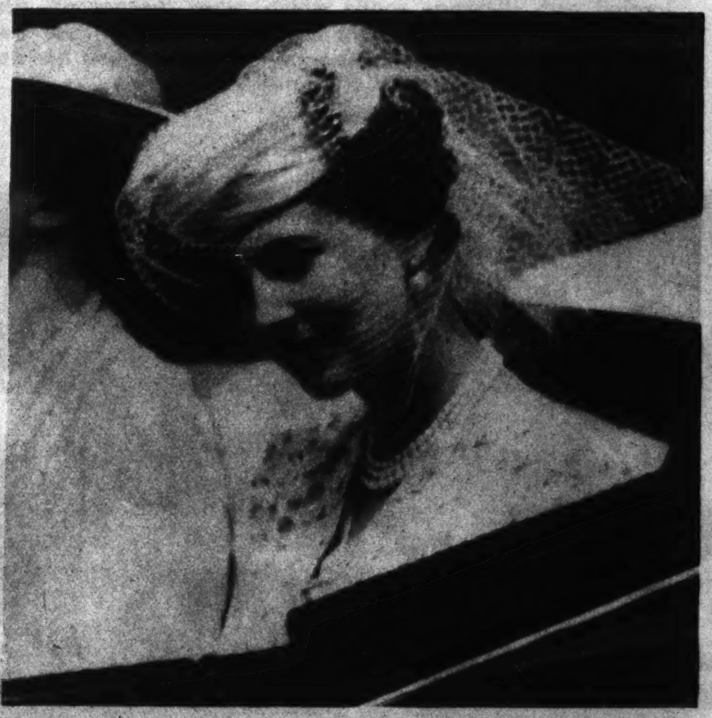
She Sets the Style for Britain's Hats

PARIS dressmakers named the Duchess of Kent the best-dressed woman in the world in 1935. Her wide variety of well-chosen costumes today more than ever seems to bear out that accolade. The tall, slender, blue-eyed Duchess, sister-in-law of King George, favors clothes of simple distinction. Even as the Princess Marina of Greece, before her marriage to King George's younger brother four years ago, she was a woman of note because of her beauty and grace. Here she is seen in a variety of hats.



A white turban with white flowing veil was the Duchess' headgear for the fourth day at the Ascot races.

SHARK HUNTER

Miss Jeane Smythe (seen off the Florida coast) loading her Swedish harpoon gun.

FISHERMEN who tire of conventional hook, line and sinker, have found divertisement by grafting the pastime with big game hunting, producing the sport of shark shooting. Weapons are guns loaded with 10-gauge shells which, when discharged, propel captive harpoons instead of shot. When the harpoon hits a shark, the big fish is pulled aboard with rope. Shark shooting has one advantage over jungle stalking—it's safer.

"Thar she blows!" Miss Smythe sights a shark. Accurate gun range is 75 feet.

Reducing a News Page to Thumbnail Size

Two types of reading devices being used by students in Harper Memorial Library at the University of Chicago. The film may be wound rapidly with the hand cranks. In the projector at the left, the image may be reduced so the full page, instead of a quarter page, is visible on the screen.

The photographic files of the New York Times for the war years, 1914-18 (on the stand), in contrast to the pulp paper files of the same period, on the shelves at the right from the foreground back to where the young woman is standing. The paper files take 50 times as much space.

Microphotographic film in actual size, and a section of the same film enlarged. It is from a newspaper published by Jean Paul Marat, French revolutionary leader, in 1790. The university has photographed 30 French newspapers of the revolution period.

MICROPHOTOGRAPHY is a process in which printed matter is recorded page by page in miniature on rolls of film, then read by magnifying it in a projector. Twenty United States libraries, four commercial firms, and the Federal Government in its bureaus at Washington are using the system on a large scale.

For preservation of newspaper files, the method has three advantages: The film files take but two per cent of the space of the bound paper volume; with proper handling, the film will last as long as the best paper, whereas the pulp paper now used for newspapers deteriorates rapidly; and the average cost is only about $90 for a year's file.

A library of a million volumes, when photographed, occupies but five cubic yards. A 24,000-page encyclopedia can be reduced to occupy a space of 200 cubic inches. Rare books and documents can be made more available to scholars through films of them, and their contents preserved against loss. Filming of checks and statements is widespread in the commercial field, because of economy in filing. The 34,000,000-card index of the 1900 census, which now occupies 7000 square feet of floor space, will use but 50 square feet on film. Illegible manuscripts and documents can be deciphered by the process.

The most complete laboratory for large-scale microphotography outside the Government and commercial ones has been set up at the University of Chicago libraries by the Rockefeller Foundation. These photographs were taken there to illustrate the process.

Preventing Tuberculosis

Children who are undernourished or have been exposed to tuberculosis take a health-giving sun bath each day at the Night and Day Camp overlooking the Mississippi.

EIGHTY boys and girls, ranging in age from 6 to 16, live at the Night and Day Camp for Children, 9500 South Broadway. They eat healthy meals and get plenty of sleep and exercise. All are referred to the preventorium by social agencies, physicians, schools or hospitals, usually because they are in danger of developing tuberculosis—none has the disease—unless preventive steps are taken. Usually within eight months a child grows sufficiently strong to return to his home. Funds for the preventorium come from receipts of the Tuberculosis day ball game (next Wednesday at Sportsman's Park) and from the sale of Christmas seals. The camp, now in its twenty-fifth year, is operated by the Tuberculosis and Health Society of St. Louis.

WRECKS FURNITURE

Destructive effects of too-dry air are both numerous and expensive. It dries out glue in joints so that furniture comes apart; it robs paints and varnishes of elasticity so they crack and peel off; it shrinks doors, mouldings and other woodwork, causing unsightly cracks at joints; it makes dirt-collecting cracks in floors; damage that would cost several hundred dollars to repair may easily be wrought in one season.

ENDANGERS HEALTH

Insufficient moisture in the air you breathe dries out mucous membranes, making them ideal breeding places for the germs of sinus infections, common cold, sore throat and various throat and lung disorders.

No Dry-Heat
DESTRUCTIVENESS
WITH A HOLLAND FURNACE!

I'D ALMOST SAY THE HUMIDIFIER ALONE IS WORTH ALL THE FURNACE COST— IT MAKES US SO MUCH MORE COMFORTABLE
AND IT SURELY IS A PROTECTION AGAINST COLDS

AUTOMATIC HEATING—Holland Furnaces are ideal for all types of automatic heating—with coal, oil or gas. Ask about Holland's own special oil, gas or automatic coal burner units.

Famous
CASCADE HUMIDIFIER
Works Automatically

TO INCREASE COMFORT AND SAVE YOU MONEY IN MANY WAYS

COSTLY damages of excessive dryness cease when a Holland Furnace starts heating your home. Its unique cascade humidifier can be set to moisten the air to the desired degree and, once set, automatically proportions moisture to heat. This moisture is in the form most easily absorbed by air, a vapor infinitely finer than the costliest atomizer can supply. This not only protects against the damages listed above, but also saves fuel. It takes much more fuel to keep rooms at 80° than at 70° yet you will be far more comfortable at 70° with proper humidity than at 80° with dry heat!

Only One of Many Holland Superiorities

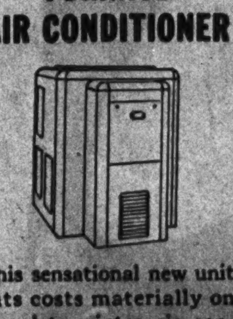
But a Holland Furnace brings you many other exclusive features, every bit as important as its amazing humidifier. Its combustion principle, for example, featuring the famous Holland Coal-Roller cone-shaped grate, is not fully duplicated in any other furnace. It keeps the fire on the outside of the fuel bed right against the castings, so that you get quicker heat and more of it from every lump of coal you burn. More than a dozen other Holland features combine to reduce fuel consumption, cut down furnace tending and increase comfort.

Furthermore, this incomparably efficient furnace is installed by Holland's own expert mechanics according to plans scientifically designed by Holland's own engineer and fully guaranteed by Holland to assure you perfect heat in every room in even the severest weather. If, therefore, your present heating system is unsatisfactory, call in the local Holland engineer. Then you are sure of perfect home comfort at lowest possible cost.

3 YEARS TO PAY

Virtually make your own terms when you buy a Holland Furnace and no middlemen to divide responsibility. You deal solely and directly with the Holland Furnace Company.

AUTOMATIC FURNACE AIR CONDITIONER



This sensational new unit cuts costs materially on complete winter air conditioning with automatic oil or gas heat. Advanced engineering has created almost unbelievable efficiencies and economies. Get details from factory branch.

Furnace cut away to show how water is introduced on large casting surface, producing proper moisture in direct proportion to heat generated. Water can be regulated so overflow moistens ashes. Fire pot castings last longer, too, because no projecting water pan slows up air flow and reflects heat against castings.

CLEAN HEATING PLANT NOW

A thorough cleaning with the famous Holland Giant Power Suction Cleaner removes waste that damages equipment and will make your furnace more economical next winter. No muss or fuss in your home—LOWEST RATES NOW —Call nearest factory branch for quotation.

FREE Furnace Inspection

Have Holland's trained engineer inspect your entire heating system. There is no cost and no obligation.

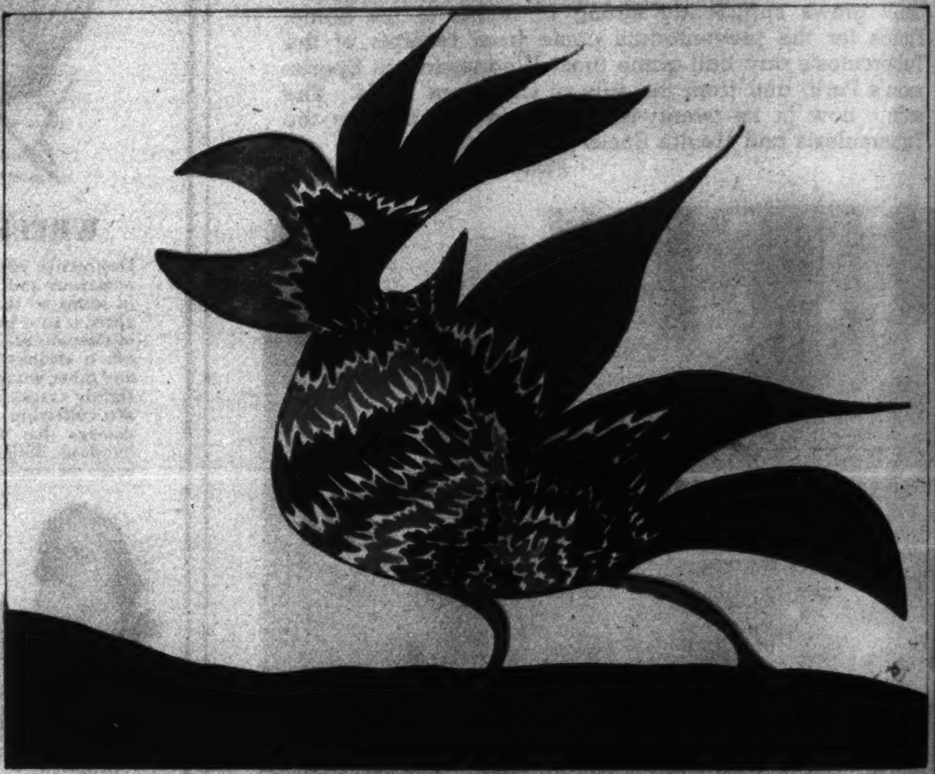
HUMOROUS ART FROM THE SUBCONSCIOUS

Attending a Lecture, Mrs. Merrill Hutchinson Jotted Down Some Drawings, and Later Heard Them Acclaimed as Abstract Art.



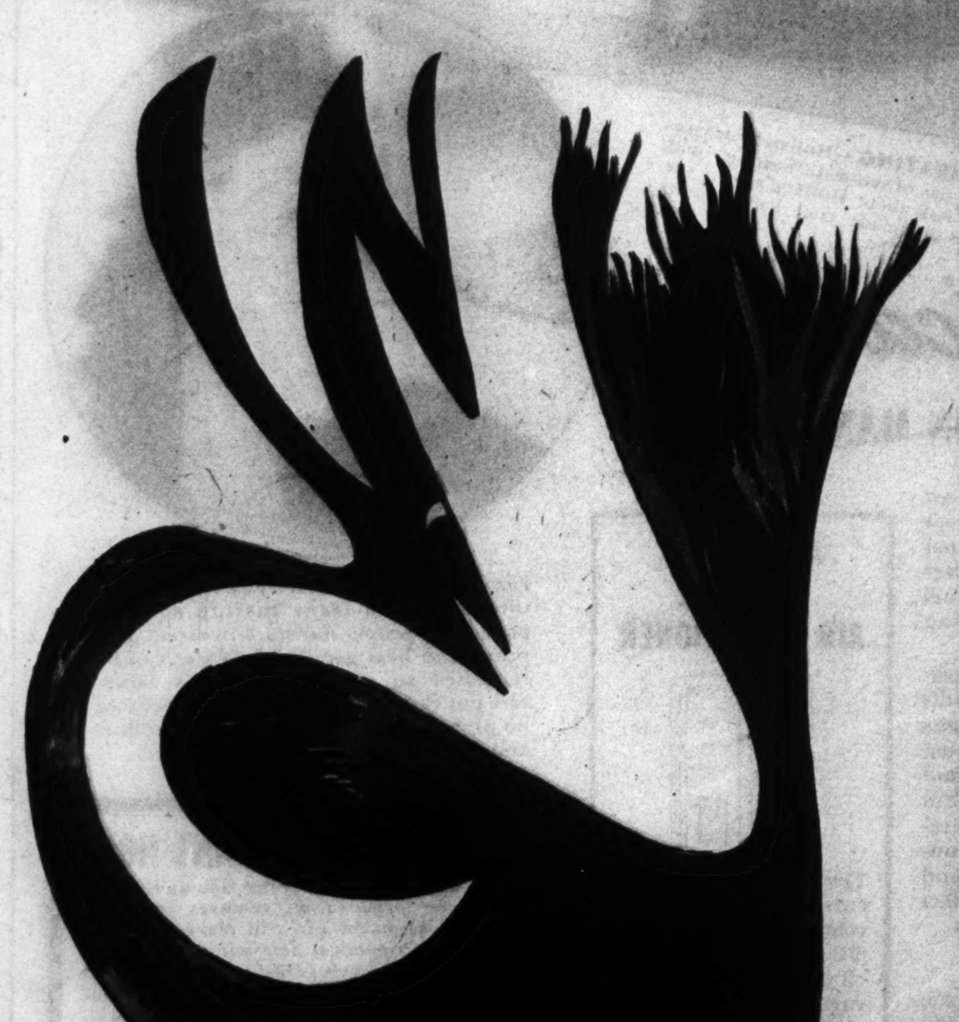
Extra! Extra!

MRS. MERRILL HUTCHINSON was bored. She was attending a lecture by a distinguished scientist and she had brought along her notebook. Somehow the wonders of science palled. She didn't jot down a single note. As the lecture proceeded Mrs. Hutchinson began to make little drawings in her notebook, much as people scribble on a pad while telephoning. When the lecture ended, Mrs. Hutchinson found that she had filled her notebook with funny figures—"abstract line drawings," art critics call them.

Mrs. Hutchinson went home and wrote a letter to her daughter, Mary Elizabeth Hutchinson, who is an artist in New York. Mrs. Hutchinson enclosed the notebook.

"Mother, your abstract line drawings are a grand success," her daughter wrote. "I've pinned them up in my studio and they have created no end in interest."

The result?—Mrs. Hutchinson and Mary Elizabeth have had a mother and daughter show at Mrs. Zimbalist's Gallery in New York. Later, Mrs. Hutchinson had a one-man show at Daytona Beach, Florida, then a one-man show at the Contemporary Arts Gallery, and now Mrs. Hutchinson has just completed a most successful one-man exhibition at the High Museum of Art in her home town, Atlanta, Georgia.



Flame.

"WE KNOW TOBACCO BECAUSE WE GROW IT—WE SMOKE CAMELS BECAUSE WE KNOW TOBACCO"—Tobacco Planters say

ED THOMPSON'S fine tobacco crops show the care of an experienced planter. He says: "My fancy grades went to Camel last year. So did the best lots grown by my planter friends. We know Camel buys the quality tobaccos. And we smoke Camels. Yes, so do most men who know tobacco from the ground up."

"I KNOW the difference between tobaccos that go into various cigarettes," states tobacco planter Joe R. Galloway, who knows tobacco from the ground up. "Year in—year out, my extra-fine grades have gone to Camel, including the best of my last crop. Camels are the smoke for me—and for most other growers!"

ALTON BARNES, though a young planter, already has a splendid record for growing top-grade tobaccos. He says: "When I saw my finest lots—and those of other planters—go to Camel, believe me, that's the cigarette I chose. From what I see all over, Camels sure are the favorite down in our tobacco country."

WONDER BREAD helps build VITALITY!

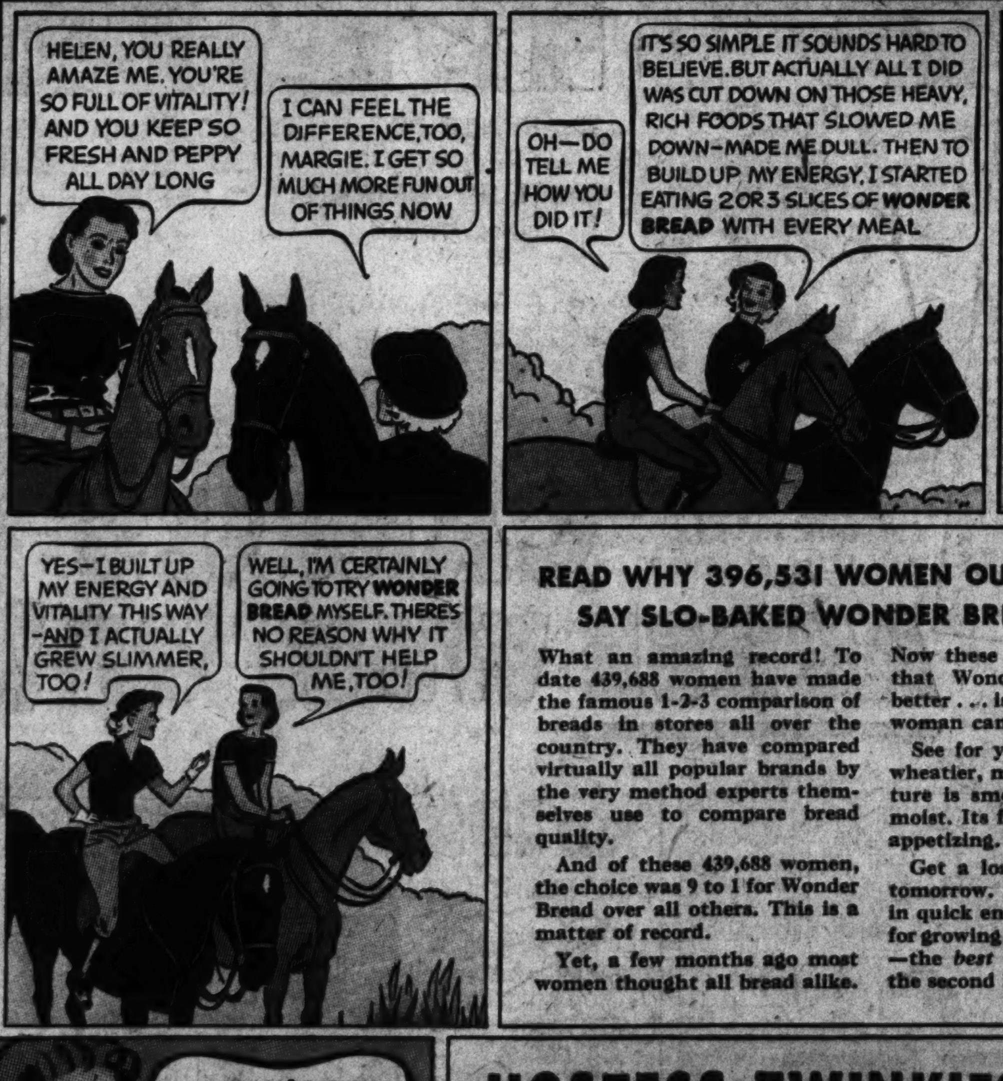
TRUE CHARM COMES FROM RADIANT VITALITY—NOT MADE-UP PRETTINESS!



HELEN, YOU REALLY AMAZE ME. YOU'RE SO FULL OF VITALITY! AND YOU KEEP SO FRESH AND PEPPY ALL DAY LONG
I CAN FEEL THE DIFFERENCE, TOO, MARGIE. I GET SO MUCH MORE FUN OUT OF THINGS NOW
OH—DO TELL ME HOW YOU DID IT!
IT'S SO SIMPLE IT SOUNDS HARD TO BELIEVE. BUT ACTUALLY ALL I DID WAS CUT DOWN ON THOSE HEAVY, RICH FOODS THAT SLOWED ME DOWN—MADE ME DULL. THEN TO BUILD UP MY ENERGY, I STARTED EATING 2 OR 3 SLICES OF WONDER BREAD WITH EVERY MEAL
YES—I BUILT UP MY ENERGY AND VITALITY THIS WAY -AND I ACTUALLY GREW SLIMMER, TOO!
WELL, I'M CERTAINLY GOING TO TRY WONDER BREAD MYSELF. THERE'S NO REASON WHY IT SHOULDN'T HELP ME, TOO!

SLO-BAKED—GIVES YOU VITAL ENERGY YOU NEED!

Do you want the kind of energy that builds vitality . . . that sustains you through a long hard day . . . keeps you feeling full of "go"?

One of the best sources of this kind of energy, food authorities agree, is Wonder Bread. It is made of specially selected, costly ingredients to give you the food-energy you need.

And remember—Wonder Bread is slo-baked . . . a special baking method that makes this energy-rich food easily digestible. Thus you get the sustaining energy that helps build vitality.

READ WHY 396,531 WOMEN OUT OF 439,688 SAY SLO-BAKED WONDER BREAD IS BEST

What an amazing record! To date 439,688 women have made the famous 1-2-3 comparison of breads in stores all over the country. They have compared virtually all popular brands by the very method experts themselves use to compare bread quality.

And of these 439,688 women, the choice was 9 to 1 for Wonder Bread over all others. This is a matter of record.

Yet, a few months ago most women thought all bread alike. Now these women have proved that Wonder Bread is really better . . . is the finest bread any woman can buy.

See for yourself! Its flavor is wheatier, more delicate. Its texture is smoother, softer, more moist. Its fragrant aroma more appetizing.

Get a loaf of Wonder Bread tomorrow. It's Slo-Baked—rich in quick energy—just the thing for growing children. Remember—the best costs no more than the second best.
